"I've tried my resources, asked around, and talked to most of the people I know, but I haven't found anyone who can donate a VCR right now," Gerard explained.

Safe Harbor provides a residential support program for persons with mental illness who are experiencing an intensity of symptoms. A VCR would provide these people with some entertainment and relief and well as a tool for education, Gerard said.

This is not the first time that Howard Gerard has gone in search of donations for people with mental illness. A couple of years ago he acquired several pieces of exercise equipment for the clients at Lighthouse, including a treadmill and stationary bike.

Bibles, which Gerard has been getting from the Gideons for use by Lighthouse clients, have been given "generously" he said. However, these do not come in a large print format.

"It would be much easier for some people to read the larger type. So I called the Maryland Bible Society in Baltimore and asked them if they had any. The director said they had them but they cost $20 each. When I told him what I wanted them for, he wrote me a special grant right on the spot. The next day 10 large-print Bibles arrived by UPS," he recalled.

Gerard said he is willing to keep asking for help on behalf of others who may not be able to do so for themselves. "Sometimes you just don't know how generous other people can be. But if you ask, they may surprise you," he said.

If anyone is able to donate a VCR to Safe Harbor, he or she may call Gerard at 301-334-8826 or Lighthouse at 301-334-9126.

Heritage Quilt Club Reviews 1999 Activities

The members of the Heritage Quilting Club spent part of their January meeting reviewing some accomplishments and activities of 1999, including making and donating quilts to people within the community and across the world.

Project Linus, which provides "security blankets" for children suffering from cancer and other serious diseases, received 11 handmade quilts from club members. (See related story.) Members are also in the process of making quilts for people in Bosnia. Fabrics for these quilts were distributed during the December club meeting. Some are ready to be sent.

At each monthly meeting during the past year, a member demonstrated a block design. Following the example, members would create a similar "block of the month" to be incorporated in a quilt.

A special activity for December was the raffle of Christmas quilt blocks for which each member brought one or two blocks made up in holiday reds and greens on a white-on-white fabric background. Two drawings were held: winners were Norma Hesen and Thelma Emory.

Peggy Close, winner of last year's quilt block drawing, displayed the Christmas quilt she had made with them.

The Heritage Quilting Club meets on the second Tuesday of each month at 7 p.m. in the Continuing Education building of Garrett Community College. New members are invited to attend at any time. No advanced notice is necessary.

MS Society To Help With Spring Cleaning

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society, Maryland Chapter, will help citizens do their spring cleaning by offering to pick up their used boat or vehicles. The MS Society will accept cars, vans, trucks, and RVs in any condition, and boats upon inspection. Free tow service is provided and donations may be tax deductible. For further information, persons may telephone Bill McClayton or Susan Sturmer at the MS Society's Hunt Valley office at 410-527-1770 or toll free: 1-877-672-2774.

The mission of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society is to end the devastating effects of MS. Through its 50-state network of chapters and branches, the society provides a wide range of services to people with MS and their families.

Pro-Corridor H Meeting Slated For Moorefield

The Corridor H Action Committee (CHAC), an organization that supports the completion of the Corridor H Highway and the construction of the Little Kanawha River Parkway in West Virginia, has set a meeting for Wednesday, Feb. 9, at 7 p.m. at the Hardy County Senior Center in Moorefield. The guest speaker for the meeting will be former West Virginia state Senator Joe Manchin.

"A completed Corridor H will foster greater economic development in the counties of eastern and central West Virginia," Manchin told a recent CHAC gathering. "Corridor H will add to the economic vitality of the region. Corridor G in the southwestern part of the state has brought forth an economic boom to its area, and we need to do the same for other areas of the state."

Further information on the meeting and the CHAC is available from the group's president, Jim Kingsbury of Elkins, who may be reached at 304-636-3293.

The Aurora Pioneers met in the home of 4-H leader Stacy Fint on January 9. Brittany Stemple led the club in the American pledge, followed by the 4-H pledge lead by Jessica Callahan. Brittany Stemple also led the group in singing "The Yogi Bear Song."

Applications for 4-H State Dance Camp were passed out. Becca Fint explained that the camp introduces campers to various types of dance such as line dancing, Irish, and Scottish dancing.

The club aiso discussed a new project, Lawn of the Month. The idea is to recognize an attractive lawn within the Aurora area. An award sign would be placed in a winning lawn each month.

Several club members signed up for competition in poster contests of various categories. Others signed up for photography competition. Stacy Fint, club leader, showed several posters from previous years to demonstrate qualities of past winning posters.

Next month, the club members will hold its annual Valentine Bake-Off. Special "goodie bags" will be prepared and presented to local residents.

good a mother as she was, there was no way that she would be able to keep herself or her young ones safe or alive from what was about to happen. Still watching her feed her cubs, I thought to myself, "This beautiful animal and her babies will make it through the three-day hunt.

I just knew that a sportsman realized the importance of a future hunt, and that any ethical hunter or sportsman would pass up a shot at a sow and her cubs, thinking of a future hunt! I know that true sportsmen and hunters took part in the bear hunt. These comments are not directed to you in any fashion. However, to the "hunters" who waited by the baited area signs to pick off anything that passed by, shooting from Maryland into Pennsylvania from your pickup trucks, and the "hunters" who sat covered in orange on the ridge above the baited area, and to the ones who even sat in the parking lot of the baited area waiting to shoot their prey, these comments are directed to you!

Believe this, if there is a bear hunt in Pennsylvania in the year 2000, it's possible that laws will be changed to prevent the slaughter of cubs accompanied by any bear, sows with cubs, and bears under 100 pounds. There could be a firing distance from the outside perimeter of a baited area and the firing of a weapon into a baited area.

Do I hear you correctly when you say you can't tell the size of a bear in the woods? You can see the antlers on a buck at 100 yards in your scope? If you cannot tell the size of the bear looking into your scope, than I sure don't want to be in or around the area where you have a loaded weapon!

The baited area was occupied during all three days of the hunt. It contains a permanent building and three camping trailers. In my mind that makes it a residential area. I cannot fire a weapon within 150 yards of a residential area. What makes you so special? How many of you want to own up to firing into the baited area?

To the "hunters" who would shoot a 38-pound bear cub, you will still continue to slaughter and poach. But remember this, there are hunters, sportsmen, and just plain citizens uniting to ensure you will be either caught or turned in to DNR for prosecution. I hunted years ago while possessing an automatic weapon in the woods with people who also possessed an automatic weapon and desperately wanted to kill me as much as I wanted to kill them. Somewhere I lost the desire to hunt animals. I am not anti-hunt; I am anti-unethical hunt — the kind of hunt where you kill, or maybe the word "slaughter" would be more appropriate, where you leave your kill out to lie.

As for the desensitizing the bear to humans, let's not even go there. They never saw you shoot them from long range. So many people enjoyed watching the power and the beauty of these wild animals as they lived in their surroundings!

I watched the mother as she left the campground with her four babies. She vanished into the woods with her young. I smiled to myself and thought, "They will make it through the hunt." I was so very wrong!! They were among the first to be killed! 1,735 black bear were killed in Pennsylvania in three days, down about 1,000 from last year. Wouldn't it be interesting to know how many sows, how many cubs, how many black bears under 100 pounds, and how many males were killed in that hunt?

If this gets to you and it really bothers you, contact me or contact the Fund For Animals at 1-301-585-2591. Let's at least try to protect the future!

Respectfully,
Tom Mullen

Miss Schildauer, Mr. Rentschler Wed In August Double-Ring Event

Andrea Schildauer and Gabriel Rentschler were united in marriage at the Renner Lutheran Church, Renner, S.D., on August 14, 1999. The Reverends David Bacon and Don Matthews celebrated the double-ring ceremony.

The parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ron Schildauer, Crooks, S.D., and Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rentschler of Swanton.

The bride is a graduate of Baltic High School, Baltic, S.D. She attends Allegany College of Maryland, Cumberland, where she is a nursing student. The groom is a history major at Frostburg State University, Frostburg.

The couple currently reside in Swanton.

Miss Pacheco, Mr. Rentschler Exchange Vows In July Event

Ivonne Margarita Pacheco and Austin Rentschler were united in marriage on July 30, 1999, in Chihuahua, Mexico. The ceremony was performed in a 300-year-old mission church. Father Jose Manuel Nata celebrated the wedding mass in Spanish, with Rev. Don Matthews of Oakland present to add a blessing to the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Jose and Ivonne Pacheco of Chihuahua. The groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rentschler of Swanton.

The bride is majoring in accounting at Frostburg State University, Frostburg, and the groom is pursuing a degree in economics at FSU. The couple are making their home in Frostburg.

right direction. "We're ahead of the curve right now. But we've got to make some changes, and we're going to be doing that by upgrading the computer pathway program," Vent explained.

In addition to the computer skills that will continue to be needed in the work place, Snyder emphasized that employers are demanding basic arithmetic and reading skills; the ability to work with decimals, fractions, and percentages; "executive" writing and proofreading skills; and the ability to give oral presentations and briefings. These he referred to as "hard skills."

Under the heading of "soft skills," Snyder included team-building ability and skills in active listening and questioning, time and asset management, problem recognition and solving, and message taking and transmittal.

Snyder said that employers place equally high value on "customer skills." Employees need to demonstrate "public" manners and courtesy; practice personal and electronic ethics; and have well developed telephone skills, he pointed out.

The presentation Snyder made also delineated some skill sets that will be needed by students preparing to enter the workforce. Under this heading he outlined the multiple career areas that now demand a combination of subject knowledge and technology skills, such as social science, physical science, statistics, art, design, animation, and mathematics.

Vent said she believed the summit was a success. "Everyone I spoke to after the meeting was very impressed with what they had heard. I think a lot of our teachers walked away thinking 'boy, we've got a lot to do.' But we are going to make the changes and revise our programs of study. We will be working on that project during the summer. I thought this summit would be a good kick-off event for this undertaking," she concluded.

Thin Ice

Ice safety experts recommend that persons participating in activities on the ice should take proper precautions, including wearing personal flotation devices and carrying two long spikes to assist in climbing back on top of the ice in the event of a breakthrough.

"When traveling in groups, individuals should keep their distance from each other so there is not an excessive amount of weight on any one place, and so the whole group will not end up in the water if there is a breakthrough," he said.

In the event of such accidents, persons should call 911 as soon as possible.

The DNR also reminds that snowmobile use on Deep Creek Lake is absolutely prohibited, and advises pet owners to not allow their pets on the ice when conditions are dangerous. If pets do get stranded on the ice, persons are again advised to call 911 since there are trained personnel available to make a safe rescue if possible.

Rams Record Victories Over Alco, Keyser; Stand At 10-4

It was another good week on the basketball court for the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team, which whipped visiting Allegany Saturday, 64-48, in a Western Maryland Interscholastic League contest, and then rolled over Keyser, also in Oakland, on Tuesday. The pair of victories improved the Rams' overall record to 10-4 and their WMIL mark to 6-1.

After falling asleep in the second quarter against Allegany on Saturday, the Rams and Coach Tom Bosley regrouped at halftime and took complete control of the contest in the third by going on a 20-4 scoring run. The Rams held a 14-13 edge at the end of the first quarter, were behind by five, 27-22, at intermission, but out-scored the visitors by a 21-5 margin to take a 43-32 advantage into the final stanza. The Campers did not score a point in the second half until the third quarter was more than half over.

The third-quarter spurt was initiated by Nathaniel Panther, who drained a three-pointer on the Rams' first possession of the second half. Justin Liller then netted eight unanswered points to give the Rams the lead for good.

Liller finished with a game-high 22 points, while Panther, Mike Browning, and Bryan Panther completed a balanced scoring effort by recording nine points apiece. Liller also had four assists and four steals, and Justin Stephens grabbed six rebounds.

Playing a solid defensive game for Southern against Alco guard Nathan Simpson, who came into the contest averaging just under 24 points per outing (third best in the area), was Southern's Josh Bosley. Simpson finished with 17 points to pace the Campers (8-5 overall, 5-2 WMIL). Tim Dinan pulled down a game-high seven rebounds.

The primary item of discussion at halftime, according to Coach Bosley, was rebounding. "We missed some easy shots in the first half, but we were really getting beaten on the boards," he said. "We reversed that in the third quarter, plus we started hitting the shots that we should have made in the first half."

The Southern junior varsity was also victorious in the preliminary game, 44-38, behind a 16-point effort by Ricky Reams. Also reaching double figures for the Rams was D.R. Parsons with 12 points. Leading the Alco jayvees was Jonathan Irons, also with 16 points.

The Rams were never seriously threatened by the Golden Tornados of Keyser Tuesday night, as they moved out to a 15-8 lead by the end of the first quarter, led 30-18 at halftime, and were up 40-23 after three periods.

Nathaniel Panther and Justin Liller scored all of the Rams' first quarter points, and Panther finished with a game-high 18, while Liller connected for 15. All but six of Panther's points were scored from the foul line, from which he made good on 12 of 14 attempts.

Fourteen of Southern's 18 points in the fourth quarter were recorded from the free throw line, as the Rams hit 14 of 17 in that stanza. Both teams finished with 14 field goals, but the Rams held a 5-2 edge in three-point buckets, with Liller hitting three and Panther netting two.

Jason Finch came off the bench to lead the Rams' 18-point effort in the fourth quarter, which is when he scored seven of his nine points.

Leading the scoring for Keyser (4-7) was Nelson Guerin with 11 points.

"We put great pressure on their perimeter players," Coach Bosley said, "and Jason Finch and Justin Stephens did a fine job inside to nullify Keyser's height advantage."

The Southern jayvees won the first game, 52-40, as Joel Helbig and Chad Panther finished with 15 and 13 points, respectively, for the Rams. Rusty Clay hit a game-high 17 points for the Keyser junior varsity.

Southern will host county rival Northern this Friday and play at Westmar next Tuesday. Tip-off against the Huskies is set for 7:30 p.m., with the junior varsity tilt beginning at 6 p.m.

Speicher, Others Step Up To Pace Huskies Past Turkeyfoot

Despite the fact that Rob Dozier, Northern High School's top scorer, was held to just eight points Monday evening, the Huskies recorded a 65-53 win over visiting Turkeyfoot, as senior guard Greg Speicher netted 17 points. The win was the ninth in 13 starts for Coach Paul Edwards and the Huskies.

All but two of Speicher's points were recorded from three-point range, as Dozier was controlled on the inside by the visitors. Tim Umbel, Josh Resh, and A.J. Thomas also stepped up and reached double figures with 13, 12, and 11 points, respectively, to make it a balanced offensive performance.

The Huskies held a 14-13 edge at the end of the first quarter, were on top by four, 33-29, at halftime, and stretched their advantage to 50-40 by the conclusion of the third period.

While Dozier was kept out of double figures in scoring, he pulled down a game-high 14 rebounds and blocked six shots. Umbel also had eight assists, and Resh grabbed eight rebounds.

Getting a game-high 23 points was Turkeyfoot's Andrew Wass, and Eric Miller finished with 12.

"They did a good job taking Rob out of our offense, but Greg hit the outside shots and Tim and Josh took care of things underneath," Coach Edwards said.

The Northern junior varsity completed a Husky sweep by winning the preliminary game, 41-29, behind a 17-point effort by Josh Sandol. Willie Kline led the Turkeyfoot jayvees with 12 points.

The Huskies will face a tough test this Friday when they travel to Oakland to take on rival Southern. They will play a make-up game at home Saturday against Hancock, with the junior varsity contest set for 5 p.m. and the varsity slated to tip off at 6:30. They will be on the road at Allegany next Tuesday.

Tressler Leads Ram Freshmen To Two Wins

Dennis Tressler paced the Southern High School freshman boys' team to a pair of victories this past week, including a big 51-47 win over host Fort Hill last Wednesday and a 57-21 thrashing of visiting Westmar on Saturday. Tressler scored 30 points in the win over the Sentinels and netted 23 against Westmar.

The results upped the Rams' season mark to 7-3.

Southern held a 28-17 advantage at halftime against Fort Hill, and actually won the game at the foul line, from which they connected on 13 of 15 opportunities. They made good on seven of nine attempts in the fourth quarter.

Also reaching double figures for Southern was Joe Davis with 10 points. Pat Grove and Robert Grapes led the Sentinels with 15 and 14 points, respectively.

"We came out ready to play, and got a nice lead in the first half with great offensive execution," said Ram coach Jon Hegeman. "It was the big free throws down the stretch that made the difference in the second half. Dennis Tressler had a super game, but a lot of his scoring was set up by A.J. Bender and Joe Davis."

The Rams dominated Westmar from the opening tip-off on Saturday, holding the Wildcats to just 10 points in the first half. The Southern defense forced a total of 33 turnovers.

Tressler was the only player to reach double figures with his 23 points. Teammate Brent Niner scored eight, and leading Westmar was Neil Alexander with seven points.

"We played well defensively, especially Adam Cooper with six steals," Hegeman said. "Offensively we made some poor decisions and did not execute to our capabilities, but for the first time all season we had all 11 players score."

The Rams will play again this evening at Frankfort.

Condoerr, 219 Motors, Beckman's Win In Mtn. Top

Condoerr held off Smiley's Pizzeria, 68-62, the Welding rod was edged by 219 Motors, 74-67, and Beckman's Variety rolled over 84 Lumber, 79-52, in Mountain Top Basketball League games played Sunday.

Poke Winters led Condoerr with 22 points, and hit a three-pointer with less than two minutes remaining to give his team the lead for good. Scott Shahan paced Smiley's with 20 points.

A game-high 21 points was scored by Mike Fazenbaker for 219 Motors in the second game, while Jason Shank led the Welding Rod with 20.

Jared Beckman took scoring honors for the week, as he poured in 29 points to lead Beckman's to its easy win.

The league will take this Sunday off to watch the Super Bowl and return to action Sunday, Feb. 6.

Patterson Boat, Mettiki Winners In Rec League

Patterson Boat topped Dan Bosley Construction in a defensive Recreational Basketball League battle, 39-33, Sunday afternoon, and Mettiki Coal got by Gonder Insurance, 63-56, in the second game.

Bill Weissgerber paced Patterson Boat's offense with a 13-point effort, while Larry Roth and Paul Lewis netted eight and seven points, respectively, for Bosley.

Kevin Liller's 25-point performance paced Mettiki, and teammate Mike Saturday also reached double figures with 19. Leading a balanced attack for Gonder were Rick Minnick, Denny Skeweris, and Jason Shank with 19, 13, and 11 points, respectively.

The Super Bowl will cancel games for this Sunday; however, on Feb. 6, Mettiki will face Patterson Boat in the 6 p.m. game, and Quality Machine will take on Dan Bosley Construction in the 7 p.m. contest.

HealthSeries

January is a month of beginnings...the New Year...resolutions for a healthier lifestyle...and appointments for that long-overdue physical examination, which, for women, often includes a pap test.

Very few experiences are as frightening as when you receive a call that your pap smear came back abnormal. Although cervical cancer is the first thing that comes to mind, most of the time an abnormal pap smear indicates a minor problem that may or may not need treatment.

A pap test is a simple, effective screening for cervical cell abnormalities. Abnormalities can actually be identified before actual cancer cells develop. When abnormalities are identified, your physician may recommend that you have a colposcopy.

A colposcopy is a gynecological procedure performed using a microscope that allows the doctor to use magnification so that abnormal areas may be more easily identified and biopsied if necessary.

While this procedure is often unavailable in rural communities, it is a service offered by Dr. Patricia Gotsch, Dr. Roger Lewis, Dr. Sotiere Savopoulos and Dr. Charles Walch, physicians on staff at Garrett Memorial Hospital.

Rams' Winning Ways Continue, Down NHS By 17

Making the most of its only outing of the week, the Southern High School varsity girls' basketball took a 49-32 win over visiting Northern last night behind the sterling all-around play of Charlena Reeves and Ashley Liller, and a sparkling team defensive effort. The victory gives the Rams a 10-4 overall record and a 5-2 WMIL tally heading into a Monday night road trip to Mt. Savage, which will be followed by a Thursday, Feb. 3, Oakland visit by the Fort Hill Sentinels.

Last night SHS's Reeves, a junior forward, turned in mirror performances on both ends of the floor by notching a 15-point, 15-rebound double-double. Teammate and sophomore guard Ashley Liller also had an excellent all-around showing, scoring 13 points, dishing out six assists, and coming away with six steals. Jennifer Bosley, a sophomore, and senior Becca Gangler, each scored six points from their forward positions.

Defensively, the Rams battened down the hatches to hold the Huskies' Heidi Frazee and Heather Nugent, two prolific scorers who had combined for 46 points Monday night against Mt. Savage, to a total of only 17 points. Frazee scored nine points, Nugent eight points, and teammate Kristin Lander added five points. "Jennifer Bosley did a good job guarding Heidi Frazee," SHS head coach Don Stemple commented.

Up 14-7 after one quarter of play, the Rams held the guests to only nine points through the first half while scoring 23 points of their own. Southern held a 36-17 lead going into the final quarter. Each team committed 17 fouls on the night.

The junior varsity contest had nearly identical results, as SHS took a 49-35 win. Melissa Flanigan paced the Rams with 17 points.

NHS Gets Savage With Indians To Take 80-22 Win

Northern High School girls' varsity basketball team gave no quarter to Mt. Savage, its Monday night guest, as the Huskies ran away with an 80-22 victory. However, in what is seemingly becoming a pattern over recent weeks, NHS ended up with a split for its overall effort, as the squad dropped a match-up at Southern last night by a 49-32 margin (see SHS girls' coverage).

Seniors Heidi Frazee and Heather Nugent took the reins in leading the Huskies to the big win over the Indians Monday. Frazee, a forward, hit for a game-high 24 points, while Nugent popped in a trio of three-pointers from her guard slot on the way to a 22-point performance.

NHS junior guard Kristin Lander added 10 points, and sophomore forward Bridget Frazee led both teams on the boards by pulling down 11 rebounds. Mimi Harvey continued to exhibit her quick reflexes at her guard position, as the senior nabbed nine steals and dished out six assists. Katie Sweene led Mt. Savage's scoring with seven points.

Northern dominated the contest from the outset, running up a 20-4 lead after one quarter and a 38-9 halftime advantage before taking a 58-16 lead going into the final stanza. "We hustled tonight," observed Husky head coach Julie Hoffman. "We used our fast break all night and outran them." The game was a clean-played affair, as Savage committed only six fouls while Northern was whistled for eight infractions.

The Huskies' junior varsity squad also dominated its opponent, notching a 37-5 win behind sophomore forward Christie Flockhart's 10 points.

Northern's varsity holds a 9-7 record (5-4 WMIL) going into a rather lengthy break, according to the published schedule. The Huskies next outing will be a home match-up with Flintstone on Thursday, Feb. 3.

IT WAS A HARD-FOUGHT BATTLE, as usual, last night when the Southern High Rams hosted the Northern Huskies in a girls' varsity match-up. Both teams charged up and down the floor until the final buzzer, when SHS held a 49-32 lead to take the victory. The Rams were paced by 15 points and 15 rebounds by Charlena Reeves, and a 13-point performance by Ashley Liller, who also had six steals and six assists. Liller (#21) is pictured above bringing the ball up the floor, flanked from left by teammate Joy Jackson (#31), and Husky defenders Heidi Frazee (#14), Mimi Harvey (#10), and Bridget Frazee (#11), while fellow Ram Reeves hustles along to the far right. Northern's Heidi Frazee is shown below driving down the lane as she completes a Husky fast break. From the left in the same photo are the Rams' Gina Reeves (#23) and Ashlee Spady (#33), NHS's Harvey, SHS's Jackson, and Northern's Bridget Frazee. The Rams' victory took Southern's record to 10-4, while the Huskies fell to 9-7.

DEFENSE! - A strong Southern defense helped the Rams to victory last night, as a Husky offense that had shredded the nets for 80 points against Mt. Savage Monday night was held to less than half that total. NHS's Heidi Frazee (#14, left) was held to an uncharacteristically low nine-point scoring output, mainly through the defensive work of SHS's Jennifer Bosley (#13, right).

Husky Grapplers Crush Rams Again, Then Blank Wildcats

The wrestling team of Northern High School easily recorded its eighth and ninth regular-season victories this week, as the Huskies crushed host Southern, 51-7, Monday in Oakland on the strength of five pins and six decisions, and then throttled host Westmar last night, 78-0.

It was the second easy win over the 5-3 Rams this season. Earning pins for the Huskies were Pete Stein in the 105-pound class, defending state runner-up (103) Blake Huber in the 114-pound division, Matt McNees at 121 pounds, David Wampler at 173, and Ryan Savage in the unlimited division.

Winning on points for Coach Scott Stough's team were Paul Beitzel (132), Paul Beitzel (132), state runner-up Brandon Stein (137), Brandon Kamp (142), Keith Artice (147), and Mark Wolf (163).

The only victories for the Rams were recorded by state runner-up John Hayhurst (191) and Jeff Tressler (127), both on decisions.

The Huskies are scheduled to wrestle at home this evening against Meyersdale and travel to Fort Hill next Tuesday.

The margin of victory over Westmar last night was most likely the largest in Northern High School history, as the Huskies won all 13 matches, eight by pin and five via forfeits. The Wildcats dropped to 1-10 with the loss.

Getting pins for Northern were Huber (112), McNees (119), Jeremiah Guard (125), Beitzel (130), Brandon Stein (135), Kamp (140), Adam Brenneman (152), and Ryan Brenneman (189). Forfeits were awarded to Pete Stein (103), Artice (145), Wolf (160), Wampler (171), and Ryan Savage (unlimited).

The Huskies will return to the mats this evening at home against Meyersdale (7 p.m.) and travel to Fort Hill next Tuesday.

LOTS OF TROPHIES were earned by members of the Southern Mat Club this past weekend, as members of the club competed in several area tournaments. Perhaps their most impressive team placing was in a tourney in Waynesburg, Pa., where they finished second among 56 teams from five states. Top finishers in that event are pictured above with their spoils. From left, front row, are: Brutus Scheffel, Jacob Scheffel, and Lex Ozias. In the back are: Justin Ratliff, Daniel Carr, Scott Wildesen, Jeremy Gregory, and Casey Kamp.

SMC Wrestlers Place High At Several Events

The Southern Mat Club was on the road again this past weekend and brought home numerous awards. On Saturday, the team competed in Grafton, W.Va., against 26 other teams, mostly from West Virginia. The SMC finished in second place overall, being edged out by the host, Taylor County Mat Club. Individually on Saturday, the local grapplers captured nine first-place trophies, four second-place awards, three third places, and four fourth places.

On Sunday, eight SMC wrestlers traveled to Waynesburg, Pa., and competed against 56 other teams from Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland, Ohio, and Virginia. Again, the team placed second and brought home a team trophy that is too big for the trophy case. "It sure was quite an accomplishment to finish in second place with all those strong teams attending. The effort our kids gave all weekend was incredible," commented Coach Dan Clark.

The following wrestlers won all their matches in their divisions to become champions. On Saturday, Justin Ratliff, Jacob Scheffel, Brutus Scheffel, Casey Kamp, and Lex Ozias won their divisions. Also, Daniel Carr and Scott Wildesen were entered in two separate divisions, and these two wrestlers won first place in both. Earning second-place trophies on Saturday were Tyler Gregory and Jeremy Gregory in their own division, and Justin Ratliff and Lex Ozias in their second group. Third-place winners were Brutus Scheffel, Colin McCaffrey, and Ryan Ratliff. Fourth-place award winners were Bubba Scheffel, Gavin Murphy, Nick Brant, and Anthony Hook. Also competing at Taylor County were Aaron Friend, Nathan Gover, Rusty Gover, Zach McCaffrey, and Anthony Crosco.

Also on Saturday, Coty Rasel attended a tournament in Greene County, Pa., and placed third. Kevin Mauk wrestled in Hyndman, Pa.

At Waynesburg on Sunday, Lex Ozias and Brutus Scheffel won all three matches in their own divisions to capture championship trophies. Additionally, Brutus Scheffel was entered in an older age group and won all his matches there to claim that top prize also. Placing second on Sunday were Casey Kamp, Bubba Scheffel, and Jeremy Gregory. Third-place award winners were Daniel Carr, Justin Ratliff, and Scott Wildesen in two separate groups. Lex Ozias placed fourth in an older division than his own. Justin Ratliff also captured a trophy for the fastest pin.

"There were so many individual accomplishments this weekend, I can't begin to list them," stated Coach Dave Taylor. "One match does stand out. Six-year-old Jacob Scheffel was entered in the 8-year-old and under class. He drew a kid from East Fairmont, W.Va., who won the Tulsa National tournament, in the second round. Jacob wrestled his little heart out and endured a bloody lip and the relentless pressure to pull out a 6-3 win. It was a great match and an incredible accomplishment," Taylor added.

This Saturday, the Southern Mat Club will host its own tournament at Southern High School. "We would love to have the people of Garrett County stop by and see what youth wrestling is all about and to support both the Southern and Northern mat clubs," said Coach Ozias.

Guthrie, Glover Winners In Par-Matt Tourney

Norman Guthrie and Rich Glover were the winners of the Par-Matt Lanes Millennium Bowling Tournament, held last Friday evening. Guthrie was the winner in the handicap roll-off, while Glover won the scratch roll-off.

Twenty-eight bowlers participated in the event, with four finalists advancing after a three-game qualifier into the handicap roll-off and four advancing to the scratch roll-off. Guthrie was seeded first in the handicap final with a score of 751, followed by Dave Sweitzer with a 680, Tim Chapman with a 678, and Rich Baker with a 672. Jeff Meyers was the top seed in the scratch final with a score of 646, followed by Quintin Guthrie with a 596, Glover with a 575, and Jeff Friend with a 557.

Chapman topped Baker, 207-201, in the first round of the handicap roll-off, and then defeated Sweitzer in round two, 238-164. Guthrie then rolled by Chapman with a near perfect score in the final game, 298-157.

Glover rolled games of 198, 228, and 209 to win the scratch title, defeating Friend (192), Quintin Guthrie (165), and Meyers (158).

The tournament was sponsored by Par-Matt, Proctor Kildow Post 71 American Legion, Mel Humberson's Truck Sales and Service, Hinebaugh Excavating, Durst Funeral Home, First Mortgage Finance, Glass Unlimited, Underwood Landscaping, and Tressler Electric.

Garrett County Outdoors

By Robert Yonke

The recent spate of winter has driven all but the hardiest of outdoorsmen inside. But, that's OK. There are many tasks that need to be taken care of in preparation for spring fishing and hunting opportunities, and this is a good time to do them.

Here are some ideas.

Waterfowl hunters can use this time to rejuvenate decoys that have been through a season of hard use. Look to repair broken or damaged decoy cords and weights. To keep tangles to a minimum, consider replacing old line with tangle-proof decoy cord. This is also a good time to put a new finish on duck boats.

Is it ever too early to start planning for this spring's turkey opener? Now is a great time to get organized. Some of the new vests on the market are ideal starting points. For long winter nights, nothing makes the time go faster than viewing turkey-hunting videos. Why not get some hunting buddies together and make a night of it? Dan Milavec has a huge selection of outdoor tapes of all kinds available for rental at D&B Sports Shop in Deer Park. Start practicing those clucks and yelps.

The outdoor show season is just about here, so start watching for dates and plan to get a jump on whatever your season is by attending one or two.

Fly-fishermen traditionally use this season to tie up a bunch of their favorites. Spring Creek Outfitters in McHenry can provide tools and materials for experts or beginners. They also can alert beginners about available classes.

Not everyone is cabin bound. The cold temperatures have opened ice-fishing opportunities and reports are that the action is pretty good, particularly on Deep Creek Lake. Be careful and check the ice before venturing out.

NEW WALLEYE FISHING REGULATIONS FOR THE YOUGHIOGHENY RIVER

The DNR has posted a closure period for walleye fishing in the Friendsville area of the Yough. The aim is to protect the spawning walleye that normally reside in the Yough Reservoir. No fishing for walleyes will be permitted from March 1 through April 15.

NEW NUISANCE WILDLIFE PHONE NUMBER

The Department of Natural Resources Wildlife and Heritage Division has changed the toll-free number for Maryland residents to call for advice and assistance with nuisance wildlife. Effective immediately, the number is 1-877-463-6497. On average, DNR receives 700 calls per month on the Nuisance Wildlife Hotline.

Call the hotline if you have concerns about a wildlife-related situation.

BECOME AN OUTDOOR WOMAN IN 2000

DNR has BOW workshops scheduled for May 12-14 at Sandy Hill Camp in Cecil County and August 18-20 at the Western MD 4-H Center in Garrett County. The three-day workshops offer about 30 different classes including firearm safety, basic fishing, fly-fishing, camping skills, shotgun and rifle, bowhunting and archery, outdoor cooking, canoeing, map and compass, and many more.

Looking for a little more than basics?

Beyond BOW workshops are offered by more than 20 states and provinces. These are single-topic workshops or advanced experiences in the subjects taught at Becoming an Outdoors-Woman workshops. You might have an all day canoe trip, a backpacking and camping weekend, or an actual pheasant hunt. BOW workshops are offered by fish and game agencies in 43 states and nine Canadian provinces.

Tentative topics for Beyond BOW workshops include: map and compass, bay fishing, sea kayaking, sporting clays, backpacking, outdoor survival skills, horseback riding, and a parent/child day. The dates for Beyond BOW events have not been set yet.

Garrett County Sheriff's Office not only investigates criminal complaints, automobile accidents, and citizen complaints in Garrett County, but is also responsible for a wide range of public awareness and education programs for all citizens. These include the DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program for grade and middle school students; the REALITY educational program for first-time juvenile offenders; the SALT (Seniors And Law enforcement Together) program for senior citizens; HotSpot Initiatives that direct state funding to critical crime areas; and the Domestic Violence Awareness Program, which provides educational programming regarding domestic violence as well as services to victims.

Complaints of crimes against persons: assaults — 137; child abuse — 38; sexual offenses — 28; rape — 1; domestic violence-related complaints — 85; domestic violence assaults — 50; arrests for domestic violence assaults — 30; arrests for violation of domestic violence orders — 15.

Complaints of crimes against property: thefts — 219; burglaries — 71; motor vehicle thefts — 14 (all but one vehicle recovered).

Alcohol/drug related offenses: DWI arrests — 128 (a 16 percent increase); controlled dangerous substance arrests — adults 39/juveniles 13; underage drinking citations — 36.

Highway safety related matters (in addition to DWI arrests): traffic citations issued — 561; motor vehicle accidents investigated — 345.

Arrest warrants and criminal summons served — 1,027; civil papers served from district and circuit courts — 3,112.

Garrett County Detention Center census: inmates incarcerated over 1999 — 956 (825 male, 140 female); inmates released over 1999 — 951 (812 male, 139 female); average daily inmate population — 46 (42 male, 4 female). The detention center's normal carrying capacity is 52 males and 8 females.

Other than the increases in overall complaints and DWI arrests mentioned above, Sheriff Sanders reported that the most marked differences over the past year included moderate increases in the number of burglaries and sexual offenses and a nine percent decrease in theft reports. There were 364 criminal complaints of a more serious nature that were referred to the Garrett Bureau of Investigation.

basic level. That is valuable information."

GCC has added a number of new theatre courses to its curriculum as a result of the agreement, and more are yet to be developed. West Virginia University has already signed on with the program, which means that the courses taken through OTT and GCC will transfer to WVU as completed hours. Sincell said Frostburg State University is also slated to sign on, although the final paperwork has not yet been completed.

These agreements are beneficial not only for full-time GCC enrollers, but also for high school students currently enrolled in Sincell's theatre courses. For example, four high school students have large roles in the theatre's upcoming production of Our Town. If they are enrolled as students at GCC, they can earn college hours for their work in the show.

"Kids 16 and older who take a few GCC theatre courses during high school, and then are students at GCC for two years and take advantage of this program will really have an advantage when they enter a four-year institution," Sincell said. "That's a lot of experience to have under your belt when you get to the bigger schools." Avery concurred.

"Just as an example," she said, "You can be at the biggest, best college in the country and be on their biggest, best football team, but you might spend all four years sitting on the bench. With this kind of program in our community, you can test the waters in all aspects of theatre, getting really involved in acting or design or directing, and get some solid experience in those areas. It opens the door to a lot of opportunity."

Sincell said he would like to perhaps pursue children's theatre through this connection, offering courses to students interested in specializing in that field.

"Creative dramatics for children is a growing field," he said. "It's a good area for students who don't necessarily want to pursue a performance career, but still want to be involved in theatre, and who lean toward the education field."

Both Avery and Sincell are interested in enhancing the scholarship program for the arts at GCC. Currently, the Aza Stanton Scholarship is the only true fine arts scholarship offered by the GCC Foundation. As the theatre department expands, the educators plan to work with the college to direct more scholarship money toward fine arts students.

"This agreement provides tremendous opportunity to our students," Sincell said. "Jane and I are excited about it, and we appreciate the great cooperation we have received from both Dr. Herman and the OTT board of directors."

Habitat Annual Meeting Held; Officers Noted

Garrett County Habitat for Humanity Inc. recently held its annual membership meeting, as well as the January board of directors' meeting, at Uno's restaurant, Deep Creek Lake. Five new board members were elected, and the officers for 2000 were installed.

Officers elected were Ann Hill, president; Robert Huebner, vice president; Virginia Grove, secretary; and Frank Custer, treasurer. The new board members are Shirley Brandes, Ken Hardesty, Jerry Merrick, Julia Sines, and Scott Winters.

"These new members represent a wide variety of experiences," stated new president Hill. "We are very pleased to welcome them as they lend their expertise to our endeavors of supplying decent, affordable housing to the citizens of Garrett County."

During the board of directors' meeting, Ida Maust, Chuck Wade, Tim Kruthaupt, Custer, Huebner, Sandi Winters, and Grove gave committee reports. Wayne R. Johnson, executive director, reported on current activities, such as preparing for Habitat's summer work camps that bring approximately 200 youth and adults to the county to help construct two new homes each year. He also reported on the progress of Sparkles and Sweets — the annual dessert and silent auction fundraiser. It will be held on Feb. 18 at 8 p.m. at the Will O' the Wisp.

Also attending the open annual meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harris, who were interested in how Habitat affiliates operate.

Outgoing president Cosette Harman said she has enjoyed working with the people of Habitat in Garrett County, the work groups who come in each year, and the owners of Habitat houses — previous and new.

"It has been a very satisfying experience and one that I shall treasure and enjoy reflecting on. Much has been accomplished and there is more to be done," Harman said.

HABITAT OFFICERS, NEW MEMBERS NAMED — Garrett County Habitat for Humanity Inc. recently elected officers for 2000, and inducted new members onto the board of directors. The elections took place at the organization's annual membership meeting. See story. Pictured above are the new officers. Commissioner Ernest Gregg agreed.

"We have a good relationship with the roads department employees right now," Gregg said. "We work well together and we will continue to work well together. I don't see that it's appropriate to take this action."

Bestpitch urged the officials to reconsider, assuring them that a resolution is not binding.

"You can dissolve a resolution with two-thirds of the vote, should it become something you don't want any more," Bestpitch said. "It simply lays out a set of ground rules that allow for fair labor practices. It gives the county employees the right to have a union."

"But they already have that right," Gregg said. Bestpitch said that this is true, but that he doesn't understand why the commissioners will not formally recognize the arrangement.

Beitzel contended that the resolution would do more than recognize the collective bargaining process, and that AFSCME's true purpose is to obtain legislative action making collective bargaining a mandate.

Bestpitch produced a document containing 1,000 signatures of local persons.

"In one week, we obtained 1,000 signatures of local people who think the commissioners should sign a resolution recognizing the people's right to have a union. We could have gotten more. I think this is significant," Bestpitch said.

Gregg was skeptical of the petition's statement, which he said was vague, basically stating that the signers felt employees have the right to form a union.

"What you're asking us to do and what these people signed are two different things," Gregg said. Bestpitch said he did not see it that way, and that if the commissioners again refused, his organization might look into putting the issue out for referendum.

The commissioners voted to not sign such a resolution, but Commissioner Fred Holliday repeated his motion of last year, again suggesting that the commissioners explore other forms of collective bargaining. The motion died for lack of a second, as it did one year ago.

Waning Blood Supply Prompts Red Cross To Issue Urgent Appeal

Oakland Bloodmobile Set For Friday, Feb. 4

This month's flu outbreak, which came on the heels of the holiday season, has dramatically impacted American Red Cross blood supplies, according to the Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross. Donations are urgently needed, as 27 of the ARC's 37 Blood Services regions have less than one day's supply of type O blood, the universal blood type.

Eligible volunteers are reminded that blood donations will be taken Friday, Feb. 4, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the St. Peter's Catholic Church hall in Oakland. While all blood types are needed, type O blood donors are specifically asked to step forward because type O blood can be safely transfused in emergency situations to most patients. To donate blood, one must be healthy, at least 17 years old, and weigh 105 pounds or more.

Additional scheduled blood drives in Garrett County are set for Friday, March 3, from noon to 6 p.m. at American Legion Post #71 in Oakland, and Monday, March 6, from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the Grantsville fire hall. Red Cross spokesperson Kim Gülck said additional blood drives may be slated in the interim if demand continues to persist.

The Red Cross also strongly encourages all eligible donors to schedule an appointment to give blood at its Western Potomac Chapter office, 400 Cumberland Street, Cumberland, where blood is collected each Wednesday from noon to 6 p.m. Appointments are requested, and may be made by calling 1-800-54BLOOD. Scheduled appointments help staff provide high quality service to donors and make the blood donation process as quick and efficient as possible.

Nationwide, Red Cross Blood Services regions have seen this season's flu outbreak impact blood collections. December's donor turnout was strong, but supplies declined over the holidays (a time when blood collections traditionally decline), and the flu is keeping many blood donors from helping replenish the nation's blood supply.

Volunteer blood donations help patients being treated for accidents, routine surgeries, and serious diseases such as cancer, heart disease, and hemophilia. Despite the fact that giving blood is easy, safe, and takes less than an hour, only 5 percent of eligible Americans donate blood.

Grantsville Heritage Sign Project Nearing Completion

Residents and visitors in Granstville will soon be able to walk down Main Street or stop in the town park to learn about life in the area in the 1700-1800s. In the near future, illustrated historic information signs will be installed, chronicaling life and commerce along the National Road and the culture of hospitality that was generated along the route.

The Greater Grantsville Business Association's project to provide historic information signs in town is nearing completion. The year-long endeavor, spearheaded by GGBA president Lindy Moebs, is funded in part by grants from the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) and Preservation Maryland.

The signs, four in all, will be placed at Grantsville Community Park and in front of the Casselman Inn. Two of the panels depict the "Gateway" theme, recounting the history of travel on Nemacolin's Path, Braddock's Road, and the National Road, and the settlements along these routes from the Native American villages, to Little Crossings and Grantsville.

The other two panels reflect the community's heritage of hospitality, which was extended at local inns, hotels, and taverns such as the Schultz Inn, the National Hotel, the Drovers' Inn, and Little Crossings Inn. "I hope this history will whet people's appetites to read and learn more. We have such good resources in our area," Moebs commented.

A Cumberland company is manufacturing the signs for GGBA. "General Graphics Inc. makes these interpretive fiberglass emboss panels for the National Park Service. Its signs are at the Grand Can-yon, and in Harper's Ferry and Yosemite, for instance," Moebs said.

Each of the four panels to be installed in Grantsville measures 2 feet by 3 feet and will be mounted in metal frames on metal bases, made by a firm in Hagerstown. "We've got a quality product here," Moebs said.

The information and graphics on the panels were gleaned from many local and regional historians, artists, and researchers. "Jack Caruthers was invaluable and I am so grateful for his help. He has been studying history all his life, but for this project he went back to the books. He knows where to look for information and one time even drove up to Fort Necessity because he knew there was a resource there."

A Baltimore area resident also supplied Moebs with data. "Sarah Stanton Jarrett had done a great amount of primary research, and she sent me a lot of material," she stated.

Others who provided the facts and "flavor" of the early years on the National Road were Alta Schrock, Maxine Broadwater, and John Grant. "They were so helpful and willing," Moebs noted.

Among the graphics reproduced on the four panels are photographs by Leo Beachy and drawings by Peggy Nixon and Edward Williams.

Once Moebs had amassed the historic information, the "daunting" task of selecting, writing, and editing began. "Kelly Durst did a lot of review and editing so that the language would be clear and concise. As a native of the Grantsville area, she has a special interest in this history," she reported.

Looking back over the project, Moebs credited Al Feldstein of the Maryland Office of Planning for getting it started. "This project wouldn't have happened without him. I felt that the grant part would be the most difficult, but Al's office made it easy. He seems to have a real love of history and wanted to see this happen," she recalled.

Moebs attended last week's Grantsville town meeting to report on the sign project. She showed the mayor and council members to-scale plans for the signs. "I think they were really pleased. They have been very supportive. I really appreciate that," she said. The mayor and council agreed to contribute matching funds for the project totaling $1,118.

"This is a $12,000 project. Not all of it was cash — part is value assigned for 200 hours in labor, provided by 16 different people. ARC covered $6,000, Preservation Maryland paid $1,000, and the rest was cash that GGBA would need to match. The town council came foward with the offer to cover that. We are very grateful," she said.

and the work ethic is incredible here. And the county officials have gone more than out of their way to meet our needs."

Palmieri expects his company to employ approximately 30 people at the new site. Various die cast items are made by the company, such as waffle irons. Palmieri said the companies for whom Palmer Manufacturing makes these items are "rock solid" and are agreeable to the company's relocation.

Recruiting, screening, and hiring will reportedly begin in the near future. Persons interested in employment opportunities with C. Palmer Die Casting Inc. should contact the Oakland Office of the Maryland Job Service at 301-334-3972, extension 301.

Spruce Forest Sets Cherries & Chill Festival For Feb.

Spruce Forest Artisan Village will mark the birthdays of two former presidents — Abraham Lincoln and George Washington — with its first Cherries & Chill Festival, Friday, Feb. 11, and Saturday, Feb. 12, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

Friday's activities include complimentary refreshments and door prizes and will feature the craftsmanship of the village artisans inside heated log cabins. Artisans on hand to share the traditions of their crafts and offer their works for sale will be: John Daugherty, soap maker; Lynn Lais, potter; Meriam Brode, basketweaver; Gary Yoder, bird sculptor; Connie Stark, teddy bear artist and herb specialist; Jim and Mary Ann Cummings, stained glass; Peggy Nixon, slate painter; and Ann Jones, weaver. Some artisans may be unavailable in the event of inclement weather.

On Saturday, in addition to the artisans at work, the village will hold a variety of activities to celebrate the presidents' birthdays. In the morning at 10 a.m. inside the heated Village Church, a Cherry Desserts Contest will be held, with local "desserts connoisseurs" taking on the judging. Judges confirmed to date are Fred Holliday, Garrett County commissioner; Ken Wishnick, president of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce; and Debbie Yommer, kitchen supervisor of Penn Alps Restaurant.

Persons interested in entering the contest in one or more of the six categories should contact Village administrator Trish Morgan for more information. There is no cost to enter, and ribbons, certificates, and prizes will be awarded. All desserts may be tasted when the doors open to the public at 11 a.m., and the category winners' desserts will be auctioned to benefit the nonprofit Artisan Village. Children's activities begin at noon with a cherry hunt with prizes awarded, coloring contest, snow-building contests, sing-a-long and photos with Abraham Lincoln (bring your own camera), George Washington tales and legends of the cherry tree by storyteller Jack Caruthers, and a birthday party for the presidents. All activities are free of charge and are open to all.

The neighboring Penn Alps Restaurant will have its regular Friday and Saturday evening all-you-care-to-eat hand-carved prime rib and steamed shrimp buffet from 4 to 8 p.m., and on Saturday will offer a Cherries & Chill Saturday brunch from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. featuring harpist Lynne Barnes of LaVale. The brunch will feature a variety of colonial dishes on the buffet such as slippery pot stew, ham and cabbage, dried corn, and a large variety of cherry desserts. Barnes will also perform Saturday evening from 5 to 8 p.m.

"This joint venture between Penn Alps, Spruce Forest, and the Maryland and Garrett County arts councils offers a wonderful two days to spend with your family or your sweetheart," said Morgan. For more information about Cherries & Chill and some local accommodations at which to stay for the Valentine's Day weekend, interested persons may call Morgan at 301-895-3332 or contact her at tmorgan@spruceforest.org.

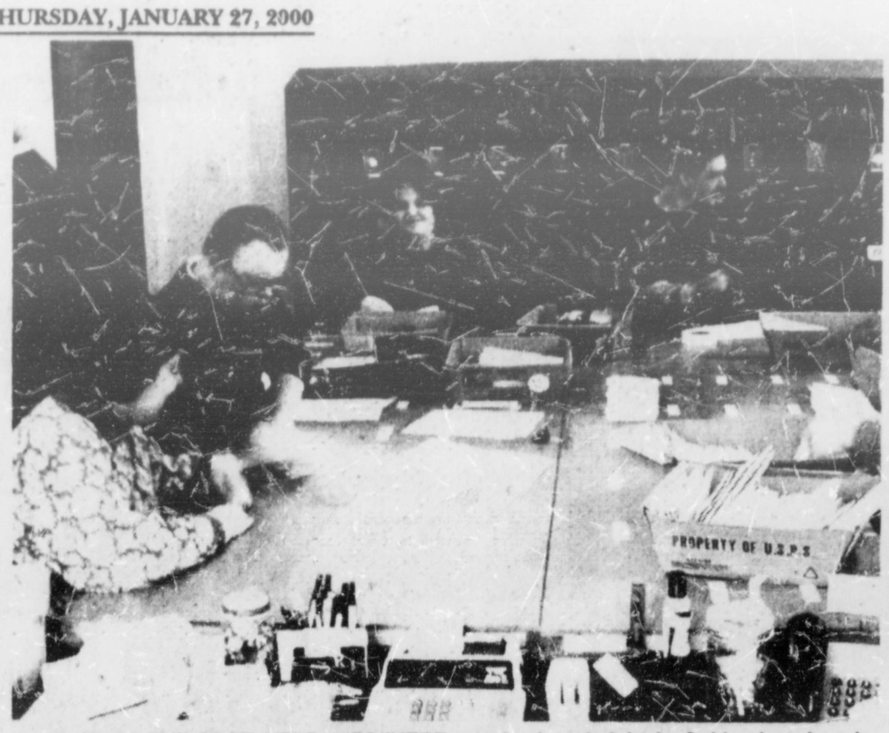
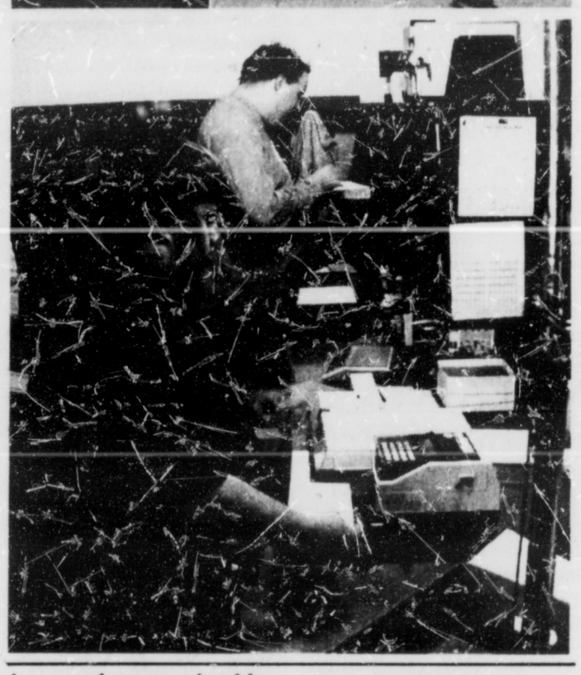
Access To Tech Continues To Improve In Md. Public Schools

Maryland's public schools continue to make steady progress in providing students and teachers with improved access to technology, although challenges remain, according to data released yesterday by the Maryland Business Roundtable for Education (MBRT).

MBRT executive director June Streckfus reports that the student-to-computer ratio in the state's elementary and secondary schools continues to improve, declining from 8-to-1 in 1995 to 6-to-1 today.

The survey also shows that the ratio of students to high- or mid-capability computers has fallen from 12-to-1 to 8-to-1 in Maryland. The national average is 9-to-1. "Our goal, ultimately, is for the ratio of students to high capability computers to be 5-to-1, and clearly we are moving in the right direction," Streckfus said.





SOME OF THE BEST HELP ANYWHERE can be found right in Oakland at Appalachian Crossroads, according to Val Teagarden of First United Bank & Trust. The members of Appalachian Crossroads have been employed by the bank for several years, taking care of a variety of tasks, such as the daily sorting and delivery of mail, snow shoveling and ice removal, and the upkeep of the grounds (yard work, plant care, etc.) "We are so pleased with Appalachian Crossroads," Teagarden said. "They are great to work with. They're reliable, they're responsible — they get the job done right." Teagarden added that the fee scale is very reasonable, and that the workers are willing to do a variety of tasks. "It's very simple to work out an agreement with them, and we highly recommend them to any local business or organization looking for help. It's good for them, it's good for us, it's good for the whole community," she said. Scott Hollingsworth, a staff member of the organization, said 24 people with disabilities are employed to sort mail for 42 customers, including First United. He expressed gratitude to the bank for the large contract with Appalachian Crossroads, and also to Ken Perrin of the Oakland Post Office, who has been very helpful, he said. "Our community is great — so supportive and warm. Our people processed over 1 million pieces of mail last year," Hollingsworth said. In all, Appalachian Crossroads employs nearly 70 people with disabilities in a variety of part-time and full-time positions, with a payroll last year totalling nearly $115,000. Persons interested in hiring the group for any sort of job may contact Doris Bittinger at 301-334-8449, ext. 132. Pictured above, from left, as they sort mail are Laurie Bittinger, Phillip Wotring, Robin Fife, and Eric Friend. Shown above right is Roger Uber as he accomplishes his work at the bank. Technology include improved funding for teacher training in the use of technology and Internet connections for every classroom in the state's public schools.

The percentage of classrooms connected to the Internet now stands at 58 percent, up from 23 percent statewide in 1997, according to the new survey. Despite that marked increase, the data indicate that several jurisdictions continue to lag behind, notably Baltimore City (with only 22 percent of classrooms connected to the Internet) and Harford County (at only 17 percent).

Survey findings also show that 99 percent of the state's public schools now have Internet access from at least one location. That compares to 43 percent when the first technology survey was conducted in 1995. In addition, 90 percent of Maryland's public schools now possess a direct, full-time Internet connection.

"Student learning is always the primary issue. When implemented effectively, technology can help to support achievement by enabling learners to be independent, competent, and creative thinkers, as well as effective communicators and problem-solvers," said Robert Marshall, president of AWS and chair of MBRT's Committee on Technology in Education.

State Superintendent of Schools Dr. Nancy S. Grasmick agreed, adding, "Today's students are expected not only to achieve academically, but also to be able to use the latest technology in the course of learning. Our target is to assure that every student in Maryland has that high level of access to technology in the classroom."

Like preceding surveys in 1995 and 1997, the new statistics on technology in public schools were gathered jointly by the Maryland State Department of Education and MBRT, a coalition of major Maryland businesses committed to supporting educational reform and improving student achievement in the state.

Information for the survey was collected in October and November 1999, with virtually every public school in Maryland participating. Survey results are posted for the first time online. Data can be accessed through http://msde.aws.com.

"The on-line inventory tool provides the ability to collect, analyze, and report data more effectively. We can now look at aggregated state data, district-by-district data, and even school-by-school data, while providing parents, teachers, and other stakeholders in the education process with immediate access to current information," Marshall said. Maryland is one of only a handful of states nationwide to have an on-line technology inventory.

While the new data demonstrate that Maryland is making substantial gains in other key areas — including the number of classrooms with at least one computer available for student or teacher use (now 68 percent and 70 percent, respectively, statewide) and the number of classrooms with television reception (70 percent across Maryland) — it also calls attention to the significant disparity between the state's "haves" and "have nots."

Survey data show, for example, that while the percentage of classrooms with at least one computer available for teacher use was 93 percent in Montgomery County and 77 percent in Baltimore and Harford counties, it was only 47 percent in Baltimore City.

The ratio of students to computers presented an even more slanted picture. While nine of the state's jurisdictions reported a ratio of students to high- or mid-capacity computers of 6-to-1 or better, Baltimore City's ratio was 11-to-1. There were even greater disparities within individual jurisdictions.

"The data point to the so-called digital divide that exists in Maryland's schools, despite best efforts to provide all students with access to technology," noted Streckfus. "While we have made progress, we clearly have a long way to go in order to ensure that all students, from the wealthiest to those living in poverty, are able to use the latest technology resources as a key component of the learning process."

MBRT anticipates that the availability of school technology data on-line will better enable Maryland to identify areas of greatest need and to target federal, state, local, and corporate dollars for those areas.

Plans call for the Committee on Technology in Education to continue analyzing the data collected for the technology inventory, using its findings as a planning tool in identifying future areas of concern. The committee and MBRT also will use the data as the basis for a study they are planning on the impact of technology on student learning.

MAGNOLIA

Rated R - Running Time: 2:59 - Released 12/17/99

If any film could be described as "art for art's sake," it would be Paul Thomas Anderson's Magnolia. Beautifully produced, intensely acted, full of stunning imagery and oblique metaphor, Magnolia is a powerful statement of writer/director/producer Anderson's artistic vision. Whatever that vision is. At three hours long, one would expect the film to give a clearer idea of the point he is trying to make, but I daresay any two viewers could come away with radically different interpretations.

It has become a popular trend in films to tell several seemingly unrelated stories at once, zipping back and forth between them like a TV viewer clicking his remote. This style can be seen in films like Playing By Heart, Go, and just about anything by Quentin Tarantino. But in those films, the stories eventually tie together. In Magnolia, their connection is tangential at best.

First, there's elderly TV producer Earl Partridge (Jason Robards), who is dying of cancer and lapses in and out of consciousness while his selfless nurse (Philip Seymour Hoffman) and his guilt-ridden, unfaithful wife (Julianne Moore) try their best to make him comfortable. During one of his lucid moments, Jimmy asks to see his estranged son, Frank T.J. Mackey (Tom Cruise). Frank is the leader of Seduce & Destroy, a sexist self-help program designed to teach men to sexually and psychologically control women. Frank leads his rallies like Hitler in those old newsreels, but when he finally does reunite with his dying father, the sparks really fly.

In story number two, a lonely police officer named Jim Kurring (John C. Reilly) falls in love with a woman who plays her stereo too loudly and snorts huge amounts of cocaine. Claudia (Melora Walters), who appreciates the attention from Jim but knows her habit would never allow them to form a relationship, is the daughter (also estranged) of TV personality Jimmy Gator (Philip Baker Hall). Jimmy emcees the quiz show What Do Kids Know?, in which children are matched up against adults in a trivia challenge. Jimmy has just found that he too is dying of cancer, but must continue to host a show in which a smart, browbeaten kid (Jeremy Blackman) is pressured to lead his team to victory despite the fact that he urgently has to use the bathroom.

Story number three is about former quiz kid Donnie Smith (William H. Macy), who became famous as a youngster on What Do Kids Know? but has hit hard times. His attempt to be taken seriously by a male bartender whom he is attracted to is dashed by the bitter derision of a suave socialite named, of all things, Thurston Howell (played not by Jim Backus but Laugh-In vet Henry Gibson). Unable to stand the rejection, Donnie goes off the deep end and embarks on a desperate plan.

These stories all roll toward their own separate crescendos apparently unaware of each other, with lots of pathos and melodrama. Then an event happens that, while it doesn't really tie them together, definitely affects them all. It also takes the film fully into the realm of surrealism. I won't reveal what it is, but let's just say you'd better have a very sturdy umbrella.

I get the impression that Anderson is attempting to emulate Oliver Stone here. His film is heavy on the art, heavy on the symbolism, and light on credibility. It begins and ends with historic tales of bizarre events that seem too coincidental to be true, but with the claim that it all actually happened. His actors put forth some very powerful performances, especially Cruise, Reilly, Macy, Hoffman, and Moore. Any one of these stories could be its own movie; the characters I've mentioned represent only a fraction of the multitude of speaking parts in the film.

Music is as much a presence as any person in Magnolia; there are times when it is nearly impossible to hear the dialogue because of the pounding chords and vocals washing over the proceedings. This trend starts at the film's opening, with a 20-minute version of Three Dog Night's "One," by Aimee Mann, and reaches its climax when all the characters are at one point seen singing the same song. The music involving Cruise's emotional reunion with his father is particularly affecting. Or annoying, depending on how you look at it.

Is it art raised to its highest form, or simply the pretentious masturbation of a wealthy director who has found the backing to put it on the screen? That's up to the viewer to decide, but in any case, Magnolia is certainly fascinating. ★★★★

THE HURRICANE

Rated R - Running Time: 2:35 - Released 12/29/99

The Hurricane is based on the true story of Rubin "Hurricane" Carter, a prizefighter who was convicted in 1966 of a murder he didn't commit, and spent 19 years in prison before being exonerated and released. The fact that the film's screenplay is taken from Carter's own autobiographical novel and another novel by two of his closest supporters is a good explanation of why it is so melodramatic; Carter's story is certainly a moving one, but it might seem a bit less preachy if not told by its main characters. At times the injustice is a little too much to believe. However, the talent of Denzel Washington helps to bring this film up to the credibility level it needs to succeed. Also excellent is Vicellous Reon Shannon as the teenager who helped lead "Hurricane" to freedom. Director Norman Jewison leads these two actors to a relationship that is moving and yet believable; his adroit style helps overcome the weaknesses of the screenplay.

The story of "Hurricane" Carter is one of those classic sagas in the annals of American race relations. This up-and-coming fighter, on his way to becoming one of the greats of the sport, was cut down in his prime by a murder conviction that was eventually shown to be racially motivated and full of discrepancies and altered evidence. A pair of black men were seen fleeing the scene of a fatal shooting in a bar in Paterson, New Jersey. Shortly thereafter, Carter (Washington) and another man, John Artis (Garland Whitt), were picked up and charged with the murders. Soon they were serving three life sentences apiece in Trenton State Prison, and despite numerous appeals and a second jury trial in 1976, they were unable to turn the verdict around. After that, Carter's marriage to his wife Mae Thelma (Debbi Morgan) broke up, and he found himself truly alone.

Just when he was about to give up hope and resign himself to spending the rest of his days behind bars, he received a letter from a young man named Lesra Martin (Shannon), who had read Carter's novel and become obsessed with the fighter's story. Lesra was a black American teenager living in Canada with a group of activists who had taken him under their collective wing and were teaching him to read and preparing him for college. Soon Lesra's interest in the Carter case had spread to his adult friends Sam (Liev Schreiber), Lisa (Deborah Unger), and Terry (John Hannah), and the group decided to move to New Jersey to research the case and investigate another possible re-trial. Collaborating with Carter's defense attorneys, Myron Bedlock (David Paymer) and Leon Friedman (Harris Yulin), they eventually took the case to the U.S. Supreme Court, where its previous decision was overturned by Judge H. Lee Sorokin (Rod Steiger) and Carter was released.

The most noticeable flaw in The Hurricane's script that holds it back from being a total success is the caricaturish portrayal of Carter's nemesis, Detective Vincent Della Pesca (Dan Hedaya). Della Pesca's open hostility toward Carter and his overt manipulation of evidence and witnesses takes away from the credibility of the story. In the final credits, there is a statement that "while this film is based on a true story, some characters have been composited or invented, and some events fictionalized." I daresay Hedaya's character is an all too clear indication of this alteration of the facts. Otherwise, The Hurricane is a thoughtful, moving story, and a triumph for Jewison, Washington, and Carter himself. ★★★★ fic, the police reported. The suspect then left I-68 at Vocke Road, ran a stop light and returned to I-68. The suspect then allegedly cut off a tractor trailer, exited at Queen City Drive, and struck a 1987 Cadillac, driven by John D. Kelly, Cumberland. Kelly was not injured. The suspect then reportedly fled the scene in the truck.

The suspect turned onto Park Street and then onto William Street, where the state trooper said he lost sight of him and discontinued the pursuit. The trooper said he then spotted the suspect headed down Maryland Avenue, about one-half mile away. He notified a state fire marshal, who was in the area, and both went down Maryland Avenue, trying to locate the suspect.

At Virginia Avenue and Browning Street, officials reported they found that the suspect had struck a telephone pole, a fire hydrant, several signs, and a stone wall.

Emergency personnel were summoned, and both occupants of the truck were transported to the hospital. Troopers said they found a soda can with suspected heroin residue and several hypodermic needles in the possession of the female suspect.

The investigation continues.

Faces Charges

Klein's Sales and Service in Berlin, Pa. Both incidents occurred on January 4, when Beal allegedly used starter checks from recently opened bank accounts to purchase the equipment.

Youmans also reportedly sold a Honda 5,000 watt generator, valued at $2,650, that had been stolen from Oakland's Underwood Rentals in December. That generator and two other Stihl chain saws were sold by Youmans to individuals in the Grantsville area, GBI investigators concluded. Those two chain saws were valued at $369 each and had been stolen from Leonard's Saw Shop of Addison, Pa., on December 29.

GBI detectives are requesting public assistance as they continue to investigate the theft scheme and additional stolen property they believe Youmans brought from Beal and then re-sold. The investigation is focusing on recovering stolen property and not on the prosecution of individuals who may happen to possess that property.

Any persons who may have purchased such property are asked to contact the GBI at 301-334-1909 or 301-334-1911.

Customers Count For Students In PIVOT Program

As the first semester of the school year ended, 13 students from Northern and Southern high schools, participating in the PIVOT program, concluded their workplace experience, in which they had been asked to practice customer service skills learned in the classroom.

The PIVOT (Partners In Valuable Ongoing Training) course option provides a pro-active approach to preparing students to make the transition from classroom to work place. Classroom instruction for the PIVOT course focuses students' attention on the "people" skills that will be needed to function effectively as employees.

"No matter what kind of job you have, customer service skills can help you be more successful," teacher Sandi Flockhart stressed to the students. She pointed out that co-workers are customers, too, and should be treated with the same courtesies as a paying customer.

PIVOT PREPARES EMPLOYEES - Students in the PIVOT (Partnership In Valuable Ongoing Training) completed their classroom course in customer service and their semester work experience in the community. Businesses where the students work cooperate with schools by evaluating the student's job performance as part of the course grade. In the photo from left in the back are Eric Shaffer, Stephen Smith, Tony Fike, Mike Murphy, and Brian Rayburn. Seated are Morgan Rodeheaver, Jessica DeWitt, Kelley Fratz, Heather Umbel, and Becca Harvey. In front is Jessica Bittinger. Not available for the picture were Michelle Warnick and Joey Otto.

The semester's syllabus covered business organization and structure, profit and loss, and adding value through service. Work readiness skills addressed were attendance and punctuality, appearance, honesty, manners, and work attitude. Business communication skills were reviewed, such as reading, writing, listening, and speaking.

Flockhart focused on skills that would help the students deal with various types of customers they may encounter. She also talked about meeting a customer's needs.

Armed with insights on positive interactions, the students departed for worksites as varied as the students' individual interests.

Mike Murphy, SHS, took a previously indentified interest in a new direction. "I went to work at Quality Marine. I already knew I liked automotive work and this gave me a chance to learn something new. I liked this too," he said. Mike added that the classroom preparation had taught him some very useful skills.

Michelle Warnick, NHS, found that her PIVOT course led her right into employment. "I would suggest this course to everybody. It is really a good experience and now I am employed at First United Bank and Trust — from taking this course," she said.

Morgan Rodeheaver, NHS, joined the workforce at Wisp, in the food and beverage service area. She had previously worked for Wisp serving banquets, but this was a new opportunity for her. "I want to work in this field in the future and by working this semester in the office, I had the chance to learn more about the business side of it and what goes on," she said. Of the classroom side of the course she said, "I learned from and enjoyed this class. I would recommend it for future seniors."

NHS student Jessica DeWitt said she not only learned skills in the PIVOT class but also found it to be "a good friendship building experience." Pursuing her interest in psychology and human interaction, Jessica spent the semester working at the Dove Center, Garrett County's resource center for domestic abuse and sexual assault.

Brian Rayburn, SHS, said he liked both the classroom and his work experience at Quality Marine. "Sandi's customer service class was fun. We learned a lot about how to communicate and get along with others," he said. Brian said that learning to diagnose a problem with a boat motor was very useful. "And we learned to fix them without a lot of hassle," he concluded.

Jessica Bittinger, SHS, worked at Potomac Engineering and Surveying during the semester. The PIVOT course gave her some worksite skills. "The customer service class was a very good class to take to prepare for working with customers on a daily basis," she said.

NHS senior Stephen Smith gave a double endorsement for both the class and his work experience at Quality Marine. As a boat owner, he would like to work for the Department of Natural Resources. "I learned a lot. I can effectively service an outboard motor as well as rig up a boat for use," he stated.

Eric Shaffer, SHS, also worked at Quality Marine and said he found it to be a good and valuable experience, though his primary direction is toward auto mechanics. "I appreciated this opportunity. I learned a lot about the maintenance and repair of boats," he said.

Becca Harvey, SHS, worked at the Wisp Hotel. She said she appreciated the chance to have a change from the school routine and that she thoroughly enjoyed Flockhart's course. "The class was more fun than any other high school class," she remarked.

Kelley Fratz, NHS, has her sights set on a law career, she said. "This class offers a god way for students to get the experience they need to decide what they want to study in college. I recommend this class for any seniors who can fit it in their schedules."

SHS senior Tony Fike said he found that the class helped him to be more effective on the job. Working at Subway in Oakland put him in constant contact with people. "This class really helped me learn to deal with the public. My first choice career would be doing something with people," he said.

Heather Umbel, NHS, worked at Burger King. It helped her define her future goals in business. Heather would like to operate her own business, she explained—perhaps a waterfront club.

NHS student Joey Otto said he appreciated the scope of the PIVOT class. "I learned more in this class than in any class I have ever taken," he stated, adding that he would recommend it to anyone.

What do we do when we are troubled or when a situation has us stumped? Usually we go into action to resolve the situation...even if we don't really know what to do. After all...isn't doing something better than nothing?

In a way, yes; if doing something is first asking God for His judgement in the situation. First, we must stop fretting and complaining and just listen to our Heavenly Father's leading. Consider what God said to Job... "Give heed, O Job, listen to me; be silent and I will speak...listen to Me and I will teach you wisdom." (Job 33:31-33)

We need to meditate with God each day to keep a peaceful composure. On our Sabbath we have the opportunity to commune with God in His House where we may feel even closer to Him as we learn of God's will for our lives. Worship each week. "Be still, and know that I am God." (Psalm 46:10)

TAKING THE WHOLE PRESCRIPTION

Don't stop taking a prescription drug after you begin to feel better unless your physician approves. This is most important. Often anything less than the full course of treatment may prevent the medicine from completely correcting the condition.

For example, not taking the prescribed amount of an antibiotic allows either the "bug" or your body to become resistant to it. Not enough of the required medicine may be worse than none at all.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

BEWARE OF THE EVIL EYE!

January 30, 2000

Background Scripture:
Matthew 19:16 through 20:16.
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 20:20-28.

The parable of the laborers in the vineyard is one of those gospel passages that has perplexed some and agitated others. Some people have seized upon it to claim that it sanctions an employer doing whatever he wants with his property. They find it comforting for him to be saying: "Am I not allowed to do what I choose with what belongs to me?" It is easy to see why this should become the favorite Bible verse for some people.

Others are equally incensed because it purportedly undercuts the premise of equal pay for equal work. Women and ethnic workers already feel that they are victims of wage discrimination and are shocked that Jesus would tell a story that appears to justify the entrepreneur's right to pay anyone what he or she wishes.

The problem, however, is not with the parable but with the interpretation that people have placed upon it. When I was a boy I loved to put together picture puzzles, but sometimes I tried to force pieces into spaces where they did not quite fit. People do that with the Bible, too, forcing interpretations where they just don't fit.

A Heavly Household

Jesus was not talking about an earthly householder, but a heavenly one. In our society much is based upon merit—being paid on the basis of productivity, time and effort. From that standpoint, the parable would appear to be unjust, someone getting the same pay for a lot less time and effort. But when we come to God's salvation, grace, not merit, is the basis. In the kingdom of God we are not claiming just wages but God's mercy. God forbid that he should give us what we have coming to us!

We may think that it is unjust for God to give salvation to the person who, after a lifetime of godlessness, becomes "converted" at the last minute. According to human judgment, it is unjust. That's the way the brother of the Prodigal Son felt. He had stayed home and worked hard for his father, while his brother went off into the far country and squandered his inheritance is licentious living. Now, however, the Prodigal Son returns and his father throws a party for him in celebration! Where's the justice in that?

When Tomorrow Starts Without Me

When tomorrow starts without me, and I am not there to see;
If the sun should rise and find your eyes all filled with tears for me;
I wish so much you wouldn't cry the way you did today,
While thinking of the many things, we didn't get to say.

I know how much you love me, as much as I love you.
And each time that you think of me, I know you'll miss me too;
But when tomorrow starts without me, please try to understand,
That an Angel came and called my nome and took me by the hand
And said my place was ready in Heaven far above,
And that I'd have to leave behind all those I dearly love.

But as I turned to walk away, a tear fell from my eye.
For all life, I'd always thought I didn't want to die.
I had so much to live for, so much yet to do,
It seemed almost impossible that I was leaving you.

I thought of all the yesterdays, the good ones and the bad.
I thought of all the love we shared, and all the fun we had.

If I could relive yesterday, just ever for awhile,
I'd say goodbye and kiss you and maybe see you smile.

But then I fully realized that this could never be,
For emptiness and memories would take the place of me.

And when I thought of worldly things, I might miss come tomorrow,
I thought of you, and when I did my heart was filled with sorrow.

But when I walked through heaven's gate I felt so much at home.
When God looked down and smiled at me from His great golden throne.

He said, "This is eternity, and all I've promised you."
Today life on earth is past, but here it starts anew.
I promise no tomorrow, but today will always last,
And since each day's the same day, there is no longing for the past.

But you have been so faithful, so trusting and so true.
Though there were times you did some things you knew you shouldn't do,
But you have been forgiven and now at last you're free.
So won't you take my hand and share my life with me?

So when tomorrow starts without me, don't think we're far apart,
For every time you think of me, I'm right here in your heart.

Md. Center For Agro-Ecology Aims To Preserve Open Space

Former Maryland Governor Harry R. Hughes has announced the formation of a major new Maryland nonprofit corporation dedicated to the further enhancement and preservation of Maryland's farms, forests, and other open spaces.

"The formation of the Maryland Center for Agro-Ecology Inc. is the culmination of nearly a year of cooperative discussions between the University of Maryland College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, and leaders of agricultural, business, educational, environmental, government, and other diverse interest groups throughout Maryland," said Hughes, president of the new center. "Joined today by additional state, federal, and private partners, we look forward to launching a variety of research, education and public policy initiatives that enhance the open space-based industries that are so aesthetically and economically valuable to Maryland."

Hughes said that he and the 15 other state residents serving on the center's board of directors are united by a common interest in stimulating new cooperative approaches for preserving Maryland's farms, forests and other open space-based industries.

The center has awarded its first grant to the American Farmland Trust. The $75,000 grant will support a survey and needs assessment of Maryland agriculture, forestry, natural resource and land preservation issues that might best benefit from the attention and concerted efforts of this diverse coalition.

The center has also signed a memorandum of understanding with the University of Maryland's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. The agreement will allow the college to continue providing the center with start-up program support funding, staff assistance, and office space at the Wye Research and Education Center in Queenstown.

A national search has been slated to recruit an executive director who will oversee all center operations, Hughes added.

Farming In Maryland.....

Women Make "Giant Strides" In Agriculture

During the past 100 years, women have made giant strides in the agricultural and business worlds. That's the message delivered by American Farm Bureau Women's Committee chair Linda Reinhardt during last week's women's conference at the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF) annual meeting in Houston, Texas.

"One of the crowning achievements of the past century has been the advancement of women in the world, whether it be in business, science, politics, or agriculture," said Reinhardt. "Women in agriculture have become full-fledged business partners involved in the legislative, economic, and social aspects of rural America."

A louder voice in the policy process may have been the most effective gain for women, according to the Kansas native. More women are being elected to Congress, statehouses, and other branches of government. And, women are getting more involved in Farm Bureau.

"In many parts of the world, women are gaining a stronger voice in the policy process, and they are directly involved in the decisions that affect their country, their economy, and their future," said Reinhardt.

Reinhardt touted the accomplishments of her committee from the past year. She called the celebration of Food Check-Out Day one of the more obvious successes of her committee's activities. Food Check-Out Day commemorates the role farmers play in the affordability of food in America. Last year, the national celebration was held in Phoenix, Ariz.

"Food Check-Out Day has to be one of the most visible programs," said Reinhardt. "When you have 42 states commemorating the day in which the average American has earned enough income to pay for his or her food supply for the entire year, that's visibility."

Reinhardt reminded the conference that Food Check-Out Day will once again be marked on Feb. 9, with the national celebration being held in Nashville, Tenn.

The women's chair also discussed her participation at the World Trade Organization Ministerial meeting in Seattle late last year. Despite the negative media coverage and riots, Reinhardt believes the meetings proved productive.

"The perceived failure of the Seattle talks was very frustrating and disappointing," she said. "However, negotiations of this type are very complicated and sometimes take a long time to reach a resolution.

"Much more was accomplished, such as the preamble of the agreement on agriculture. I have faith that the Seattle meeting was just the beginning, and what comes in the next three years will be helpful to agriculture."

Reinhardt challenged Farm Bureau women to get involved, to take an active role in working on the issues that impact rural America.

"As we embark on the new century, we will be faced with many challenges," Reinhardt said. "Let us meet these challenges as opportunities."

U.S. Agricultural Outlook Predicted By USDA, NASS

The following estimates, forecasts, and projections are mainly taken from recent publications of the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS), Economic Research Service, and the World Agricultural Outlook Board of the USDA.

•Corn — The November forecast for 1999 corn production is 9.54 billion bushels, up 1% from the last forecast but down 2% from last year. Based on November 1 conditions, yields are expected to average 134.5 bushels per acre, up 1.0 bushel from last month and 0.1 bushel from a year ago. Ideal weather conditions allowed rapid harvest progress and limited harvest loss throughout the Corn Belt. A market year average price between $1.60 and $2.00 a bushel is expected, compared to $1.95 for the 1998 crop.

•Soybeans — The 1999 soybean crop is forecast at 2.67 billion bushels, down 1% from October 1 and 2% below last year's record of 2.74 billion bushels. The yield forecast, at 36.7 bushels per acre, decreased 0.3 bushel from last month and is 2.2 bushels below the 1998 final yield. The projected market year average price is between $4.60 and $5.10 per bushel, which compared to $5.00 for the 1998 crop year.

•Cattle — November 1 cattle on feed in the U.S. feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more totaled 11.46 million head, up 6% from a year earlier. October placements were up 9% from the previous year. Marketings of fed cattle were 3% above 1998.

At mid-November, prices for choice steers (Nebraska direct, 1,100-1,300 pounds) averaged $70 per cwt. Feeder steer prices (Oklahoma City, medium-large frame, 750-800 pounds) were around $85 per cwt in mid-November, up $5 from mid October.

•Hogs — Hog slaughter during October was down 4% from last year. During the first two weeks of November, slaughter was running about 1-2% below a year ago. Prices at mid-November (Iowa-Southern Minnesota direct, 230-250 pounds) were around $37 per cwt, up $2 from mid-October. First quarter prices are expected to average $32 per cwt.

•Dairy — October milk production was up 4.3% from the previous year. Production per cow increased 3.5%; however, the number of cows was up only slightly from October 1998. The October Basic Formula Price (BFP) was $11.49 per cwt, down $4.77 from September. Cheddar cheese prices (U.S. 40-pound blocks, wholesale) decreased 3.2 cents per pound for the first week of November and 4.2 cents during the second week. This suggests that the November BFP will be down. During September, total cheese production was 9.5% above the previous year, butter production was up 15.5%, and nonfat dry milk production was up 42.7%. Sheep slaughter for October totaled 305 thousand head, down 6% from last year. The average live weight was 230 pounds, up 3 pounds from a year ago.

•Poultry — U.S. table egg production totaled 6.03 billion during October, up 5% from 1998. Wholesale market egg prices for the fourth quarter of 1999 (Grade A large, New York) are expected to average 69-71 cents per dozen, compared with 81.7 cents a year ago. First quarter 2000 egg prices are expected to average 63-67 cents per dozen, compared with 75 cents a year ago. Broiler-type eggs in incubators on November 1 totaled 574 million, 1% less than last year. Broiler-type hatch for October 1999 was 698 million, 1% above a year ago. The wholesale 12-city price for whole broilers for the fourth quarter of 1999 is expected to average 56-58 cents per pound, compared to 64.5 cents for the fourth quarter of last year. First quarter 2000 broiler prices are expected to average 52-56 cents per pound, compared with the 58.1 cents for a year earlier.

•Trade — November U.S. trade projections for beef improved while 1999/2000 export prospects for wheat and soybeans declined, compared with last month. Corn, pork, and broiler export projections were unchanged from October. November projections for the volume of exports for the 1999/2000 marketing year compared to 1998/1999 are: wheat up 6%; corn down 3%; soybeans up 8%; soybean meal up 3%; and soybean oil down 25%. November projections for the volume of meat exports in calendar 2000 compared to 1999 are: beef down 3%; pork down 7%; and broilers up 1%.

Small Farmers,

Cultivating For The Future

by Bernice Kepple, farm editor

There's no other time of the year like winter on a small farm. The work slacks off just enough to give us all a few minutes during the day for doing something other than the mountain of chores that's always waiting. So in between thawing frozen pipes and shoveling snow, may I suggest you read a good book? Now, I'm not trying to be Oprah, but spending some time reading now will prepare you for all those new projects you want to tackle in the spring. Or, for that matter, what's wrong with reading a good book for pure enjoyment? So if you agree, just grab that book you've been putting aside for so long and pull a comfortable chair up in front of the crackling fire, because spring will be here before we know it, and these bleak winter days with time to read will be gone.

Let me begin by making suggestions for self-help books. By that I don't mean the 12-step plan for those addicted to farming, but good books to tell you how to do something or do something better. I read many of these books long ago when self-sufficiency was my goal, but they are also excellent teachers for those of us who are trying to fit just one more project into a much too busy schedule as well. For book suggestions on "doing it yourself," I'll go back to one of my favorite resources, Countryside and Small Stock magazine. Editor Jerry Balenger and his staff have gathered together information and articles from the past as well as the present to provide helpful hints on a wide variety of topics. Their books plus those in their collection written by others cover such topics as animals and livestock; homestead construction, including Building Small Barns, Sheds & Shelters by Monte Burch, with low-cost construction projects; food preparation and storage; gardening; and miscellaneous, including Reviving Old Houses by Alan Dan Orme, with over 500 low-cost remodeling tips and techniques. These books and many others can be purchased on-line from www.countrysidemag.com, and many of them are available at the Ruth Enlow Library.

For those concerned with food preserving, numerous books are available either on-line at amazon.com or at the library. This list begins with Busy Persons Guide to Preserving Food by Janet Chadwick, giving the fastest, easiest ways to stockpile and preserve the season's best fruits, vegetables, and herbs. Add to that The Joy of Gardening by Dick Raymond, who tells how to construct raised beds, wide rows, and other techniques for bigger harvests with less work. Another classic is Keeping the Harvest by Chioffi and Mead. This book provides all the tried and true techniques for canning, freezing, drying, pickling, and curing fresh foods of all kinds.

Also spanning the years and still full of helpful hints today is The Have-More Plan, a 50-year-old classic by Ed and Carolyn Robinson, the couple who encouraged thousands to go "back to the land" after the Great Depression and World War II, with ideas that are still valuable today. (One "hint" that I wouldn't recommend is their endorsement of using the home freezer, very new at the time the book was written, to store stale bread, which they say will come out fresh again!) To continue the thought of books written long ago that are still valuable today, I suggest Five Acres and Independence: A Handbook for Small Farm Management by Maurice Grenville Kains.

Another excellent selection of books for small farmers with topics including farm and home, draft animals, vehicles and implements, books for young readers, and discounted books called "great deals" can be found at www.ruralheritage.com.

For those interested in draft horses, there are the old stand-bys by Maurice Telleen: The Draft Horse Primer and The Draft Horse Primer: A Guide to the Care and Use of Work Horses and Mules, which deal with today's draft horses and the contributions they can and are still making to society.

For pure enjoyment try books by Gene Logsdon: The Contrary Farmer and You Can Go Home Again: Adventures of a Contrary Life. Reading Logsdon's books is like having him over for coffee.

Another Turn of the Crank: Essays, Gift of Good Land: Further Essays, Cultural and Agricultural, Farming: A Handbook, and The Unsettling of America: Culture & Agriculture are all by one of my favorite authors, Kentucky farmer Wendell Berry. Berry has also written a large number of good fiction stories about farm life early in the 20th century, like The Memory of Old Jack, all available at the Ruth Enlow Library.

If you're in the mood for a deep, dark story, try one of these two: A Thousand Acres by Jane Smiley, the story of an aging farmer in Iowa who announces his intention to turn over his 1,000-acre farm to his three daughters, is a dark story of the family's struggle over his decision. If you'd just like to read something that makes you feel like you really don't have it so bad, try A Map of the World by Jane Hamilton. It's not an uplifting book; it's really deep and dark about a family whose farm problems are only the tip of the iceberg.

Since I'm making suggestions, some of my favorite books of all time are those by Agnes Sligh Turnbull. All her books take place in the farm country of southwestern Pennsylvania. One, The Day Must Dawn, is about an Indian attack that leveled the small Westmoreland County seat of Hannahstown in early settlement days. The others, Remember the End, The Rolling Years, The Golden Journey, The King's Orchard, The Richlands, and many more take place in the rolling farmland of that area in the 1800s.

To bring back memories of days gone by, try The Witness of Combines by Kent Myers, whose father died of a stroke when he was 16. There was corn to plant, cattle to feed, a farm to maintain, and his book tells how he did it and his memories of the repetitive tasks, obstacles, and joys farming holds. If you'd just like an evening's read of warm memories about growing up on a farm, I also have to suggest Treasured Memories of My Grandma, by yours truly. Whatever you read, I hope it either enlightens you or brings you enjoyment. They're calling for more snow, so go ahead and curl up with a good book.

United States Milk Production Up 4% In November

Milk production in the 20 major states during November totaled 11.3 billion pounds, up 4.4% from production in these same states in November 1998.

October revised production, at 11.6 billion pounds, was up 4.0% from October 1998.

Production per cow in the 20 major states averaged 1,458 pounds in November, 51 pounds or 3.6% above November 1998. The number of cows on farms in the 20 major states was 7.76 million head, 58,000 head more than November 1998 and 7,000 head more than October 1999.

Additional USDA Funds Released To Aid Dairymen

Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman has announced that USDA is providing $125 million in direct cash payments to assist dairy farmers who have been hurt by low prices. An additional $200 million in aid was distributed last summer.

"Dairy farmers are being squeezed by market conditions that don't allow them a fair price for their product," said Glickman. "This assistance is sorely needed to help keep many small- and medium-size dairy producers in business until prices stabilize."

To distribute limited resources equitably among all dairy producers, the Dairy Market Loss Assistance program provides payments based on an operation's milk production in 1997 or 1998, up to the first 26,000 hundredweight of production. All dairy farmers who produced milk during the last quarter of calendar year 1998 are eligible for the program. Eligible dairy farmers who did not participate in the program last summer must sign up at their local Farm Service Agency offices or USDA Service Centers by Monday, Feb. 28.

Farmers who participated in last summer's program will automatically receive payments and do not need to reapply for assistance. The dollar amount of payments will be calculated after sign-up is completed.

For additional information, persons may call the Garrett County Farm Service Agency office at 301-334-6954 or the Allegany County Farm Service Agency at 301-777-1536.

Dairy Outlook

by Ken Baily, Penn State Diary Economist

Butter prices fell this week at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Grade AA prices fell from $0.9450 per pound on Wednesday, Jan. 19 to $0.8875 by Friday, Jan. 21. Butter stocks for December 31, 1999, were reported to be 25.965 million pounds, about even with a year ago. Butter prices remain low due to more than adequate supplies of cream and fresh butter.

The Milk Production Report was also released this week. Milk production for 20 select states in December was 11.9 million pounds, up 3.8 percent from a year ago. Production per cow in December averaged 1,536 pounds, up 47 pounds or 3.2 percent. Cow numbers in December were 7.76 million head, 52,000 head more than December 1998 and 2,000 head more than November 1999. States with the strongest growth in milk production were: Idaho (14.6 percent), California (11.1 percent), New Mexico (8.6 percent), Virginia (4.5 percent), Arizona (4.2 percent), Washington (3.6 percent), Michigan (3.3 percent), and Pennsylvania (3.2 percent).

The milk supply continued to grow in excess of demand in December. In addition, the number of cows on farms, which normally declines each month, continued to grow throughout 1999. Farmers have not yet received a really low milk price. That will happen by February 20. Thus we may have one more month of growth in the milk supply. Short of a miracle on the demand side, milk prices will continue to be low as long as the milk supply continues to grow.

State Higher Education Commission Calls For Limits On Tuition, Fees

The Maryland Higher Education Commission has called on the leaders of public colleges and universities in Maryland to work with the commission to limit or eliminate increases in tuition and fees in coming years.

In a resolution circulated to the boards of trustees and regents that oversee public colleges and universities, the commission asked governing boards to join in working with Governor Parris N. Glendening and the General Assembly "to eliminate, or severely limit, increases in tuition and mandatory fees in coming fiscal years and to ensure that any future proposal to increase tuition and mandatory fees be strictly measured against the justification and accountability principles governing higher education" in Maryland.

The resolution was proposed by Terry L. Lierman and adopted unanimously when the commission met in November.

In the resolution, Lierman pointed out that average tuition and fees at public four-year colleges and universities in Maryland increased by 123 percent in 10 years and that the average tuition and fees at community colleges went up by 138 percent — while during the same period the Consumer Price Index increased by only 40 percent.

"The resolution highlights one of the most perplexing problems in higher education," said Patricia S. Florestano, the secretary of higher education. "At a time when we need more and more college-educated workers, the steady increase in tuition and fees is making it difficult for some people to attend college."

Florestano said that trustees and regents, as well as the presidents of Maryland's colleges and universities, have worked hard in recent years to contain costs. Moreover, she said, Governor Glendening has increased state support for higher education by nearly a third since he took office and has insisted that the University System of Maryland limit tuition increases to four percent.

"This governor has done much to repair the damage caused by budget cuts in the early 1990s and restore stability and predictability to higher education funding," Florestano said. "And he has already said that he will continue to increase funding for higher education so that Marylanders can afford college."

The secretary said that the Higher Education Commission will continue to highlight the need to limit student costs in the new state plan for higher education, which will be approved in April 2000.

The Maryland Higher Education Commission is a 12-member citizen board responsible for oversight and planning of higher education in Maryland. It serves as advocate for the more than 260,000 college students in Maryland, for the state and its needs, and for business and industry in Maryland. Its vision is a comprehensive system of higher education that is affordable and available to every citizen, is responsive to the needs of citizens and the private sector, and contributes to the economic well-being of the state.

Public Assistance Youth Eligible For Head Start

Garrett County Community Action's Head Start program has openings for children ages 3 to 5 in all program options. "We are now looking for children of families who are receiving public assistance. Foster children have always been considered automatically eligible for Head Start, and now Community Action considers children whose families are receiving SSI or TANF on a regular basis automatically eligible," stated an agency spokesperson.

Head Start has openings in Crellin, Kitzmiller, Jennings, Accident, Friendsville, Southern and Northern Home Base, Pre-School Family Support, and the Family Child Care Provider Option. Children whose families meet the income guidelines, are foster children, or whose families are receiving public assistance may be enrolled immediately if they are at least 2 years, 9 months old. Head Start will be enrolling children through March for most of the classrooms except for Oakland II (May 15 is the cutoff) and Jennings I (July 15 is the cutoff).

"We are making every effort to meet the needs of working parents," said the Head Start representative. Jennings Center operates a year-round classroom, Oakland Center will offer one extended school year classroom (through June) this year, and the Family Child Care Provider Option is operating year-round. Community Action also operates a Wrap-Around Child Care Program that provides before- and after-school child care accessible to Head Start parents whose children attend Crellin, Dennett Road, and Oakland Center.

According to the local Head Start office, recruitment for Head Start is ongoing. "We are taking applications for the current school year and also for 2000-2001," the spokesperson said. "If parents feel they are eligible, that's the point at which they should apply. Ten percent of the current enrollment is usually composed of children who are not income eligible, so no one should hesitate to apply."

For application to Head Start, persons may contact Family Development at 301-334-9431 or 1-888-877-8403, ext. 126.

GOSNELLS MAKING MARK AT ACADEMY - Stephenie Gosnell, left, and her twin sister Rachael, right, flank their parents, Buz and Peggy Gosnell of Accident, as the family stands outside the Government House in Annapolis. The third year midshipmen at the United States Naval Academy were each listed on the fall semester superintendent's list, denoting their rank in the top six percent of their class academically, physically, and militarily. This photo was taken on the occasion of the family's invitation from Governor and Mrs. Glendening for a brunch to mark last month's "Celebrate the New Millennium Through the Arts" observance.

In Loving Memory of Our Darling

In Our Hearts

We thought of you with love today.
But that was nothing new.
We thought about you yesterday.
And days before that too.
We think of you in silence.
We often speak your name.
Now all we have are memories
And your picture in a frame.
Your memory is our keepsake
With which we'll never part.
God has you in His keeping.
We have you in our heart.

Loved so very much and still sadly missed,
Your Loving Family

FROZEN PIPES

One of winter's biggest plumbing issues is pipes. Frozen pipes can burst, causing major water damage to your home.

Prevention is your best friend in this case. Wrap the pipes in insulation before cold weather sets in. When outside temperatures dip below freezing, leave the water faucets in your home dripping. This should keep water flowing through the pipes and help keep them from freezing.

What if a pipe freezes despite your best efforts? Act fast! If water doesn't come out of the faucet, leave it open and try to locate the section of pipe that feeds to the faucet.

If the pipe has already burst, you'll see water. Turn off the house's water supply and call the plumber to repair that section and inspect all the plumbing for weak spots.

If the pipe has not burst, you may be able to thaw it out yourself:

• Locate the frozen section by touch. It will be much colder than the rest of the pipe. (If you can't find it, you'll have to start thawing at the beginning of the run and keep going until water comes out of the faucet.)

• Apply a heat lamp or a towel soaked in boiling water to the pipe until it thaws. You can also apply steady heat with a hairdryer. Don't let the pipe get too hot to touch.

• Keep heating until water runs steadily out of the faucet. Let the faucet run for several minutes afterward to completely clear the pipe.

WINTER MAINTENANCE TIPS

• Remove heavy snow from tree branches, shrubs, porches, decks and roofs as soon as possible.

• This is the best time of year to cut firewood in cold climates. It's easy to cut, will season over the summer and will be ready for use next fall.

• Get nursery and garden store catalogs and begin planning for spring planting.

Antiques by Ralph and Terry Kovel

Tourists have always liked souvenirs. Stones collected by pilgrims in the Holy Land 10 centuries ago still exist in the souvenir boxes that held them. Crusaders brought back examples of the local art, a Roman cameo or a piece of armor.

By the 16th century, travelers brought back spices and tobacco, and with them, pipes and spice grinders. Eighteenth-century tourists searched for Italian paintings, antiquities (often fakes) and souvenirs of monuments that were usually made of marble, bronze or cork.

By the 19th century, travelers searched for exotic souvenirs like tiger teeth, elephant feet and wood carvings, and mementos like ticket stubs and dinnerware from railroads and ships.

The 20th-century tourist had an easier time finding souvenirs. Shops and vendors catered to the tourist with models of buildings and statues, ashtrays, pictures and picture frames, miniature animals or carved totem poles.

Today there are many collectors who search for the tiny English porcelain vases and urns made by Goss that displayed a coat of arms, or pictures made from the multicolored sand of the English seacoast. Seashell-decorated boxes, carvings of coal, picture postcards, pennants, silk scarves and numerous pot metal replicas of historic buildings and statues could also be found. All types of souvenirs are collected today.

Pet Care
by Peter Edwards

Reader Dorothy says that her son, who has just entered 10th grade, hopes to become a veterinarian. He has compiled a list of schools he would like to apply to and has been getting catalogs from them. A friend suggested he add Tufts University to his list. Dorothy says she was surprised that Tufts had a veterinary school and asks if I can tell her anything about it.

Happy to oblige. The Tufts University School of Veterinary Medicine was founded in 1978 and treats some 25,000 animals per year, providing both medical care and rehabilitation. It also serves as New England's federally designated center for the care of endangered species.

Fully accredited by the American Veterinary Medical Association, Tufts has the country's largest residency-training program in animal emergency and critical care in the country. Tufts' Center for Animals and Public Policy offers the only graduate degree in human/animal relationships and related public policies. Its Harrington Oncology Program is world famous for its work in treating cancer in animals. There are also programs in wildlife and international veterinary medicine.

I hope this information is helpful.

COVER STORY

NBC enters paranormal realm with The Others

By Josh Greene
©TVData Features Syndicate

Melissa Crider

What frightens you? Things that go bump in the night? That eerie feeling that you're being watched? Quick glimpses of things out of the corner of your eye that aren't really there?

For centuries, debates have raged over what happens to the human spirit once the physical body dies. For those who don't believe in ghosts and the "other side," NBC's new series The Others, premiering Saturday, Feb. 5, might seem a bit out there. But don't worry. That's the whole point.

The Others are a group of individuals struggling to understand and hone their collective paranormal abilities. They experience the feelings, thoughts and emotions of people they've never met and, in selfless efforts, guide them into the world of paranormal phenomena.

An empathic medical intern (Gabriel Macht), a mentally unstable man (Kevin J. O'Connor), a visually impaired malcontent (John Aylward), a New Age "sensitive" (Melissa Crider) and a spiritual leader-mentor (Bill Cobbs) join a professor of parapsychology (John Billingsley) to recruit a frightened college student (Julianne Nicholson) who needs to come to grips with her disturbing abilities.

"We've all been to a psychic bookstore or two," Crider says of her own interest in the show's subject matter.

"I play a 'sensitive,' a professional psychic named Satori whose name means an enlightened state sought in Buddhism. Her closest friends are the Others. They're her family."

Cobbs plays Elmer, the elder leader of the group. He believes the show's credibility lies in the numerous accounts of similar situations and the mind-sets of societies past and present.

"While we're dealing with fictional stories," Cobbs says, "we are dealing with various beliefs of people throughout the ages."

Some might see The Others as a bit too dark for a network long known for its hit sitcoms and dramas, but it does fit the mold of those other shows in two key areas: solid cast development and subtle script touches that carry story lines and further enhance the actors' performances.

"The characters are so rich," Crider says. "They're like people I've known my whole life. And some of them are people I've wanted to know my whole life."

The Others successfully combines the elements of the supernatural and sentiment without breaking the rules of believability or promising a fairy-tale ending at the close of each episode.

"We go from one extreme to another in terms of things that might frighten you or things that might interest or fascinate you," Cobbs says.

"Even though we're dealing in a surrealistic area, we have that realistic basis, something that's believable."

Sometimes those creaking floors or odd sounds and feelings are just products of our own paranoia and one too many late-night horror movies. But maybe there is something more there.

Maybe the things that frighten us the most are mysteries we don't fully understand or are too intimidated to learn about.

"It never hurts the mystery to know something about it," Crider concludes. "That's how I feel about this show. If I have respect for the unknown, that's all I need."

Seth Green

Q: Did Seth Green permanently leave Buffy the Vampire Slayer? I really enjoy him and his character. –Lorraine Garceau, Grand Forks, N.D.

A: Green, 25, is red-hot in Hollywood these days and left Buffy earlier this year to make a feature film. Still, he loves the show and will return to the role of Daniel "Oz" Osborne before season's end, according to executive producer Joss Whedon. But whether he'll return as a regular cast member is up in the air, Whedon says. If nothing else, Green's absence has left room for Alyson Hannigan, who plays Oz's former girlfriend, Willow, to shine.

Q: Is Arthel Neville of Fox Files related to Aaron Neville of the Neville Brothers? What else can you tell me about her? –Jennifer G. via e-mail.

A: Arthel Neville, 38, is Aaron's niece (her dad is Art, another singing Neville Brother).

A native of New Orleans, she made her acting debut in the 1984 TV movie With Intent to Kill. Other TV movies featuring Neville include Love and Curses ... and All That Jazz and The Ultimate Lie. She also had a stint on Days of Our Lives in 1993 and appeared in a 1995 episode of Living Single.

The vivacious Neville is best known for appearing as herself, including a performance in a 1996 episode of The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air. She also co-hosted a short-lived 1997 talk show with Fred Roggin called Arthel & Fred.

Q: I recently saw a number of episodes of $100,000 Pyramid on the Game Show Network that featured a contestant named Mel Kennerly. Was that really a pre-Thirtysomething Mel Harris? –Belinda Wright via e-mail.

A: Yes. At the time, Harris was married to former White House photographer David Hume Kennerly.

Q: My husband insists that Rosemary Clooney is of Italian descent. What is her background? How is she related to George Clooney? –Jean Martin, Tampa, Fla.

A: Clooney grew up in Mayesville, Ky., in the Irish-American family of Andrew and Frances Clooney. Her brother is former American Movie Classics host Nick Clooney. Her nephew, Nick's son, is George Clooney.

Q: I'm sure I saw James Cromwell of Babe somewhere before. Was he one of Archie's co-workers in All in the Family? –Stephen Meyer, Orland Park, Ill.

A: You're right, Stephen. Some 25 years ago, the 1996 Oscar nominee made his TV series debut as Archie's buddy, Stretch Cunningham.

War seen through the eyes of children on HBO

By Jacqueline Cutler
©TVData Features Syndicate

When Children in War ends, expect to be dumbstruck with grief. The gut-wrenching film by Academy Award winners Alan and Susan Raymond takes a hard look at children in Bosnia, Rwanda, Israel and Northern Ireland whose lives have been shattered by war.

Airing Monday, Jan. 31, on HBO, the documentary presents brutal facts objectively. And the most brutal is the basis for the film: In today's wars, 90 percent of the casualties are civilians, compared to 50 percent in World War II. During the past decade, 2 million children were killed in wars around the world.

Despite the topic, the film isn't gory, although it does open with footage of a 7-year-old boy killed by a sniper's gun in the former Yugoslavia. Children there were often murdered as they fetched water.

One little boy says cheerfully, "If you consider what could have happened, I'm lucky to be alive." He then shows what remains of his left arm, blown off above the elbow.

Regardless of the locations the Raymonds visited during the four years they spent making the film, some grim aspects were identical. Children were unprotected. Many witnessed their parents' murders. They talk about war as if they were in parliament.

Of the Palestinian-Israeli conflict, one Palestinian boy says, "My generation's role was merely to throw stones."

The genocide in Rwanda was so horrific that just being reminded of it is painful. One 5-year-old girl with deep machete scars on her skull and face says, "They saw us and they killed us." Off camera, Susan Raymond asks why. "They did it for nothing," the child responds.

In Northern Ireland, a preteen says, "In my whole life, I've never known peace."

These Rwandan refugees represent only a few of the many young lives changed by wars that are spotlighted in Alan and Susan Raymond's Children in War. The documentary airs Monday on HBO.

Student Named In Who's Who

Jackie Resh, a senior at Northern High School, has been named to Who's Who Among American High School Students for the 1998-1999 school year. Acknowledgment in the publication, reserved for only five percent of high school students each year, recognizes the achievements of outstanding students who have contributed to their schools and communities. This is Jackie's second consecutive year to receive this honor.

Enrolled in the honors program, Jackie plans to attend college following graduation. She is the daughter of Randy and Carol Resh, Grantsville, and the granddaughter of James and Beverly Diehl, Addison, Pa., and Kenneth and Joan Resh, Salisbury, Pa.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

I am happy to say that we in Bittinger finally got a really big winter storm. We had one of those storms which frequently can close down at least two places around our area. One is just outside the Bittinger town limit, which is along the road along the former Lawrence Buckel farm. That stretch of road can collect a good bit of snow, but it is nothing compared to the real Arctic region across the flat on the Jimmy Glotfelty farm. I remember in 1994 the pile of snow along the road after the county had used real heavy snow removal equipment to open the road to travel. If you had to cross that stretch of road after a big storm and before the plows arrived, the drifts were truly unbelievable. The morning traffic commuter jam-ups occurred when maybe five or more cars were all stuck in the drifts, which were sometimes over 10 or 12 feet high.

This storm is the first of this new century, but not quite in that class yet. Still, Caitlin and her cousin Blakely got in a couple good cross country ski runs. Even Lloyd got in a short run today after a quick visit at my in-laws' at Leisure World in Silver Spring over the weekend for our annual Christmas-lucky-to-make-it-even-now. We were lucky that the last snow storm was not that bad down there. With Lloyd's work schedule and Claire's basketball games we weren't able to get there sooner. Because of the combination of people who do not know how to drive in the snow, plus the unpreparedness in terms of snow removal, you can see some real messes in terms of traffic and accidents. Even if they only get an inch or two it is quite a problem.

I was worried sick about my mother as she took a swing down south. Sounds like it was a real mess with ice and snow in the Carolinas and Virginia. Part-time Bittinger resident and past-time resident of Las Vegas David Whittemore says, "It is pretty cold for me and I am glad not to have to drive a lot in it." I agree 100% with him. It feels pretty cold when you get that blasted wind of 25 miles per hour and more. I really can understand the idea of wind chill. I remember in the late 1980s when the temperature was -10 degrees and -25 degree wind chill. I think it felt like 150 degrees below zero when I needed to carry warm water for the horses over a few 10-foot-high drifts between the house and barn. We loved to tunnel through the drifts when we were kids.

My mother, Ruth DiPaolo, arrived home Monday evening and reported that they missed the snow and ice storm in the south as they left early Saturday morning from Hilton Head, S.C., and just before the storm hit the area. She spent a few days before and a few days after at the home of Betty and Ellis Sacra in Partlow, Va., before her trip to Sun City, S.C., where she visited her two cousins, Lucille Patton Ritter and Betty Patton Henry, for a week. Lucille and Betty spend the winter months in Sun City. While in South Carolina they visited several historic sites, both in Savannah, Ga., and Beaufont, S.C. Mother wasn't anxious to return to Garrett County's cold winter weather, but Monday's weather was sunny and warmer to welcome her home.

Lea Stanton returned to Baltimore after the holiday break on Sunday. Her visitors over the break were Amy Schomberg, her roommate from Corpus Cristi, Texas, and Ian and Josh Shifrin of Columbia, to enjoy some skiing action at the Wisp for several days. Lea is returning to continue her studies at Towson University. Mealtimes required some ingenuity at the Stanton house, as vegetarians and kosher items were necessary to keep all well fed and energy levels high for the slopes.

Chip Harvey of Cary, N.C., a cousin of the late Joney Beachy, visited with Ferne Beachy on Saturday to get information on the Henry Harvey family. He also visited with Ida Reckner, who lives on the former Manassas Schrock farm where Chip's great grandfather was born.

Lea and Cindy Stanton were Saturday visitors of Ken and Harriett Buckel on Saturday.

Goetz Oertel from Potomac was a Tuesday luncheon guest of Jim and Margaret Wagner on Tuesday.

Ann and Pat McLister and children, Frederick, visited with Margaret and Jim Wagner for several days.

Bill Hady visited Bertha and Neil Rodamer, Springs, Pa., and Olis Brenneman at Goodwill Nursing Home on Wednesday of last week.

Allison Buckel was a Tuesday overnight guest of Bill and Sheila Southerly. Allison had some college friends visit over the weekend to enjoy the winter activities in Garrett County.

Julius and Karmen Carey, Frostburg, entertained Sunday in celebration of the January birthdays of Jim Glotfelty and Linda Oester. Other dinner guests were William Oester, Salisbury, Pa.; Lisa, Adam and Amanda Platter, Smithsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Walker and daughters, and Chris Carey, Frostburg; and Tom, Cheryl, Tim, and Donna Glotfelty.

Two Charged In County Roads Garage Thefts

Charges have been placed against two employees of the Garrett County Roads Department as a result of an investigation of alleged thefts at the county's Accident garage. According to State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch, Carl Edward Schmidt, 51, Friendsville, has been charged with felony theft and misdemeanor theft, and Donald Eugene Schmidt, 49, Accident, has been charged with felony theft.

The investigation into alleged criminal activity at the Accident garage has been sporadically conducted at least over the past 15 months, with the first allegations of possible thefts apparently occurring in late 1998. According to reports, anonymous phone calls tipped off county officials to illegal activity taking place at the garage, with allegations including the loss of fuel and equipment, and the misuse of county property. The investigation apparently began with the Maryland State Police, although it was stalled for lack of evidence.

In January 1999, officers of the Garrett Bureau of Investigation reportedly conducted surveillance activities and other investigative methods to look into the case, but again came up with no solid evidence to actively continue the investigation. The case was left open pending more information, according to law officials.

Fred Polce, county roads supervisor, reportedly received more anonymous tips in late 1999 with similar allegations. Again the evidence was reportedly lacking to warrant a full investigation. At this time, the Board of Garrett County Commissioners hired a local private investigator, Mark Proulx, to look into the case. Having hired Proulx, the commissioners then handed the case off to the state's attorney's office. Proulx reportedly conducted surveillance of the Accident garage, and sat in on interviews of numerous county roads employees. These interviews were chiefly conducted by Pat Kelly, the state's attorney investigator who is also assigned to the GBI.

DERAILED - More than 70 coal-laden cars jumped the track along a four-mile stretch near Bloomington as an 80-car CSX train thundered down Backbone Mountain Sunday morning. Infamous for its steep descent over such a distance, the recommended speed on the incline is 25 mph. The train was traveling in excess of 55 mph when a derailed car slammed into a house on Savage River Road in Bloomington, killing 15-year-old Eddie Lee Rogers and injuring four other family members. The accident remains under investigation by the National Transportation Safety Board and CSX Transportation officials. Photo by Ed Santamaria

Meeting Set To Organize Local United Way

Plans are under way to establish a local arm of County United Way, an organization based in Cumberland that serves the people of several surrounding counties. An ad hoc group has been meeting for two months on the issue and has planned a public meeting on Thursday, Feb. 17, in the Garrett Community College auditorium, beginning at 6 p.m. All persons interested in forming a local United Way are encouraged to attend the meeting.

Harry King, the director of County United Way, has been working for several months to establish a Garrett County committee and has stated that the progress thus far has been encouraging. He said local input in its formation is important.

County United Way has assisted a number of Garrett County organizations, such as the Boy Scouts, the Dove Center (the local Domestic Violence/Sexual Assault Resource Center), and others. With a local committee in operation,

Friendsville Elementary Holds Memorial Dedication Ceremony

by Peggy Santamaria

The Friendsville Elementary School community put part of American history into a very human context this week, and let the students look into the eyes of some of those who helped to write the painful chapter of the Vietnam War era. Photographs of the six young Friendsville men who died in that conflict were framed and hung in the school foyer, creating a memorial wall.

In a ceremony Monday, the wall was dedicated to these men and their families. The school community, dressed in red, white, and blue, gathered in the hallway leading to the foyer. Each child held a small American flag, donated by the Woodman of the World.

Principal Doug Gaither welcomed everyone to the ceremony and explained how it came about. "The school theme this year is "America." Though we have a memorial outside the school with the names of the Friendsville men who died in Vietnam, the young students can't really relate to it. We decided that photoraphs would make this more real to them," he said.

Family members offered photos of the Friendsville soldiers who lost their lives in Vietnam — Ross Fike, Roger Garlick, Norman Thomas, Dan Nicklow, Charles Hook, and Thomas Fike. Reproduced in 8-by-10-inch formats, the pictures were framed and name plates were attached.

The original concept for the new display wall took on an added dimension as it progressed. "We took everything down from the wall in the foyer except the photographs. But it looked a little bare. It needed just one more thing," he told those attending the ceremony.

The "one more thing" se-

MPT Segment To Address Boot Camp Situation

Tomorrow night's broadcast of the Maryland Public Television news and public affairs program State Circle will include an interview with Bishop Robinson, acting secretary of the Department of Juvenile Justice. The program is set for Friday, Feb. 8, at 7 p.m.

Robinson will address the controversy surrounding allegations of abuse and assault at the three Juvenile Justice Leadership Challenge centers located in Garrett County, which have resulted in the dismissal of eight boot camp employees to date, some of whom face criminal charges, and the firings of several top DJJ officials. The ongoing investigation is being handled by the Maryland State Police, with assistance from several other state agencies and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Friday Trailer Fire Is Blamed On Heat Tape

A heat tape is believed to be the cause of a fire that seriously damaged a trailer in the Friendsville area last Friday afternoon. Volunteers from the Friendsville, Accident, and Addison, Pa., fire departments were summoned to the residence of Violet Coddington, located along the Friendsville-Addison Road, at 4:33 p.m.

According to Terry Spear, chief of the Friendsville VFD, smoke was coming out of the eaves and roof area when units arrived. The fire was discovered under the bathroom, and firefighters had to tear out flooring and some wall area to extinguish it. Spear said that a heat tape under the bathroom floor had been on approximately an hour before Ms. Coddington saw the smoke.

There was extensive smoke damage throughout the trailer, and Ms. Coddington left to stay with relatives. Spear said that the structure did have a working smoke alarm.

Group Aiming At New Library In Grantsville

A town meeting at the Grantsville fire hall last Thursday evening brought about 33 people out into sub-zero temperatures to talk about the future of the Grantsville branch of the Ruth Enlow Library.

Taking part in the discussion were Garrett County Commissioners Fred Holliday, Ernie Gregg, and Wendell Beitzel, members of the library board of trustees, Mayor Gerry Beachy, community members, and library personnel.

Cathy Ashby, director of the Ruth Enlow Library system, spoke to the group about the need to define the problems with the existing library facility and determine the remedial steps to be taken. "We will be looking at the site for the library, and the size, which will be based on function. The current building is 845 sq. ft. There is little room for children's programming or computer use," she said.

Bloomington Youth Killed As Derailed Train Crushes House

Investigation by the National Transportation Safety Board and CSX Railroad officials continues into the causes of a fatal train accident Sunday morning in Bloomington that took the life of a 15-year-old boy.

One of about three dozen derailed cars each carrying 200 tons of coal crashed into a two-story woodframe house on Savage River Road, killing Eddie Lee Rogers and injuring four other members of the household. The force of the impact knocked the house 25 feet off its foundation. After a 12-hour search, rescuers found the body of the youth in the collapsed living room area of the home.

Lt. William Lucas commander of the McHenry barrack, Maryland State Police, said the accident scene was probably the worst he has seen outside of military service. "It looked like a bomb had gone off. When I first saw the house I didn't even realize that it had been a two-story building. The second floor was at ground level. The destruction was awesome," he said.

The four injured residents of the demolished house were Rogers's mother, Libby A. Holstein, 35; Brandy Holstein, 18, Eugene F. Liller, 32, and Amanda M. Liller, 13. They had been on the second floor of the house when the train car struck, and were able to get out through the windows. They and were taken to Cumberland Memorial Hospital for treatment. Libby Holstein remains hospitalized in "stable" condition. The others were treated and released.

In heavy snowfall, over 250 rescue personnel responded to the scene, including the highly-trained Montgomery County Collapse Search Rescue Team. This group has responded to such disasters as the Oklahoma City bombing. Over 50 members of the elite group arrived in Garrett County early Sunday morning to lead the mission.

The team members worked through the rubble removing tons of debris, coal, and wreckage in search of the missing youth. They worked for a dozen hours with highly trained dogs before locating the body of the youth. "It was amazing to watch such a professional, skilled group performing a search of that magnitude," Lucas reflected.

A cadre of local volunteers worked hand-in-hand under the leadership of the Montgomery County team. On the scene were rescue workers from Tri-Towns Ambulance Service, Maryland State Police, Garrett County Sheriff's Office, Bloomington VFD, the Maryland GO Team from the University of Maryland Shock-Trauma Center, Allegany County Trench Rescue, the State Highway Administration, Allegany Power, the Red Cross, and CSX Transportation.

"Though the Montgomery County unit took the lead, everyone was involved. It gave meaning to the term 'mutual aid,'" Lucas said.

Columbia Gas representatives on the scene shut off the gas service to more than 100 homes in response to an initial gas leak. Housing for area families was arranged by the Red Cross.

Bloomington School was closed on Monday as the clean-up effort continued. Students from the community who attended Westmar High School with Eddie Rogers gathered at Bloomington School Monday for grief counseling.

"Eddie attended Bloomington School before going to Westmar and was very

State Purchases Deep Creek Lake After 18 Months Of Negotiations

Governor Parris N. Glendening announced Friday that the state of Maryland and GPU Inc. have reached a final agreement on the purchase of Deep Creek Lake, with the state handing over $17.6 million to buy the lake, the safety strip of land along the entire shoreline, and all other property between the water and the adjacent property owners. The final agreement will preserve approximately 5,000 acres, the governor said.

"Deep Creek Lake is the crown jewel of Garrett County, and we are guaranteeing that the lake and its surrounding area will be permanently protected for future generations to enjoy," said Glendening. "This purchase will also ensure that the Deep Creek Lake region continues to provide thousands of jobs and opportunities for western Maryland families. It is a wonderful purchase for all those who care about our environment, for property owners who live around the lake, and for everyone, like myself and my family who love Deep Creek Lake."

The agreement marks the completion of an 18-month-long process that was initiated in 1998 after GPU announced plans to sell the lake and surrounding land, along with its hydroelectric generating station and dam. Under the agreement, 4,400 acres of the lake will be added to the state's park system. The remaining property of approximately 600 acres will be offered to adjacent property owners at the state's cost and subject to a conservation easement. The agreement requires legislative approval for the funds, action by the Board of Public Works, and action by the Garrett County commissioners.

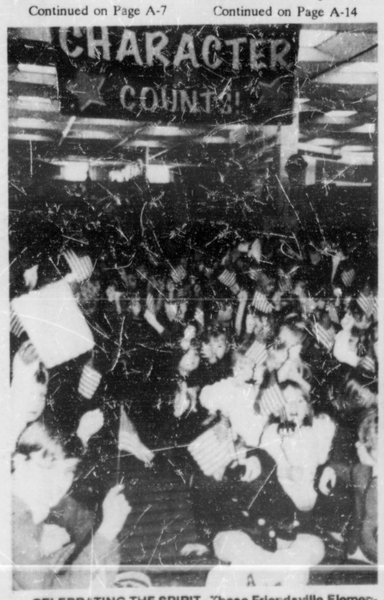
(The commissioners were in Annapolis this week to meet with state officials on a variety of issues, one being the finalization of the lake sale.)

Fred D. Hafer, president and chief executive officer of GPU, said he and his staff are pleased that the agreement will preserve the area as a natural resource.

Glendening expressed his appreciation to those involved in the purchase negotiations, including the GPU leadership, Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer, the commissioners, Speaker of the House Casper Taylor, and the businesses and property owners who have supported the process of the lake acquisition.

"I am pleased that the state, with the cooperation of Garrett County, has been able to reach a final agreement with GPU to purchase the lake," Edwards said. "It truly is a great deal that will benefit Garrett County, western Maryland, and the entire state."

Roger Titus, president of the Property Owners' Association of Deep Creek Lake, said he and the members of the association appreciated the governor's leadership and "strong support in protecting this irreplaceable natural resource."



CELEBRATING THE SPIRIT - These Friendsville Elementary School students are sharing very patriot experience. Learning more about the real meaning of commitment and sacrifice, the children took part in a memorial dedication this week. See story.

"THE DESTRUCTION WAS AWESOME!" is how Lt. William Lucas of the Maryland State Police described the remains of a two-story Bloomington house, which was knocked 25 feet off its foundation when a derailed coal car traveling over 55 mph smashed into it Sunday morning. More than 250 volunteer and professional rescue personnel, led by the highly trained Montgomery County Collapse Search and Rescue Team, dug through the tons of coal and debris for 12 hours, searching for a missing 15-year-old youth, Eddie Lee Rogers. THEY ARE NOT FORGOTTEN - A photographic memorial of the six Friendsville men who died in Vietnam was created at the Friendsville School to give the children a greater understanding of the sacrifice made by members of their community. At a ceremony on Monday, fifth grader Kelsy Lytle, at the podium in the photo above, dedicated the memorial wall in the school foyer. Principal Doug Gaither stands beside Kelsy. In the foreground at the right, is Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County Schools. In the photo below, Bruce Whittaker of the Vietnam Veterans of America, presents a framed copy of the print "Reflections" by Lee Teter. This will hang on the wall along with the photographs of the young soldiers who died in the conflict.

lected was a print titled "Reflections," which depicts a mournful man with bowed head and outstretched fingers touching the Wall — the Vietnam memorial in Washington, D.C. Reflected on the dark marble surface are soldiers with hands reaching out as if to comfort.

During Monday's ceremony, fifth grader Kelsy Lytle, described by Gaither as a history buff, dedicated the new memorial wall to the veterans and their families. Second graders added a musical patriot touch to the dedication with their spirited singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," "God Bless the U.S.A.," and "America, You're Beautiful."

Bruce Whittaker of the Vietnam Veterans of America presented the framed copy of the "Reflections" print as a gift to the school to complete the memorial wall. Bouquets of paper flowers made by the children in art class were laid before each picture as the names of the soldiers were read one-by-one to the music "Some Gave All."

well liked by his classmates. The kids looked up to him. Eddie was a hard worker and he really wanted to be a basketball player," said Bloomington principal James Morris, adding that it was good for the students in the community to be together to share their grief.

As rescue workers at the accident shoveled, hauled, and dug through debris from early Sunday morning until late that night, another crew of volunteers tended to the needs of those workers.

"I've been involved in many different disasters in my career, but none were quite like this one. At the fire hall were ladies from the auxiliary and from the church. They were preparing and serving food and coffee. They really created an environment of family warmth. They smiled and encouraged us to have something to eat," Lucas said.

Investigators have determined that the train was traveling at from 56 to 58 mph at the time of the derailment. The authorized speed along that section of track is 25 mph. The 80-car coal train was traveling from Grafton, W.Va., toward Cumberland when a series of three derailments occurred along a four-mile stretch near Bloomington at the base of what is known as the 17-Mile Grade.

A computer simulation was performed yesterday by CSX officials to determine what factors may have contributed to the accident and what, if anything, could have been done to prevent it. The crew members on the coal train — an engineer, a conductor, and a conductor trainee — had combined experience of about 50 years, according to reports from CSX.

A community fund has been established to accept donations for the family of Eddie Lee Rogers. Contributions may be made to the WEPCO Federal Credit Union, 204 N. Branch Ave., Bloomington, MD 21523.

A freshman at Westmar High School, Eddie Rogers was a member of the junior varsity basketball team and had recently been made a starter for the team.

J.C. PENNEY HELPS WARM THE CHILDREN -- Annie and Larry Steyer of Oakland's J.C. Penney catalog store were presented with a check this week to pay the final bill from The Republican newspaper's 1999 Warm the Children campaign. The Steyers were instrumental in making the program a success, according to Mary McEwen, coordinator. "We at first weren't sure if going with a catalog arrangement would work, but Annie and Larry were so willing to help, and that alone made it run very smoothly. It ended up being very successful because of their cooperation and kindness, along with our great volunteers," McEwen said. The campaign this year raised over $16,000 and provided 180 local youngsters with new winter clothing and footwear. J.C. Penney and the Ames in Frostburg agreed to participate in the program this year, McEwen said, with good results. "I hope everyone remembers to patronize both of these businesses — the staff and employees are truly community-minded." Shown left to right are McEwen and Annie and Larry Steyer.

Mayor Beachy, who favors construction of a larger facility equipped to meet the needs of the community, called for the formation of an ad hoc committee to spearhead the Grantsville library project and initiate some major fund raising to show the state officials that the residents are serious about the library. The committee will hold its first meeting on February 24 at 7 p.m. at the Grantsville library.

Kim Lishia, manager of the Grantsville branch for nearly a decade, said that the need to expand into a new facility is apparent. "I think people can see that we are cramped here. The wiring in this building is old and wouldn't handle additional computers," she explained.

Computers are among the community resources lacking in the Grantsville branch. "All the time we have people coming in here looking for computers. We have only one for public use so there is a lot of waiting," Lishia said.

In the 10 years that she has managed the library branch, Lishia said she has seen a change in the number of people using the facility. "Oh, my yes. I've seen a big change. More people are coming in here all the time," she noted.

The area residents attending the meeting agreed that the Grantsville building currently housing the library is insufficient to meet the needs of the ever-growing community, explained Rosie Cupler, a resident and business owner who sits on the library board. The group also concurred on the need to begin hammering out some plans not only to maintain a library in Grantsville but to expand it and increase its community resources, Cupler noted. "The mood of the meeting was definitely positive," she added.

Ski Equipment Thefts Noted At Wisp Resort

Two thefts of ski equipment occurred at the Wisp Resort recently, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. Skiers and snowboarders are reminded by law enforcement agencies to secure their equipment when not in use.

The most recent theft occurred Saturday, Jan. 29, when a pair of Kascle and Olin brand skis were stolen from the rack outside the slope entrance to the Wisp lobby. The loss was estimated at $500. Earlier, on Monday, Jan. 24, a car roof ski rack was unbolted and stolen from a vehicle in the resort's parking lot. The Yakima brand ski rack was valued at $130.

In other current sheriff's investigations, leads are sought in a burglary of a storage shed located on Crellin Elementary School property. Nothing was taken in the Kendall Drive incident, which was reported on Monday and apparently took place over the weekend.

A purse was stolen from the Laundry Tub laundromat along Oakland Drive the morning of Monday, Jan. 24. The purse contained several personal items, including a wallet and a gold ring bearing an opal and two diamonds valued at $120.

A theft from a house construction site in the North Glade subdivision near Deep Creek Lake resulted in a loss of nearly $900 worth of lumber. Taken from the site along Hines Drive were 10 two-by-fours and 28 sheets of three-by-four plywood. The theft occurred over the weekend of Jan. 7-9.

A dehumidifier valued at $250 and a water-skiing inner tube worth $200 were stolen from a residence in the 500 block of Clark Lohr Road between Jan. 3 and 4. Thieves pried open the door to the home's cellar to gain access to the building.

Finally, at least four and perhaps as many as five truckloads of firewood have been stolen over the past month from a home construction site along Snowbound Lane in the McHenry area.

Persons with information on these incidents are asked to contact the Sheriff's Office at 301-334-1911.

Winning is Everything...

For many in the country it was another fun Super Bowl Sunday. The event is always a good excuse for a party, but even the game was a particularly good one this year, as it featured two new teams, and the final outcome of the contest came right down to the last play.

But at the other end of the pro sports spectrum, it was reported this week that the NFL's most highly paid linebacker, All-Pro Ray Lewis of the Baltimore Ravens, has been arrested and is being held without bail, accused of committing two murders. The sad fact is, 21% of all NFL players, that's one in five, have been charged with, and usually convicted of, serious criminal offenses at some point in their lives. These are famous men who are paid hundreds of thousands, and in many cases, millions of dollars per year; men who basically have the world by the tail. What's going on?

While we believe strongly that every individual should be responsible and take the blame for his or her own negative actions, there is no doubt that our society's attitude toward athletics, and how we treat gifted athletes, are contributing factors to this exceedingly high number of criminal professional athletes. One expert on the subject made the point that the way so many gifted athletes are treated from about junior high school age on — by parents, by coaches, by school systems, and others — is one of the major reasons they become criminals as young adults. The highly gifted high school athlete, for example, is almost always bailed out of any kind of trouble. When a mediocre athlete gets caught drinking alcohol or gets in trouble with the law or is a problem in the classroom, he is usually booted off the team. But for the same offenses committed by the highly gifted athlete, the player who could make or break the chances for a state title, the treatment is often radically different. The incident is covered up, or there is a long list of excuses and rationalizations as to why, in this case, the athlete is allowed to stay on the team.

The coddling continues, then, through the athlete's collegiate career. It all reinforces the attitude in the mind of the athlete that he can do almost anything and get away with it; he is special; he doesn't have to be accountable.

Sadly, we know of a few such cases handled this way right here in Garrett County. We also know of some local gifted athletes who were, indeed, rightfully kicked off the team by their coaches.

The bottom line for too many parents, coaches, and fans is, winning is everything, and truly caring about the lives, well-being, and futures of the gifted athletes is secondary. It's not intentional; it's just that our society places so much emphasis on athletics and, more significantly, on winning.

This is not a slam against sports and athletics, which when kept in the proper perspective provide tremendous benefits for the participants and great joy for the spectators. Learning teamwork, learning about dedication and commitment, learning how to lose, and building confidence are just a few of the rewards of participation in athletics, all of which spill over into nearly every other aspect of life. But to our great misfortune, so much of this goodness has been polluted by making winning, coupled with the relentless pursuit of the almighty dollar, the single most important goal.

Everything I ever needed to know about football, I didn't learn in Kindergarten (I didn't even go to Kindergarten)
by Melodee Hill

Last Sunday evening, like millions of other people planted on their couches, I watched television. How could I help it? I wanted to be part of a national event — something bigger than me, that took as little effort as picking up the remote. Lured by the hype of big budgets, big names, the hooks, the feints, the tension, and the excitement, I tuned in to the What-cha-ma-call-it Bowl to watch the commercials.

Honestly, I only watched the commercials. This is the only television show I ever watch so I can sit through the commercials. Usually, when I watch a television show, I change channels during commercials (like every other person on the planet) or I go do something productive, like clean the lint out of the dryer filter. The short (relatively) length of commercials usually precludes doing bigger jobs like waxing the car. If you've seen my car you know that they couldn't make a commercial long enough!

Anyway, if you've seen the Super Bowl you know it is just great lengths of time with guys running and falling down while other guys interminably describe all this incomprehensible running and falling. And in between that stuff are these great commercials. Which means that there are about three to four minutes that I actually want to watch, followed by 10 to 15 minutes when I can go do something important like wash the dishes or clean the fish's bowl. I tried to combine these two jobs once, but the fish...oh, never mind.

Sometimes, my timing was off and I found that I had missed the commercials and actually had to watch the game, so I wouldn't miss the next batch of advertisements. This probably sounds so unAmerican, but I've never cared for football very much. I don't completely understand it, and never really developed an affinity for any of the players. Sometimes a good "school-girl" crush will blossom into a desire to learn more about the "crushee's" chosen profession.

The closest I ever came to football royalty was hanging out at Gino Marchetti's hamburger drive-in when I was a teenager. Needless to say, I learned what a pass was, but it had nothing to do with football. And it was impossible to live near Baltimore in the heyday of the real Colts without hearing about Johnny Unitas, although I never ate at his restaurant. But my ninth grade math teacher was dating Bubba Smith, while she was our teacher! She probably had to learn all about football and learn to like it. It serves her right for trying to make me learn all about geometry and trying to make me like it.

Once, I met Tony Lindhart and rode to Atlantic City on the same bus that he did, but he seemed pretty normal to me. Of course, everyone has heard of O.J. and it wasn't Avis that made him famous, or even football for that matter. Then there were the two Joes. One was named after a state and the other one wore pantyhose on national television. Every now and then I hear a football-related name that I recognize, but for the most part, all I know about football is contained in the two preceding paragraphs. Except I do know that a football is called a pigskin and it isn't even made from pigs! Now, who could begin to understand a game that starts off like that?

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

On Monday, January 24, 2000, the life of our beloved Jeremy Scott Wiles, age 15, ended on Route 40 in a tractor trailer-snowmobile accident. He was killed instantly.

Jeremy is the son of Neil and Sandra Phillips of Grantsville. Unfortunately they have no life insurance on Jeremy for his funeral expenses. I am writing this letter with the prayer that you will publish it, and with the hope that some of your readers will find it in the goodness of their hearts, if possible, to make a donation to this devastated family to help them meet these funeral expenses. Please send donations to Neil Phillips, 146 Bowser Lane, Grantsville, MD 21536 (phone: 301-746-6533).

Thank you sincerely and God bless,
Kenneth Phillips

To the Editor:

Upon review of your article "Just Call Us... in the January 27 edition I am somewhat surprised in that I thought "responsible journalism" had replaced the "yellow journalism" of the 19th century. Your article appears to be filled with misinformation much of which only serves to inflame a perception by some, that state workers and the agencies they are employed by, are somehow absent the requisite professionalism in carrying out their duties. More important is the irresponsible assertion that the Department of Social Services failed in its obligation to respond to a "crisis situation" at a local elementary school.

For the record, let it be known that the Garrett County Department of Social Services and the staff who comprise the agency are residents and taxpayers of this county. When you impugn the agency's reputation through misinformation and innuendo you impugn the reputation of hardworking, professional, and responsible employees who live here.

Under no circumstance, whether by agency closure due to adverse weather conditions, unexpected emergencies or otherwise, is the public, other agencies, or law enforcement's ability to report suspected abuse or neglect to this agency ever compromised.

Every school's personnel in Garrett County are provided with regular in-services by Child Protective Service (CPS) workers who reinforce the procedure to follow when suspected abuse or neglect becomes apparent. These procedures require that DSS be called at (301) 533-3005 (child abuse hotline) during the work day. Even the main number of the agency (301) 533-3000 will take you to the same place. After the close of business or when the agency is closed through emergency proclamation 911 is used. The 911 system has been used by the Garrett County Department of Social Services for many years with great efficiency and effectiveness in reporting abuse or neglect cases. Maryland State Police, 911 staff, and the Sheriff's Department are always able to page CPS staff upon receipt of a complaint. Social Services staff provide 24-hour emergency coverage through both the "hot" line to the agency (301) 533-3005 and by pager activated at the close of business each day. The "hot" line connects directly to an Agency staff member throughout the normal business day who will respond accordingly. The "hot" line also references the 911 system for after hours coverage.

What is particularly troublesome with respect to the difficulties cited in reporting the "crisis" is the fact that on state holidays where the schools were open, e.g. Columbus Day or Veterans Day, the system we have in place worked. How can it work in one instance and yet be cited in another as a failure of the system? It either works or it doesn't. There are no selective days.

Staff of the Department of Social Services are to be commended for staying at their posts long after they could have legally left due to the emergency closing of state offices. The many staff who remained throughout the day made every attempt to accommodate customers who had scheduled appointments. If an appointment could be rescheduled safely it was done with the customer's approval. Where the customer could not be reached for rescheduling agency staff responded with the same high level of professionalism exhibited any other day of the year.

With respect to the closing, please be advised the local Department of Social Services does not have the legal authority to make unilateral decisions regarding closures or overriding a policy decision made in Annapolis. Those decisions are coordinated in Baltimore among a variety of responsible individuals and passed on to the counties, hopefully with the least amount of disruption possible.

The Garrett County Department of Social Services is a multi-year recipient of the "Governor's Award for Excellence" for Continuous Quality Improvement. That means this Agency is committed to protecting the safety and well being of the County's children, youth, and families at the highest level and quality of services available. Any community would be proud to have such a dedicated and professional staff as are located at the Garrett County Department of Social Services. In the future when you are not sure of the facts please "Just Call Us..." so that we may be able to help you separate fact from sensationalism.

Henry A. Brown
ACSW/LCSW-C
DCSW Director
Garrett County Department of Social Services

Mr. Brown:

"Methinks thou dost protest too much!"

First of all, this was not an "article." It was an editorial, which is an opinion; thus, it is biased. All opinions are biased. But the opinion is backed up by facts, leading me to my second point.

You say it is "filled with misinformation." What misinformation? The events cited in the editorial are absolutely factual, whether or not you want to believe them.

Thirdly, the editorial makes no judgment whatsoever about state employees ("impugn the Agency's reputation...???"). It judges only the decision of the governor to close state offices in Garrett County, where weather conditions consisted of a few snow flurries. It was a ridiculous decision. End of story.

Finally, and for the record, I agree with you wholeheartedly that the great majority of state employees, particularly here in Garrett County, are professional, dedicated, concerned, hard-working individuals, who often go beyond the call of duty to make sure that the job is done completely and properly. We here at The Republican know that firsthand with some folks in your office, for example, who have been immensely helpful with our Warm the Children project.

To any other local state employees who felt as Mr. Brown did about the editorial, I apologize if it made you think I was being critical of how you do your job. I don't believe I was, and that certainly was not my intent.

Editor

To the Editor:

I am addressing this letter to the Garrett County Board of Commissioners and request you also print it in your newspaper. My name is Jeff Murphy and I'm a law enforcement officer in this county. I have become aware of a situation that greatly displeases me. I understand that the Board of County Commissioners has hired a private investigator to investigate an allegation of theft from the Garrett County Roads Department garage in Accident. I am concerned about several things in this action.

First of all, this alleged theft was initially reported to the Maryland State Police and not enough information was given to initiate an investigation. Then it was reported to the Garrett Bureau of Investigation (GBI) in January 1999. The information was given to the investigator by the supervisor of the county roads department. He had received the information from an anonymous caller who didn't give specifics as to the stolen property other than to say some fuel and tools had been stolen. The investigator requested the supervisor to obtain a list of stolen property based on an inventory from the Accident garage. The supervisor was not able to provide this list or prove that anything had been stolen. A surveillance camera was placed in operation at the garage without anyone having knowledge of it to monitor activity at the garage and fuel pumps. No unusual activity was recorded.

In December 1999, the new county roads supervisor again reported the same allegations. Again the allegations were based on general information received from an anonymous caller. Another investigator from the GBI requested a list of stolen property from this supervisor. The supervisor was not able to determine if a theft had occurred. The supervisor agreed to contact the GBI when he could prove a theft occurred or obtained further information.

Shortly after this conversation you [County Commissoiners] contacted a private investigator. False information was provided to him alleging the theft of 5,200 gallons of fuel from the county roads garage in Accident and paid him $40 an hour to work surveillance on the garage. This surveillance again revealed no unusual activity. The same as the surveillance camera.

My second concern is that at this point, instead of reporting the additional information as agreed upon to the GBI you purposely went to the county state's attorney's office to have an investigation conducted. It's ironic that the investigator from the state's attorney's office that took the case was assigned to the GBI.

This investigator from the state's attorney's office determined immediately that the reported theft of 5,200 gallons of fuel was bogus. He was able to obtain confessions from county roads employees regarding minor thefts. It's interesting that you continued to pay the private investigator as he sat in on the interviews of various employees of the county roads department.

Lastly, I understand the private investigator's total bill for his time was over $4,000. I take no issue with the private investigator. I know the investigator and I know the caliber of investigation he is capable of conducting. The issue I take is with the Board of County Commissioners. It is obvious that because of ongoing conflict with the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, you chose to use this private investigator. What did you accomplish by this action? No information was received from the private investigator from his surveillance, and the interviews he sat in on were conducted by another investigator. What you accomplished was to spend over $4,000 of the taxpayer's money for no new information. With this action you were willing to pay this private investigator a higher hourly rate than any law enforcement officer in this county. I believe it's appropriate that you pay the bill for the private investigator out of your own pocket.

I don't understand the action that you have taken. If you believe that the Garrett County Sheriff's Office or its members assigned to the GBI cannot conduct a proper investigation into the thefts regarding county property because of conflicts between the Board of County Commissioners and our agency, you are grossly mistaken. I refer you to the theft of a county roads truck taken on January 2, 2000. It took the GBI only two days to solve the case and make an arrest. Our professionalism will not waiver in the midst of personal conflict, however, it's obvious that the same cannot be said of you.

To the Editor:

My name is Matthew Emerick, and I am a senior at Meyersdale Area High School. I have an after-school job at a dairy farm milking 50 cows in Mount Savage. Many farms are going under every day. Why? Milk prices.

As of Jan. 3, the price we get for the milk we sell went to $9 for 100 pounds of milk. This averages out to 76 cents a gallon. But if you go to the market and buy a gallon of milk, you will pay between $2.20 and $2.60 a gallon. That's a difference of $1.50 or more.

Dairy farming is not a five-day-a-week job from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; it's a 365-day-a-year job from 4 in the morning to 8 or 9 o'clock at night, and if you do the math, we ship an average of 5,000 pounds of milk every other day. This amount equals 75,000 pounds of milk in a 30-day month. Being paid $9 per cwt. the farmer ends up with about $6,750 for his milk at the end of the month, but, when all a farmer's expenses are figured into this gross minthly income, he's lucky to make $.70 per hour — way under the minimum wage. How would the average American act if he/she received that kind of pay today? I know I wouldn't be too happy!

I believe that Americans have forgotten who raises the food to feed this great nation. Many take for granted that they can just walk in the store and buy a gallon of milk or a can of fruit or vegetables. Many do not even think how that food got there, let alone how many hours of work it took to get that produce to the market.

Oakland Man Heading Project To Build Houses In Honduran Village

In a remote village in Honduras, Oakland resident Tom Doyle has helped initiate a building project for 32 families. Having recently returned from a trip to the area, Doyle is now planning to go back in March, armed with more supplies and funds to continue the work there.

The village is that of Marion, where the villagers currently live in dirt-floor huts made of twigs or slabs of wood. Doyle first learned of this village in his church's (United Brethren in Christ) mission publication, which stated that the villagers had need of safe drinking water, as they were using water for drinking and bathing from a nearby river. The river was being polluted by the local palm oil company, which was dispersing chemicals into the river. The villagers were becoming ill and developing sores on their skin. There was a water supply available, but it was several miles from the village.

Doyle contacted denomination headquarters and volunteered to assist in supplying pipe for the water supply if the villagers would dig the ditch and install it. He reported that they did so, in record time, digging, by hand, a two-foot ditch along the several miles to the village from the water supply. Now each hut has its own faucet of safe water, he said. After the project was completed, the residents held a dedication ceremony.

Doyle said the villagers earn their living by fishing in a nearby lake. They eat the fish and also sell it for cash for other expenses. (A few work for the palm oil company.) They also raise chickens.

"They seem to have a fairly balanced diet of fish, chicken, eggs, corn, and fresh fruit, which is locally grown (grapefruit, oranges, pineapple, bananas). They appear to be well nourished," he said. However, he stressed that they have very little cash for purchasing other necessities.

"For example, I saw a baby who appeared to have an infection in his eyes. He was taken to a doctor by his mother, but she could not afford the medicine he prescribed ($7 in U.S. currency). That medication has now been supplied, and the baby is being treated," he reported.

The village people have built a new block building, which serves as their church and also houses the pastor and his family. They have an even newer three-room, block school building. Doyle said a single dirt road divides the small town, lined by the twig huts. These houses consist of one empty room with no water inside, no electricity, no phone, no kitchen, no bathroom, no furniture. Most have small hammocks for the babies; everyone else sleeps on the floor.

"They have no sanitary facilities whatsoever — they go in the bush!" Doyle said. "Because of this, my initial thought was that they should have a type of community bathhouse for sanitary facilities, bathing, and laundry. However, after discussing it with them (through an interpreter), they made it very clear that they would prefer to have houses."

Doyle determined that the villagers were willing to build their own homes if they had the necessary materials and supplies.

The next step was to determine ownership of the village property, have the building project approved by local officials, design the type of houses to be built, and locate materials and supplies. The remainder of his visit was spent in purchasing a cement mixer, a block machine for actually making the cement blocks on site, and opening an account with a local building supply company for purchasing materials to make windows, doors, roofs, and other items. Doyle met with a member of an building crew from the United States and discussed construction techniques in Honduras, as well as with a representative of Samaritan's Purse, a Christian organization which has been rebuilding homes in Honduras since Hurricane Mitch. "He made several invaluable suggestions regarding the project," Doyle reported.

The Garrett Countian plans to return to Honduras in March, with the hope that he can get the villagers started on construction. Donations are needed for funding the project, he said, with the total cost being approximately $50,000.

"Funds have been donated to date for the erection of four homes, and Naylor's Hardware has generously donated a generator for the project," Doyle said.

Contributions (which are tax deductible) can be forwarded to: First United Bank & Trust c/o Trust Department "Marion, Honduras Project" PO Box 9, Oakland, MD 21550. Doyle can be contacted at P.O. Box 289, Oakland, MD 21550, or 301-334-4808 to answer any questions about the project.

LOCAL MAN WORKING TO ASSIST HONDURAN VILLAGE — Tom Doyle, Oakland, recently returned from a trip to Honduras, where he explored the possibilities of constructing new homes for 32 families living in a remote village called Marion (shown above and below). While the villagers have a fairly stable diet and recently were able to establish a fresh water system among the twig huts, they would like to be able to build houses to replace the shanties. If they are provided with the materials, they will build the homes themselves. Doyle has since arranged for the purchase of a cement mixer and a cement block machine for the project. He will be going back to the village in March to continue work there. Persons who would like to donate to the project may send contributions (tax-deductible) to First United Bank & Trust, c/o Trust Fund "Marion, Honduras Project," P.O. Box 9, Oakland, MD 21550. Howard County Man Jailed For Hit & Run, DWI

A Howard County man was arrested Sunday afternoon when he turned himself in at the front counter of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office following a hit-and-run accident in McHenry that took place earlier that day.

Christopher William Marsh, 20, Ellicott City, faces charges of hit and run and driving while intoxicated stemming from the 2:45 a.m. incident. He told deputies that he had left a McHenry establishment and drove his Dodge pickup truck south along Deep Creek Drive, where he reportedly drove into the yard of a residence and struck two trees and the house, causing over $300 worth of damage to the structure as well as knocking his own front tire off. He is also accused of striking a fire hydrant along the road before entering southbound Garrett Highway and traveling for over two miles before running the truck into an embankment near the Trading Post.

Marsh was picked up by a passerby at that point and taken to Arrowhead Market, where, instead of calling police to report the accident, he called for a friend to pick him up. The passerby then notified police, who were unable to apprehend Marsh before the friend arrived. Fourteen hours later Marsh turned himself in at the sheriff's office, where deputies who reportedly detected the faint odor of alcohol on his person conducted sobriety tests.

Marsh was arrested and subsequently released from the Garrett County Detention Center after he posted a $500 bond as set by a district court commissioner.

In other sheriff's news, two local men are facing drug charges after their Sunday morning arrests outside the BFS convenience store along Maryland Highway in Mtn. Lake Park. A deputy observed a vehicle sitting in the parking lot at 1:45 a.m. with Scott Allen Hebb, 21, Mtn. Lake Park, seated at the wheel, with Mark Henry Cosner, 28, Swanton, in the passenger's seat.

The deputy, who knew that a bench warrant was on file charging Hebb with contempt of court, apprehended him at that time. An ensuing search uncovered a brass smoking pipe containing suspected marijuana under the front seat, and a pill bottle containing suspected marijuana in Cosner's pocket.

Hebb, who was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia as well as DWI, remains held on a $10,000 bond. Cosner, charged with possession of marijuana, was later released on his own recognizance.

Thomas E. Roy, 40, of Pleasant Valley Road, was arrested and charged with second degree assault shortly before noon on Sunday. He is accused of striking his wife during an altercation in which his reported intoxication was cited as a factor. He was apprehended hiding in a cattle barn behind a residence, and was subsequently released after posting a $500 bond.

David Edwin Liller, 38, Corinth, W.Va., was arrested at the Oakland Farmer's Market store Friday evening and charged with trespassing and disorderly conduct. Deputies called to the store for a report of an intoxicated man sitting in the milk cooler found Liller standing in the aisle in front of the cooler. He had allegedly been cursing at customers before deputies arrived, and after his arrest Liller was released on his own recognizance.

Virginia Lorraine Moore, 46, Oakland, was arrested on Friday, Jan. 24, and charged with second degree assault after an argument with a family member. Both parties had reportedly been drinking, which was cited as a factor in the incident. Moore was later released on her own recognizance.

David Francis Moon, 43, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested shortly after 12 a.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 11, and charged with two counts of second degree assault. He had allegedly struck two family members during a domestic altercation at his residence the night before. He was released after posting a $1,000 bond.

Robert L. Pyles, 33, Oakland, was arrested on Sunday, Jan. 9, and charged with three counts of second degree assault. The charges stemmed from three separate domestic altercations, one of which reportedly took place in October and the other two in December. He was later released on his own recognizance.

The following persons were arrested recently and charged with either driving while intoxicated or driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs: James William Sines, 25, Friendsville; Jeffrey Ray Henderson, 21, Mtn. Lake Park; and Christopher Thomas Hardy, 30, Salisbury.

American Heart Association®
Fighting Heart Disease and Stroke

Cardiovascular disease is the number one killer of Americans.

Each day in America, several hundred cardiac arrest victims die before they reach the hospital. During February, for American Heart Month 2000, the American Heart Association urges all Americans to help improve the national cardiac arrest survival rate by taking quick action when faced with a cardiac arrest emergency.

The theme for American Heart Month 2000 is: "Be An American Heartsaver! Know the warning signs of heart attack. Call 911. Give CPR."

"Since 70 to 80 percent of all cardiac arrest emergencies occur in the home, knowing CPR can help you save the life of a loved one," said Dr. Robert R. Bass, executive director of the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Service Systems.

More than 95 percent of Americans who suffer sudden cardiac arrest die before reaching the hospital, which equates to almost 250,000 deaths per year.

Heart attack is one of the primary causes of cardiac arrest. Other causes may be electrocution, drowning, respiratory arrest, choking, or trauma. When a person goes into cardiac arrest, the heart's electrical impulses become chaotic. This irregular heart rhythm, called ventricular fibrillation, causes the heart to stop suddenly.

Automated external defibrillators, or AEDs, are electronic devises that deliver an electric shock to the heart to store its natural rhythm. "Early defibrillation is the critical link in the cardiac arrest chain of survival, the only treatment to correct ventricular fibrillation. The sooner the heart can be restarted, the better the chances of recovery," an American Heart Association spokesperson said.

For more information persons may call 1-800-AHA-USA1 or visit the web site at www.americanheart.org.

Cardiovascular Disease In America

- Cardiovascular disease is the No. 1 cause of death and annually kills more Americans than the next seven leading causes of death combined, including cancer, accidents, pneumonia, influenza, AIDS, diabetes, and suicides.
- Cardiovascular disease claims more than 959,000 lives in the U.S. each year. This is 41.4 percent of deaths or 1 of every 2.4 deaths.
- More than 2,600 Americans die each day of cardiovascular disease — an average of one death every 33 seconds.
- One in five Americans — nearly 59 million people — suffer from cardiovascular disease.
- Thirty percent of all coronary attacks occur in people younger than 65.

Risk Of Winter Sports Injuries Can Be Decreased

Winter is officially here and so are the injuries that are associated with the popular winter sports, including basketball, snowskiing, snowboarding, and cross country skiing, among others. Ankle and knee injuries plague the sports arena and are very common in the winter season.

Can these injuries be prevented? To a certain degree, it is possible to guard against injuries. With any sport a proper warm-up can save an athlete from season-ending injuries. Stretches involving all major muscle groups prior to play are a necessity — not only to prevent muscle injury, but to allow muscles to function to their full potential. Having good flexibility applies to all sports, including the outdoor winter sports such as skiing and snowboarding.

In the off season, training for strength prepares the muscle groups for the demands placed upon them during play. Increased muscle soreness and fatigue can result in injury when beginning a new activity with no prior preparation.

Proper equipment is of the utmost importance in preventing injury. It is essential to have equipment properly fitted to you. Proper equipment can include extra apparel to provide protection for hard hit areas of the body. Wrist injuries are common among the popular sport of snowboarding, and wrist supports and braces can be easily obtained to protect the wrist from hard falls. When snowskiing, it is important that the ski boots release from the ski when necessary to prevent knee ligament tears. Helmets should be used in all sports where head injuries occur.

As in all sports, the best pathway to injury prevention is to be smart and prepare in all aspects of the sport you are going to participate in. Injuries can happen to all ages. Play safe and be prepared.

Animal Abuse Seen Linked To Human Violence

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) classifies animal cruelty as a predictor of future violent behavior. Animal protection organizations such as the Humane Society have publicized statistics on the animal/human abuse link, and last fall held a multi-discipline seminar to further examine this topic.

The recently published quarterly newsletter from Garrett County's resource center for domestic violence and sexual abuse, the Dove Center, focuses on this link between abusive behaviors. Several articles delve into different aspects of this connection and stress the fact that society as a whole "has yet to take this issue seriously."

Among points made in the newsletter are these: Animal abuse is not a normal part of child development; over 80 percent of victims surveyed at domestic violence shelters talk of incidents of animal abuse in the home; in a study of 57 families being treated for cases of child abuse, 88 percent of the families also abused animals.

The newsletter also noted that women with pets may be reluctant to leave a violent domestic environment because they know that their pets are vulnerable if left behind. Animal shelters in many areas, including Garrett County, take care of the pets while the victims are "working on staying safe," it reported.

For more information on the Dove Center's services, persons may call 301-334-9000 or 301-895-4300.

Radon Test Kits Offered By ALA

The American Lung Association of Maryland is offering two "do it yourself" home radon testing kits to Maryland homeowners. The short-term kit sells for just $12, plus tax. The long-term kit sells for $22, plus tax.

With the short-term kit, homeowners test their indoor air with a special sampler for four to seven days, then mail the materials for laboratory analysis. The long-term kit provides the opportunity to test indoor air for three months to a year, allowing for a more accurate reading.

Radon is a colorless, odorless, and tasteless radioactive gas caused by the natural decay of uranium, which is present in most rock and soil. It enters buildings through cracks in walls or foundations and is found in all types of homes. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) studies have identified radon exposure as the second leading cause of lung cancer.

Radon gas contains radioactive particles that may get trapped in the lungs. These particles release small bursts of energy that may damage lung tissue and may lead to lung cancer. Some estimates claim that radon may cause as many as 14,000 cancer deaths per year. The risk of getting lung cancer from radon exposure is especially high for smokers and those exposed to secondhand smoke in the home.

Homes throughout Maryland may be at risk for radon contamination, and the only way to detect the presence of radon is to test for it. For more information, or to purchase a home testing kit, persons may contact the American Lung Association of Maryland at 800-LUNG-USA, fax 410-560-0829, or e-mail: radon@amlungmd.com. Kits may be purchased by check, Visa, or MasterCard. Information on radon is also available at the American Lung Association web site: www.lungusa.org.

Two Charged

"Pat Kelly has spent many hours over the past three weeks interviewing current and former county roads employees," the state's attorney said. "Although additional allegations of taking or misusing county property were made, there was no evidence to corroborate the allegations. At this time, I consider the criminal investigation closed."

The felony theft charge was levied against Carl Schmidt for his alleged taking and keeping of a chain saw purchased by the roads department. He was charged with misdemeanor theft for fuel being put in his personal vehicle, according to the report. Donald Schmidt was charged with felony theft for allegedly taking county-owned gravel to dump in his own driveway.

As a result of this case, Welch said her staff is preparing to present recommendations to the commissioners to help prevent a reoccurrence of these events.

"This includes more specific policies concerning access and use of county property and equipment, and procedures to clearly identify county property as such," Welch said.

The commissioners will reportedly pay Proulx approximately $4,000 for his work on this case.

"We surveyed the employers who attended last year," a committee spokesperson said. "An overwhelming majority supported the earlier start. We feel this change will benefit both the employers and job seekers."

Area Resident Is Vocalist For "President's Own"

Kevin Bennear, former resident of Elk Garden, W.Va., a graduate of Potomac State College of West Virginia University and of West Virginia University, has been selected as the vocalist for the "President's Own" Marine Corps Band, Washington, D.C. Last week Bennear was sworn into the Marine Corps as a staff sergeant and will be living in the Washington, D.C., area.

The "President's Own" is the oldest professional musical organization in the United States, and was established in 1798 by an act of Congress. Bennear had to audition several times and competed with over 300 applicants for this position. "The competition was extraordinary," he said, "I didn't think I would make it."

While serving in this capacity, it will be his duty to perform at special occasions at the White House, at the various embassies in Washington, and perhaps at the presidential inauguration in 2001.

While still attending Elk Garden High School, Bennear was a voice student of Professor Richard Davis at Potomac State. In December, Bennear completed a master of music degree from the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, earned a bachelor of music at West Virginia University in 1997, and an A.A. of music from Potomac State College in 1992.

Bennear is the son of Mrs. Dolly Bennear Baker, Elk Garden, and the late Paul F. Bennear. His father and mother, along with siblings Debbie Bolyard, Paul Jr., and Mark, all of Elk Garden, and sister Angie Oronzio of Philadelphia, encouraged his music studies through the years.

"Kevin Bennear has one of the strongest voices I know, was an excellent actor in several of our local theater productions while a student at Potomac State, and is a good friend," stated Dr. John Hawkins, professor of music and producer/director of Potomac State College theatrical productions.

Bennear has also performed with Theater West Virginia, Sight and Sound Inc., and the Apple Ally Players, and he toured Europe with the Continental Orchestra.

Family Child Care Option Offered By Local Head Start

A family child care provider's option has been instituted by the Head Start program of the Garrett County Community Action Committee. The new option, currently funded for 10 slots, provides eligible children age 3 - 5 with six hours of Head Start programming with a trained family child care provider. "The new family child care Head Start expansion targets working families in need of a quality full-day, full-year child development program for their children," said Mary Beckman, director of Head Start.

Three private family child care providers have been approved by Community Action for Head Start slots — Penny Lapp of Grantsville, who operates the Small Wonders center; Debbie Workman of Accident, who operates the Love and Care For Kids center; and Dianna Frantz, who operates the Helping Hands center in the Oakland area. Head Start already has two children enrolled in the option and a third in the enrollment process, while seven slots remain countywide.

Operating the same as the center-based option, Head Start children receive early child development, health, nutrition, family, and educational services in a private family child care setting rather than a Head Start classroom. Offering child care before and after the Head Start hours, the expanded family child care can accommodate working parents who need more than Head Start's six hours of child care service. Purchase of Care vouchers for families who have an identified need for wraparound services is provided through the Garrett County Department of Social Services, a primary collaborator in the project.

Beckman used Dianna Frantz's Helping Hands Child Care Center to illustrate the quality of services available through all three family child care providers. Helping Hands has been operating as a private child care provider since 1994 and is licensed for 23 children. Frantz has a five-member staff and maintains a staff ratio of 1-to-3 for infants and 1-to-10 for all other ages with no more than three 2-year-olds.

Frantz, who must meet the minimum educational requirements for all Head Start teachers, possesses an associate of arts degree in business from the University of Maryland and an associate of arts degree in elementary education from Garrett Community College. She has four children of her own, ages 9 to 15.

A concentrated effort is being made to identify children whose families are in need of full-day, five-day per week, year-round child care and comprehensive child development services for their 3- to 5-year-old children, according to Beckman. "Head Start is extremely excited about this particular expansion" with the three family child care providers, she said. "The advantage of this option is that not only Head Start children but all the other children in the family child care centers will receive the same quality services."

For additional information about the new Head Start family child care provider's option, interested parents and guardians may contact the Head Start office at 301-334-9431 or toll-free at 1-888-877-8403, ext. 126.

HEAD START EXPANDS PROGRAMMING - The new family child care option of the Garrett Community Action Committee's Head Start program provides all the services offered by center-based Head Start programs in a private child care setting. Three private providers, Debbie Workman of Accident, Penny Lapp of Grantsville, and Dianna Frantz of Oakland, currently offer the service. Shown above are a group of children under Frantz's supervision at Helping Hands Child Care Center; from the left are Lisa Phomey (with the bangs), Frantz, and Kyle and Jessica Klotz. Slots are still open for the option, and inquiries may be made by calling the Head Start office at 301-334-9431 or toll-free 1-888-877-8403, ext. 126.

Nominations For GC Women's Hall Of Fame Sought

The Garrett County Commission for Women (GCCW) is currently seeking nominations of local women for induction into the Garrett County Women's Hall of Fame.

"We invite organizations and individuals to nominate women for the Hall of Fame. Nominations should represent women who have made outstanding contributions to Garrett County and are examples for tomorrow's leaders," said Sandi Flockhart, chairperson of the Commission for Women.

Under the guidance of the GCCW, a selection committee representing a cross-section of county citizens will review the nominations and select up to three new Hall of Fame members.

The Hall of Fame was established in 1995 as a permanent means to recognize the significant contributions of Garrett County's women throughout the county's history. Past inductees include Polly J. Hanst, Wilda W. Massi, Ruth H. Ryan, Martha U. Jachowski, Dr. Alta Schrock, Edith G. Brock, Brenda J. Butscher, Jane B. Avery, Martha I. Glotfelty, Ruth G. DiPaolo, Mary Love, and Roberta Andersen. The 2000 inductees will be honored at a breakfast on Saturday, March 25.

Nomination packets with complete instructions may be obtained by calling Julie Yoder at 301-245-4065. Packets will also be available at all Ruth Enlow libraries. The deadline for filing nomination packets is Feb. 15.

WQSR Radio Broadcasts Live At Wisp Resort

Garrett County was heard throughout the greater Baltimore metropolitan area Saturday when WQSR radio broadcast live from the Wisp Resort in McHenry. The event was hosted by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce as part of a promotional strategy to increase winter tourism activity.

According to chamber president Ken Wishnick, the radio personalities created a party atmosphere as skiers took a midday break. Sportscaster Tom Davis gave away prizes as part of a sports trivia quiz, a group of Baltimore area visitors sang over the airwaves, and Garrett County resident George Falter read a skiing poem, Wishnick reported. There were also giveaways for knowledge of obscure Garrett County facts. Listeners were asked the elevation of Backbone Mountain, number of acres in Deep Creek Lake, number of traffic lights in all of Garrett County, and other questions that were designed to help promote interest in the area. Trivia prizes were donated by Rudy's, High Mountain Sports, Bumble Q's Restaurant, and Smiley's Pizzeria and Fun Zone.

Wishnick said that WQSR is the top radio station in the Baltimore area market, and the "Rouse and Company" show is the most listened to on that station. "Radio is a great way to publicize Garrett County," said Wishnick. "We have added this media to our print ads, travel show, and editorial strategies that make up our tourism promotion program."

The WQSR radio package negotiated by the chamber includes two full weeks of publicity. The first week announced the upcoming live remote and also publicized local businesses that purchased co-op ads. This is followed by an additional week of publicity as winners are named on-air for donated Garrett County getaway vacations and prizes. Getaway prizes were donated by Railey Mountain Lake Vacations, A&A Long and Foster Rentals, Coldwell Banker, Herrington Manor State Park, Deep Creek Lake State Park, Wisp Resort Hotel, Cornish Manor Restaurant, the Fun Zone, High Mountain Sports, Deep Creek Outfitters, and USA Raft.

"This promotion shows what we can all do when we work together cooperatively," said Wishnick. "We've received tremendous exposure at a time of the year when we are often overlooked by potential visitors." In all, Garrett County will be mentioned over 120 times on WQSR.

Chamber members shared in the cost of the event by purchasing announcements for their individual businesses and donating prizes. Promotions were also aired for the Adventure Sport Program at Garrett Community College. Accommodations for the WQSR crew were provided by Karen Myers of A&A Long and Foster Rentals, and Doug McClive served dinner to the group at his McHenry restaurant.

BROADCASTING LIVE on Saturday from the Wisp Resort in McHenry was WQSR Radio, with sportscaster Tom Davis, above left, and morning show host Steve Rouse, center, awarding prizes and conducting interviews of both visitors and local residents at the Wisp. The promotional program was arranged by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. Pictured below with chamber president Ken Wishnick, third from right, are the WQSR broadcast crew members, from left: Kate Billingmeyer, Steve Rouse, Maynard G, Tom Davis, and Samuel Tatum. My Little Box

When there are times I miss you so, and I can't stand the pain,
I wander to my bedroom and get the box again.
Inside it are the memories that tell me you were here,
I hold the things so tightly, then pretend that you are near.

The pencils and the tablets that you used, I see.
The many little notes you wrote, just to say that you loved me!
The cards you made for Mothers Day seem oh so precious now.
I cry to God sometimes at night to give you back somehow!

I wish that I could hold you close just once again my child.
My heartbeat races in my chest, my anger rages wild.
The tears begin to fall and then I question my own worth,
Was I the kind of mother that you wanted here on earth?

Now that you are up above and looking down on me.
Do you know all there is to know, do you like what you see?
Have you seen the times I've cried, just wishing you were here,
And do you know how sad I've been for most of this last year?

I thank God for all the joy you brought into my life,
And I know you're free of all the pain and strife.
But when I find I cannot stand the loneliness once more,
I go ahead and turn off the phone, and I lock the door

I travel to the bedroom where in silence once again,
I open up the closet and see the things within.
I lose myself inside the notes you wrote and drew for me,
I find I cannot stop the tears, and they won't let me see!

Slowly, I go through everything as I have done before,
And then I place it all away and close the closet door.
Then slowly get back to the things I know that I must do,
But I'll be back before too long to sit and talk with you.

For there is little I can do to stop the constant pain,
Of knowing I will never hold you in my arms again.
But I can sit and hold the things like pens, and shirts and socks,
And just enjoy the things I've hidden in my little box.

Mom & Dad

North And South Clash In Overtime Thriller; Rams Win

The Southern-Northern boys' varsity basketball game played Friday night in Oakland had every element of a classic Ram-Husky clash — a packed gymnasium, two highly "fired-up" teams, the team behind at halftime rallying in the second half, and overtime. The score was knotted at 28-28 at the end of the third quarter, 40-40 at the end of the fourth quarter, and finally the Rams out-scored the upset-minded Huskies in the overtime period, 16-6, to earn a 56-46 Western Maryland Interscholastic League victory.

The win was the 11th in 15 starts for the Rams, whose WMIL record was improved to 7-1, while the Huskies dropped to 9-5 overall and 3-4 in the league.

The Huskies controlled the first half of play, as they held the Rams to just four points in the first quarter and seven in the second. Northern was on top 12-4 after one and 20-11 at halftime. The Rams finally outscored the Huskies in the third stanza, 17-8, to knot the score at 28-28, and each team hit a dozen points in the fourth to send the game into overtime. A free throw by Northern's A.J. Thomas in the waning seconds of the fourth quarter is what tied the score at 40-40.

Most of the 10-point margin of victory was scored from the foul line by the Rams, who jumped out to a 44-40 lead with two quick baskets, and then connected on 10 of 14 free throws to secure the win.

After being held scoreless in the first half, Southern's senior guard Nathaniel Panther found the mark in the second half and finished with a team-high 18 points, with eight of them coming in the third quarter and six in the overtime period. Justin Liller also had a strong individual performance for Southern, as he finished with 13 points, six rebounds, and five assists. Justin Stephens also reached double figures with 10 points and pulled down eight rebounds.

Pacing the Huskies was Rob Dozier with a game-high 23 points and 17 rebounds. The Ram defense held senior guard Greg Speicher to just two points.

"It was our good fortune to get the ball first in the overtime period and to score," stated Southern coach Tom Bosley. "Then after we scored again, they were forced to foul us and, fortunately, we hit most of our shots."

The Southern junior varsity had no trouble disposing of the Northern jayvees in the preliminary game, as the Rams coasted to a 58-21 win. Ricky Reams led the Rams in scoring with 18 points and Chad Panther also reached double figures with 12.

The Rams will meet the Huskies again this Friday at the Cove, with tip-off set for 7:30 p.m. (junior varsity, 6 p.m.). They will host Beall next Tuesday.

The Huskies, who defeated Hancock and Allegany this past week (see other story), will travel to Westmar next Tuesday after hosting Southern on Friday.

RAMS, HUSKIES CLASH - Friday's big varsity boys game between the Southern Rams and Northern Huskies, played on the Rams' floor, was a thriller for both sides, as overtime was needed to determine a winner. The score was tied at the end of the third quarter (28-28) and at the end of the fourth quarter (40-40), but the Rams ultimately emerged with a 10-point victory. Above, Husky guard Greg Speicher drives against Southern's Christian Warfield (#22) and Justin Liller (#40). Ram Freshmen Whip Falcons

A 25-point scoring effort by Dennis Tressler powered the Southern High School freshmen boys team over host Frankfort, 56-37, last Thursday. Joe Davis also reached double figures with 11 points.

The Rams led by only three, 17-14, at halftime, but poured it on in the second half.

Adam White scored 13 points to pace the Falcons.

The Southern freshmen, coached by Jon Hegeman, were slated to play again last night, but results of that contest were not reported.

Huskies Sandwich Loss To Rams With Two Victories

The varsity boys of Northern High School squeezed in three basketball games this past week, despite extreme winter weather conditions, and they came away with two victories and one overtime defeat. The Huskies whipped visiting Hancock last Thursday, 56-41, lost a Western Maryland Interscholastic League heartbreaker to county rival Southern on Friday in Oakland, 56-46, in overtime (see other story), and then recorded a big WMIL victory over host Allegany, 68-50, Tuesday night. The results left Coach Paul Edwards and his team with an 11-5 overall record and a 4-4 mark in the WMIL.

Rob Dozier had a double-double night against Hancock last Thursday, as he paced the Huskies with 19 points and 21 rebounds. The 6-5 junior center also blocked three shots.

After a close first quarter, which ended with Northern up 12-9, the Huskies out-scored the Panthers in the second quarter, 24-9, to take a 36-18 lead into the locker room at halftime. Dozier and Greg Speicher led the second-quarter scoring with seven and five points, respectively. The Huskies were on top 45-30 after three stanzas.

Dozier was the only Northern player who finished in double figures, while Spencer Shives netted 14 to lead Hancock.

The Northern junior varsity coasted to a 61-39 win in the preliminary game behind an 18-point effort by Jensen Long. Josh Swandol was right behind with 17 points, while Greg Bender and Jeff Wilson each netted 11. Leading the Hancock jayvees were Chris Wills and Jeremy Newton with 13 and 11, respectively.

Tim Umbel, Dozier, and Speicher led the way in the Huskies' mild upset of Allegany on Tuesday night in Cumberland, as Umbel recorded 22 points, 10 assists, and six steals for possibly his best individual performance of the season. Dozier finished with 18 points and 14 rebounds, while Speicher hit four long-range baskets and finished with 15 points.

The Campers moved out to a 25-19 advantage by the end of the first quarter, but the Husky defense played its most outstanding eight minutes of the season in the second quarter, limiting the home team to just two points. Meanwhile, the Huskies put 23 points on the board and assumed a 42-27 halftime advantage.

Defensively the Huskies did not let up much in the third period, holding the Campers to just six points, but Alco also held the Huskies to just seven points, giving Northern a 49-33 advantage going into the final quarter.

Both offenses played better in the final period, with the Huskies hitting 19 more points and Allegany scoring 17.

Nathan Simpson led three Campers who finished in double figures, as he scored 18 points. Mike McGreevy contributed 12 and Jacob Kagey netted 11.

The loss dropped the Campers to 9-7 overall and 6-4 in the WMIL.

The Northern junior varsity was hammered in the first game, 61-33, as Allegany's Aaron Laffey hit a game-high 21 points. Jensen Long scored 14 for the Huskies.

The Huskies will get another shot at the Southern Rams this Friday, and on their own floor, after nearly topping the Rams in Oakland last Friday. They are slated to travel to Westmar next Tuesday.

Stephanie N. Schmitz

North Pole High School was filled with heartache Tuesday as students and faculty confronted the sudden loss of a well-loved senior, Stephanie Nicole Schmitz. Stephanie died in a traffic accident on Monday, January 24, 2000, in North Pole, Alaska.

Stephanie lived in Garrett County for two years, attending 8th grade at Southern Middle School and 9th grade at Southern High School. Known to many of her fellow classmates as "The girl from Alaska," Stephanie was a very likable young woman and an excellent student who took challenging courses.

In addition to being a senior at North Pole High School, Stephanie also served as an airman in the Alaska Air National Guard. She was also a member of the wrestling team and had been active in the school drama program, behind the scenes and on stage, since her junior year. She was an honor roll student and had been granted a University of Alaska Fairbanks scholarship. Because of her love for animals, she planned on becoming a veterinarian. Stephanie also enjoyed water skiing, snow machining and fishing.

"She was a really big part of this school," said North Pole High School wrestling coach Walt Armstrong. "She touched a lot of lives and she will be sorely missed around here. She was the kind of athlete you always wish you had. Schmitz was always working hard and would do whatever she could to better the team, even offering to switch weight classes if it would help," Armstrong said. "She was an 'A' student just as sweet as can be; always with a smile and willing to help her classmates," he said.

North Pole High School principal Vivian Dailey said, "It's real quiet in the hallways. There is a lot of sorrow and grief among the kids; she was a really big part of this school." The high school has pulled together as a family to talk and grieve together. "The students are writing letters and sharing poems with each other," said Dailey, "They are doing some real positive things."

An estimated 450 family, friends and acquaintances arrived at the New Hope Methodist Church, where Stephanie was a member, to pay tribute to Stephanie. More than a dozen friends and classmates gathered the strength to share their thoughts and stories of the blonde wrestler who loved school, horses, moose hunting, and eating dill pickles and Oreos.

Her family stated, "Stephanie was a beautiful, vivacious girl who was loved very much. She touched many lives and will be deeply missed by all. Her spirit will keep her alive forever in all our hearts. She is leaving with us a legacy more powerful than we will ever feel in our hearts."

Stephanie is survived by her mother and stepfather, Sherry L. and Ernie L. Graham of Mountain Lake Park, MD; her sister Sarah Schmitz; her siblings, Tabby Graham, Greg Graharn, Justin Miller, and Tyler Miller; her father and stepmother, Steven J. and Kimberly A Schmitz of North Pole; her maternal grandparents, Jack and Eileen Schofield of Alum Bank, PA, and Patrick and Ann Godin and Dawn and Peter Marr, all of Maine; her paternal grandmother, Helen Schmitz of Spartanburg, SC. She is also survived by her uncles, Glenn and Rick Schofield, and her aunts, Lavonne Evans, Chris Crane, Anne Cook and Caroline Queen.

Memorial donations may be made to: Stephanie N. Schmitz Memorial Fund, c/o Alaska USA Federal Credit Union, 1261 Airport Way, Fairbanks, AK 99701.

The following is a poem written by Stephanie's sister Sarah:

Stephanie

You always brought us hope.
You always made us happy when we were feeling blue.
You always played with me even if you really didn't want to.
You were the light so I could see.
You gave me hope because you believed.
You made me feel better about who I am.
I wish I could have paid you back for that.
But maybe I can in a decade or two.
I will see you again, sometime in the future.
Help us all to go on, Stephanie.
I know GOD will take care of you.
You have all our love, Stephanie.
We love you very, very much, Stephanie.* XOXOXO*

Lakers Earn Three More Victories On The Road

It was an on-the-road, triple-victory week for the Garrett Community College men's basketball team, as the Lakers defeated host Montgomery-Rockville Saturday, 70-53, rolled over Chesapeake, 111-60, on Sunday, and stopped host Essex CC last night, 76-69. The three wins leave GCC coach Dennis Gibson just three shy of his 300th career victory and upped the Lakers' overall record to 17-3.

After holding a modest 34-29 lead at halftime against Montgomery-Rockville on Saturday, the Lakers opened it up in the second half to ultimately win by 17.

Charles Somerville led four Lakers who finished in double figures, as he netted 17 points. Carlos Jones scored 14 points, Corin Turner contributed 11, and Dexter Levi had a balanced individual performance with 10 points, 12 rebounds, and four blocks. Warren Coates had five steals and five assists.

Leading Rockville with a game-high 22 points was Toney Upson. Dave Thomas was credited with six steals.

The play was generally sloppy for both teams, with each committing 28 turnovers.

"The 10-day lay-off certainly didn't help us any," stated Coach Gibson. "We made a lot of mental errors."

Somerville again paced Garrett on Sunday in the easy win over Chesapeake, as he poured in 20 points, grabbed eight rebounds, and blocked two shots; however, he was one of seven Lakers who finished in double figures.

Carlos Jones had 16 points, Levi finished with 13 plus two blocks, Corin Turner recorded 12 points and eight assists, Warren Coates also netted 12 points, and Dustin Long and Michael Ward each chipped in with 10 points. Ward also had a team-high 10 rebounds and two blocks. Thomas Somerville had five steals.

Pacing the Skipjacks in scoring was Tyler Johnson, who had 19 points, while James Thomas recorded 12 points and 11 rebounds, and Vernon Murray had 10 points and six steals.

The Lakers took control of the contest from the opening tip-off and never looked back, as the Skipjacks did not score for the first 5½ minutes of the game. Garrett held a commanding 60-22 lead at halftime.

Last night against Essex it was Corin Turner who powered the Lakers to another win, as he came off the bench to ignite a second-half surge. Turner finished with a season-high 25 points and hit a pair of crucial foul shots in the waning moments of the game to help secure the victory.

Carlos Jones finished with 14 points and three steals, while Charles Somerville hit 10 points, including another pair of last-minute free throws. Warren Coates grabbed a team-high 10 rebounds and Scott Kochenderfer recorded 10 assists and three steals.

The score changed hands many times throughout the contest, particularly in the first half, which ended with the Lakers on top by two, 38-36. There was sloppy play on both sides, as Garrett amassed 33 turnovers and Essex finished with 29.

Dionte Farmer netted 19 points to lead Essex, and also had five steals, while Sabian Tousant had a double-double with 13 points and 10 rebounds. James Riggins also reached double figures with 13 points.

The Lakers won the battle on the boards by a 48-38 margin.

The Lakers will begin a three-game home stretch this Saturday evening when they host Anne Arundel CC in a 7 p.m. contest. They will entertain Frederick CC next Wednesday (7 p.m.), and host Hagerstown CC a week from this Saturday to wrap up their regular season.

STEIN RECORDS 100TH - Northern High School's Brandon Stein, a current state 1A/2A champion, recorded his 100th individual career victory this past week when the Huskies competed against, and defeated, Meyersdale. Stein's 100th victim was David Harvey, who was the recipient of one of Stein's many pins over his three-plus year high school career. Stein, who is undefeated so far this season, then earned his 101st win against a Fort Hill opponent on Monday. Photos courtesy of Delos Carpenter.

NHS Matmen Extend Streak, Brandon Stein Records 100th

Continuing to overwhelm opponents this past week was the Northern High School wrestling team, which crushed visiting Meyersdale last Thursday, 64-3, and then flattened once-beaten Fort Hill, 77-0, Tuesday night on the Sentinels' mats. In the process, Northern state champion Brandon Stein recorded his 100th and 101st individual career victories.

Huskies earning pins against Meyersdale were Paul Beitzel at 130 pounds, Stein at 135, and Ryan Savage in the 275-pound division. Winning by decision were Blake Huber (112), Matt McNees (119), and Brandon Kamp (140), while Pete Stein (103), Jeremiah Guard (125), Adam Brenneman (152), Mark Wolf (160), David Wampler (171), and Ryan Brenneman (189) all won on forfeits.

Stein's victory, his 100th, came at the expense of David Harvey, who was pinned by Stein in 1:48.

The only Meyersdale victory was recorded by Chad Sines, who won on points in the 145-pound division.

Twelve of the Huskies recorded pins Tuesday night against the Fort Hill Sentinels, who entered the match with a 6-1-1 team record. They were: Pete Stein, Huber, McNees, Guard, Beitzel, Kamp, Artice, Adam Brenneman, Wolf, Wampler, Ryan Brenneman, and Savage. Brandon Stein won on a technical fall (15-0) in the 140-pound class.

Huber, who is a defending Maryland state runner-up, needed just 38 seconds to pin his opponent. Stein, a defending state champion, is also undefeated on the season.

The 12-1 Huskies will be tested this weekend when they compete in the always-tough Bedford Tournament.

Lakers Nipped By Catamounts; Bounce Back To Bash Baltimore

The women's basketball team of Garrett Community College played inspired ball last night in Baltimore to down Baltimore City Community College, 71-48. The Lakers' inspiration may have come from a heartbreaking 57-56 loss at Potomac State College this past Thursday, when GCC fell in a hard-fought battle that went down to the wire. Garrett's record stands at 5-10.

At one point in the first of the see-saw contest in Keyser GCC held a 12-point lead, which had evaporated to a one point Laker deficit at the half as the hosts went up 28-27. Potomac State continued its roll through the opening minutes of the second half, mounting an eight point lead at one instance.

Undaunted, the Lakers came from behind to catch the Catamounts and eventually went up by five with less than two minutes to play. PSC hit two unanswered buckets, one a three-pointer, to even the score, then a foul sent Garrett guard Donielle Gaines to the free throw line. Gaines connected on one of her two foul shots to put GCC up by one with less than a minute to play, then Potomac State's Jillian Dean scored on a layup to put the hosts up by one. Tiffany Bever then blocked a final GCC shot attempt to clinch the Catamount win.

Forward Tasha Blackmon led the Lakers with 14 points and pulled down a game-high 10 rebounds. Gretchen Baker, another forward, posted 13 points, and Gaines hit for 12 points. PSC was paced by Jonee Jones's 20 points.

Garrett had another strong rebounding team effort, cleaning the boards by a 42-25 margin, but the Lakers gave the ball up 19 times through turnovers compared to 11 PSC turnovers.

CHAMPION KAYAKER TO SPEAK AT GCC - Oliver Fix, a world champion kayaker who won an Olympic gold medal in the 1996 Olympics in Atlanta, will speak at Garrett Community College on Thursday, Feb. 10. The noon presentation, which is free of charge and open to the public, is titled "The Culture of the World Class Athlete." Fix is shown above as he prepares a practice for a quartet of 2000 Olympic hopefuls along the feeder canal of the Potomac River near Washington, D.C. He is employed as a coach by the United States Canoe and Kayak team, which is responsible for selecting members of the nation's olympic paddling team.

Champion Kayaker To Speak At GCC On The Basics Of Athletic Excellence

World champion kayaker and Olympic gold medal winner Oliver Fix, will speak at the Adventure Sports Colloquium in the Garrett Community College auditorium at noon this coming Thursday, Feb. 10. Fix's presentation is titled "The Culture of World Class Athletes." The program is open to the public and is free of charge.

A native of Augsburg, Germany, a renowned whitewater kayak training and racing center, Fix won the World Championship in men's kayak in 1995 and the Olympic gold medal in 1996. He is one of only two men to win back-to-back championships in the whitewater sport, the other being Siegbert Horn of East Germany.

Fix began kayaking at the age of eight and trained continuously in the sport on the Eiskanal whitewater course where the first ever Olympic slalom competition was held in 1972 (the year before he was born). While Fix was training in kayaking, he also trained in swimming and competed with the Stadtbergen swim club.

Fix's dedication to kayaking led him through the German hierarchy of competition leagues where athletes compete by age group. "Since there were a coach and other paddlers in most of Oliver's workouts, it was easy for him to stay motivated during hard training," according to Bill Endicott, founder of the Bethesda Center for Excellence and former U.S. Olympic Team coach.

"It also led Fix to develop the concept of 'Every workout counts,' and even 'Every stroke counts'. This was the primary way Oliver learned technique. He doesn't remember coaches telling him specific things to do. Rather, he remembers watching others do the same course he was doing and comparing the way he did it with they way they did it," Endicott wrote in To the Tune of a Different Drummer, his paddling biography of Fix.

"I can't give you experience," Fix has said of his coaching techniques. "Experience has to be acquired, that takes time. You have to put people into different situations so that they can figure it out, learn how it feels. Yes, there may be rules for certain kinds of gates. But you want to learn how to short-cut the rules."

"I'm finished paddling for myself, but now I realize I have something to share. It's more than technique, it's a way of living your life that's valuable. Now I want to be a positive influence on other people who are striving for the ultimate run. It takes a lot of dedication to get there. I think I can help them organize their lives to do it," said Fix.

This Adventure Sports Colloquium will be the first of the spring semester at GCC. These meetings are scheduled monthly to give students in the Adventure Sports program opportunities to meet and hear from professionals in the field. For further information about the AVS Colloquium persons may call Mike Logsdon, program director, at 301-387-3333 or the Adventure Sports Institute Office at 301-387-3330.

Arsenal Teams Have Success In Various Tourneys

Arsenal Football, a local youth soccer club, has had an excellent indoor soccer season this winter, finishing well at a number of tournaments. The U-17, U-16, and U-12 boys, and U-16 and U-14 girls participated at the Soccer-In-Schools Tournament at West Virginia University in early December. Though the boys teams did not win a game in the tournament, goals were scored by Adam Miller, Chris Menker, and Sean Buckle, with assists being provided by Kyle Rives, Bryan Schwalm, and Jim Carpenter. Chris Menker, Brandon Heselbach, and Jon Neville provided excellent goalkeeping.

The U-16 girls played very well, taking second place in the tournament. In the preliminary rounds, Arsenal lost its first game to the eventual champion, St. Thomas Moore, from Pittsburgh, by a 6-0 score. In the second game they tied rival Morgantown, 2-2, and then went on to defeat Bridgeport, 5-1. Casey Taylor scored five goals, Sarah Teets added another two, and Becky Martin provided solid goalkeeping. The U-14 girls also played for the championship before falling by a 2-1 score and claiming second place.

During the Christmas break, Arsenal played at an indoor tournament in Westminster. The U-17 boys' team fared well, losing its first game, 4-2, to a strong Juventis team that had two national team players on its roster. In its second game, against Mt. Savage, Arsenal struggled, but came away victorious, 2-1. In the quarterfinal match against the Northern Garrett team, Arsenal lost in the final 16 seconds, 3-2.

Andrew Grant scored five goals on the day while goalkeepers Chris Menker and Brandon Heselbach collected over 40 saves in the three games. The U-14 girls' team did very well, placing in a tie for first place in their division, but failing to move on because of goal differential. The U-16 team compiled a 0-4-1 record, but was competitive against more experienced teams. Megan Burner, Laura Hollingsworth, and Sabrina Scheffel scored for the U-16 team. Becky Martin provided a strong performance in goal.

Most of the club teams played at the Bridgeport Indoor Tournament in January. The two U-16 teams had a combined record of 0-5-1 for the tournament, but the U-17 teams compiled a 5-3-0 mark. One of the U-17 teams made it to the quarterfinals, while the other U-17 team played in the semi-final rounds. The two U-12 boys' teams played well with the more experienced team winning its first game. The U-14 boys' team had a banner day in compiling a 1-1-1 record in its first-ever outing.

The same day the U-14 girls' team played at the Frostburg State University Indoor Tournament, making it all the way to the quarterfinals before being eliminated on point differential. The U-16 girls' team finished third. In their first game they lost to Epic from Martinsburg, W.Va., 1-5. Jenni Hickman scored the lone goal on an assist by Falon Stutzman. Becky Martin had 13 saves in the net. In the second game, Arsenal defeated Mt. Savage, 5-2. Falon Stutzman scored a hat trick while Brittany Naylor and Chelsey Remley added the other two goals. Assists were provided by Sarah Teets and Naylor. Becky Martin collected 7 saves. In the final game, Arsenal defeated the Northern Huskies 3-1 score on goals by Remley, Stutzman, and Miriam Sincell. Naylor added an assist while Martin and Bonnie Riley shared 4 saves in the goal.

The following weekend, Arsenal's U-16 boys' team played at the Frostburg State Indoor Tournament. They brought home an 0-3-0 record, although their play was "markedly improved and provided a lot of excitement," according to the coaching staff. The two U-17 teams fared very well. The "white" team lost all three of its games, but was matched against a powerful Culpeper Comets team from Virginia and a team from the Allegany Soccer Alliance which contained freshman players from Frostburg's men's team.

In their third game they were matched against the Northern Garrett team. The scores were 0-6, 1-5, and 1-2. Goals were scored by Keith Steyer and Michael Schwalm. Schwalm also had an assist. Brandon Heselbach recorded 31 saves in the three matches.

The U-17 "green" team won its first two matches against Northern Garrett and Allegany Alliance's second entry by scores of 2-0 and 4-2, placing this team in the semi-final round. In the semi-final game, Arsenal lost by a 3-1 margin to the Allegany Soccer Alliance team containing the collegiate players. Goals were scored by Chris Remley (2), Bryan Schwalm (2), Chip Stoner (2), and Dustin Slider. Assists were provided by Stoner (3), and Chris Menker (2). Menker also recorded 20 saves in the three matches.

On the same day, Arsenal's U-12 team recorded the club's first- ever championship by claiming the Fairmont Indoor Tournament title (see separate story).

Arsenal currently has seven teams in year-round play, with nearly 90 players participating in the winter indoor season.

ARSENAL TEAM WINS TOURNEY - This Arsenal Football team of under-12 youth recently captured first place in the Fairmont Indoor Soccer Tournament. The local squad lost two matches before coming back to record three victories to win the title, with two of those victories being earned in double overtime. Pictured from left, kneeling, are James Naylor and Taylor Crabtree. Standing are: Ivan Stutzman, Evan Lantz, Brenden Stephens, Coach Kevin Heselbach, Ryan Heselbach, Ryan Gosnell, and Brent Carnell. New Area Travel Soccer League Is Organized Arsenal Football, along with the Allegany Soccer Alliance of Allegany County, the Potomac Highlands Soccer Club of Mineral County, W.Va., and the Northern Ice Soccer Club of Garrett County, announce the creation of a new travel soccer league that will play competitive travel soccer in both fall and spring seasons annually.

The new organization is called the Mountain West Soccer League and will have separate boys and girls divisions with the following age divisions: U-12, U-14, U-16, and U-18. The new league will play a round-robin format, with three teams meeting on Sunday afternoons for play. This will reduce the amount of travel involved for all teams, as well as the number of Sunday afternoons that will have to be committed for league play. All games will be officiated by certified United States Soccer Federation referees.

"Arsenal has been a part of the West Virginia travel league for the last three years, which has provided excellent competition, but has necessitated extensive travel, sometimes traveling three and four hours to play afternoon games, stated Arsenal director/coach Mel Menker. "The creation of a more localized travel league will provide competitive games within a 90-minute radius and will assist the local area in the development of players for each of the high school programs. Part of the design of the new league is to raise the level of play in western Maryland to enable WMIL teams to be more competitive in the state tournament play.

The league is accepting new teams until March 1. Persons wishing to know more about this opportunity may contact Mel Menker at 301-334-5906.

Arsenal U-12 Team Winners In Fairmont Tourney

In their third indoor soccer tournament of the season, the members of Arsenal Football's U-12 boys' team won the championship trophy in the Fairmont Indoor Tournament, played January 23. It was the first-ever championship trophy won by an Arsenal boys' team.

The local players captured the title in dramatic fashion, since they lost their first two matches and then came back to win three straight, two in double overtime.

The first loss was to NCU White, 2-1, with James Naylor recording Arsenal's only goal and Brent Carnell earning eight saves. The second match was a 3-2 loss to a Morgantown team, with Naylor scoring both goals and Carnell getting four saves.

Arsenal won its third match, 3-0, over Pepsi of Fairmont. Ryan Heselbach scored all three goals, with assists by Naylor and Taylor Crabtree. Carnell had four saves.

The fourth contest was a re-match against the Morgantown team, but ended this time in an Arsenal victory. The score was knotted at 2-2 when regulation time expired, and it took two sudden-death overtimes, with the number of players on the field reduced from five to three per team. Naylor scored the winning goal with an indirect kick that bounced off the head of a defender. Naylor had two goals and Crabtree scored the third one. Carnell had four saves.

The title match was against NCU Blue, the top-seeded team in the tournament. It, too, was tied 2-2 at the end of regulation and was in the second overtime when Heselbach scored the winning goal, his third of the match, for Arsenal with just 20 seconds left in the second overtime period. Naylor had an assist and Carnell had five saves.

Other members of the team are Ryan Gosnell, Evan Lantz, Joey Simpson, Brenden Stephens, and Ivan Stutzman. Coaches are Kevin Heselbach, Bob Stephens, and Gary Brack.

The Arsenal White U-12 team also participated in the tourney. Ethan Chorpenning scored the team's only goal and Matt Burton finished with 22 saves in goal. In a previous tournament, Cody Brack scored a goal and Burton had 25 saves.

Other members of the White team are: Matthew Carnell, Logan Craig, Alan Gnegy, Zachary Gotsch, and James Mullenax.

Missions Work Topic Of Crellin Church Service

REV. THERON G. ROUSH

The Crellin Assembly of God has slated a missions service with Rev. Theron G. Roush, an Assemblies of God missionary, for this Sunday, Feb. 6, at 6 p.m. The service will include a presentation by Rev. Roush on his missionary ministry in Columbia, where many new churches are being established through the international Decade of Harvest outreach program of the Assemblies of God churches.

Roush has completed six terms of missionary service establishing churches in the South American nation. During their last term of missionary service he and his wife Aldonna resided in Antioquia, one of the most populous states in Columbia and home to the national capital of Mendellin. Upon their return to Columbia the Roushes plan to continue their ministry of establishing churches.

During his overseas ministry Roush has served as district superintendent, national presbyter, and president of the Missionary Fellowship. He has started two Bible institutes, established and constructed churches, and promoted radio ministry. Stateside, he has served as missionary in residence at Southern Arizona Bible College and at Trinity Bible College.

Roush received his bachelor of arts degree from Southeastern Bible College in Lakeland, Fla., and a master's degree from the Assemblies of God Theological Seminary in Springfield, Mo. Prior to their missionary ministry, Roush and his wife pastored a church in Nicholson, Pa., and co-pastored a church in Brookeville, Pa.

The Crellin Assembly of God is located along Route 39 at 2254 Hutton Road, four miles west of Oakland. For further information interested persons may contact the church's pastor, Rev. David Snodgrass, at 301-334-3867.

more local interests could be boosted by the organization, King explained. The organization strives to meet the specific needs of specific communities through such things as extensive local surveys, and through partnerships with established local service entities.

Midwinter Bird Count Project Seeks Volunteers

The Garrett County midwinter bird count, a project that utilizes volunteer bird counters to gauge the status of the county's winter birdlife, is set for Saturday, Feb. 12. All interested persons, including previous bird count participants, are invited to take part by counting birds in any increment and amount of time they choose, at any location, between midnight and midnight of that day.

"Volunteers can simply count the birds seen at their feeder or in their backyard," said organizer Kevin Dodge, director of the Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology program at Garrett Community College. "Despite the snow and cold, the county plays host to a wide variety of interesting birds, and recent sightings have included such unique winter visitors as rough-legged hawks, short-eared owls, and northern shrikes. Birds more typical of summer have also been seen, including small flocks of American robins and even one or two great blue herons hunkered down in the few remaining patches of open water."

Persons interested in volunteering for the bird count may contact Dodge for further information at 301-387-3067 (days) or 301-245-4503 (evenings) before Friday, Feb. 11.

The Discovery Center at Deep Creek Lake State Park is seeking businesses, organizations, and citizens that may be interested in sponsoring exhibits at the educational center. "This idea follows the theme of 'Bringing Natural Resources and People Together,'" a key component of the philosophy of the Department of Natural Resources, according to Todd Metz, the park's naturalist.

"School groups, senior groups, scouts, and vacationers are only a few of the visitors that come to the center to learn about Maryland's natural resources. We would like to provide them with some new activities and exhibits, and are in the process of developing and implementing some new exhibits and a new Children's Discovery Room," Metz said.

Persons who sponsor an exhibit, animal, or the Children's Discovery Room will have their name displayed on the exhibit. For further information interested persons may contact Metz at 301-387-7067.

Letters

Garrett County jail had an average of 46 inmates last year, and a 46% increase in assignments for the deputies in the last few years.

When I moved to this area in the spring of 1984, it didn't take long to meet people after a year or so. I felt like I knew everyone in the Oakland area. Now it's hard to go into town and see someone I know. This county has grown since 1984. For example, look at how much the town of Oakland has grown in the last 10-15 years. How about Deep Creek Lake? Look how it has grown in just the last 2-3 years.

So, I have some questions for the Garrett County commissioners. The sheriff's office has asked for additional deputies for the last year. What's the problem? Give them more deputies! I'm sure it's not a money issue, is it? If it is, since when does the safety of my wife and three kids have a price tag?

Nine deputies isn't a lot for the number of people and size of this county. I think I like the idea that, if I needed a deputy, one would be there swiftly and in just a matter of minutes.

But since there are only nine of them, unless all nine of them work 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, it would be impossible for a deputy to be there in minutes.

With the growth of Garrett County will come the growth of crime. If hiring some more sheriff's office employees saves one life, one assault victim, one sexual assault victim, one rape victim, or takes one drunk off the road, then I think it would be money well spent!

Keep up the good work, Garrett County Sheriff's Office. There are a lot of people on your side!

James H. Weston
Loch Lynn

To the Editor:

So does everybody think that the Garrett County sheriff's deputies need a pay raise? Well, so does everybody else in Garrett County, not just the deputies.

These deputies might be among the lowest paid, but look at the whole work force in general in Garrett County. It is also probably one of the lowest in the state, if not the lowest. I guess one would say we all make choices, and the choices these deputies made was to work here in this county. If they knew at the time of their employment that the wages were not going to be what they were willing to accept, then why didn't they join another department elsewhere in the state where their wages were going to be what they were willing to accept?

Yes, I'm sure they were looking at several different situations, such as the overall crime rate, the well-being of their families, the area in general, and the discomfort of packing up and moving. Well, if you want to make or earn more money, you must sacrifice some things and relocate where the money is, because it sure isn't going to be found here in this county.

I think we as taxpayers give them a good salary. We provide them with vehicles that can be driven at any time, on or off duty, anywhere in the state of Maryland. (That alone is worth probably about 5 to 6 thousand dollars.) Also they receive, I'm sure, a decent set of benefits that most of us can't afford, nor are provided to us. And last but not least, as I mentioned, a good paycheck, more than the average minimum wage worker in this county gets.

I, myself, would really enjoy these types of benefits, then maybe I could provide a decent living for my family as well.

I have a good idea. Maybe the citizens and the sheriff's office of this county should ask the county and state officials to take all the money that is being provided for all these little historical parks and monuments in Oakland and give all of us a pay raise. Then that might open the opportunity to bring in another big corporation like Wal-Mart and give us all a good-paying job as well as make us happy.

Thank you for letting me express my opinion.

Jerry Tasker

To the Editor:

I've enjoyed reading the letters to the editor and the other stories in The Republican, especially when it concerns the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Last week I had some friends over at my house and the subject of crime in our area came up. According to last week's story ("Deputies' Workload Still Expanding: Staffing Levels, Salaries Remain Low) there has been an increase in crime in this county of 42% in the last seven years. That's scary!

The scary part is, look at the types of offenses committed last year alone: 137 assaults, 50 domestic violence assaults, 71 burglaries, 14 vehicle thefts, 38 child abuse cases, 28 sexual offenses, and one rape. The story also said that there were 128 DWI arrests, and that was a 16% increase, plus 39 adults and 13 juveniles arrested for controlled dangerous substances. Mind-boggling, isn't it?

After my friends and I did a little math, we came up with this: with nine deputies and 9,878 assignments last year, that would equal to 1,097.55 assignments per deputy, compared to 1992, eight deputies and 5,781 assignments, which equals to 722.62 per deputy. Wow, what a difference!

Well, my friends and I talked about this situation all night and into the morning, and we all had basically the same point of view. The Garrett County Sheriff's Office needs more people! With Wal-Mart, a new bypass, and other new businesses possibly coming into this county, there will be more people and more crime!

Well, by now, everyone reading this letter is probably thinking, Why do I care so much? Simple! I was one of those 9,878 assignments last year! I was never in my life so happy to see a police officer until I really needed one.

So, thank you, Garrett County Sheriff's Office for your professionalism and hard work, and I hope the Garrett County commissioners that I voted for will provide the extra manpower you need and the pay you deserve.

Sue Moore
Oakland

To the Editor:

Is it really fiscally frugal or responsible for the town of Oakland and the Glendening administration to squander more than one million dollars to construct a new municipal reservoir atop the "Elks" hill and further despoil the beauty of that hill in addition to the communication tower and the overlook?

Last Sunday's Cumberland Times story related the amount of money earmarked for Garrett County in the governor's budget. Hooray for that recognition. The proposed capital budget had $1.3 million for the Oakland reservoir. It reported the two reservoirs atop Crook's Crest were deteriorating and needed replaced.

Several years ago the mayor and town council increased the water rates to raise money to build such a reservoir, and this money would match the state money. This was discussed at the rate-raising hearing, and Elks hill was identified as the highest point in Oakland and consequently would provide a greater fall for the water and subsequent higher water pressure at the extremes, in particular the Overlook North apartments.

If this is being built to provide greater water pressure to that area, it's not enough reason to continue to squander over $2 million. A simple water pump installed at Ninth and High streets would boost the pressure at a much more reasonable cost.

As for the deteriorating reservoirs, a liner such as installed at the landfill or in leaking swimming pools would also solve that problem at a much more reasonable cost.

Common sense should prevail. Remember, this is all taxpayers' money, regardless where it comes from — the water rates, the state, or the town taxes.

SNOW FALLING ON CEDARS

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 2:06 - Released 12/22/99

Adapting a novel of any depth into a 2-hour motion picture would be a difficult task, particularly a best-selling novel like Snow Falling On Cedars by David Guterson. The film not only has to convey the plot and thematic elements intelligently in an abbreviated time, but has to stand up against the book's more global scope. However, writer Ronald Bass and Oscar-nominated writer/director Scott Hicks (Shine) have taken this challenge and crafted a deep, thoughtful drama with a good pace and yet an adequately well-textured narrative. While I have not been impressed with Bass's screenplays in the past (What Dreams May Come, Stepmom), with Hicks he has achieved a text more deeply grounded in story and less dependent on emotional manipulation. What's more, with an intense courtroom drama, a tender love affair, and a telling history lesson about the treatment of Japanese Americans during World War II, it seems to have something for everyone.

Snow Falling On Cedars is a film that continually jumps back and forth in time between a 1950 murder trial, the early '40s, when WWII began for the U.S., and the early-to-mid '30s, when an adolescent love affair bloomed between a white American boy and a Japanese American girl. Even though Ishmael (Ethan Hawke) and Hatsue (Youki Kudoh) have been in love since they were kids (played by Reeve Carney and Ann Suzuki), Hatsue knows that they can never stay together. Their small Washington fishing village is inhabited by almost equal numbers of Japanese and whites, but there are still many deep racial and cultural divisions. Ishmael's father (Sam Shepard), the publisher and editor of the town's newspaper, is known for his respect of the Asian community; however, the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and subsequent detention of all Japanese Americans in internment camps ends any likelihood of a white boy marrying a "Jap" girl, no matter where his family's sympathies lie.

When a fisherman dies one foggy night many years later, and his body is found tangled in his net in the North Pacific waters, the local authorities suspect foul play. Carl Heine (Eric Thal) was known as a very careful boatman, and not only that, he apparently encountered his longtime colleague Kazuo Miyamoto (Rick Yune) on the night of his death. While the two men had been friends in the past, they had recently been at odds over a parcel of land Kazuo's father bought from Carl's father before the war. The anti-Japanese sentiment in the area doesn't help things any, so Kazuo is immediately suspected of murdering Carl Heine on that foggy night at sea. The task of covering the trial for the newspaper is especially difficult for Ishmael, since his former lover Hatsue is now married to the accused.

The performances in this film are impeccable with the unfortunate exception of its lead. Hawke is unspectacular as Ishmael, but the fact that he is surrounded by such talent helps a lot. Kudoh is excellent, as are many supporting cast members like Shepard, James Cromwell as the judge, and James Rebhorn and Max von Sydow as the attorneys on the case, but they are all practically overshadowed by Carney and Suzuki as the young cross-cultural lovers. The performances of these two teens are every bit equal to the emotional intensity of the scenes they share. Music and scenery are also very important factors in this movie's overall effect; James Newton Howard's score is majestic, and the cinema by Robert Richardson features memorable images both good and bad. Hicks's use of flashback and the repetetive nature of Ishmael's memories aptly show the conflict within him (even if Hawke doesn't).

Snow Falling On Cedars leaves one with the feeling of having just finished a good novel; this is perhaps the highest praise one could offer a film based on a best-seller. ★★★★½

MEMORIAL WALL DEDICATED

The Friendsville Elementary School dedicated its Vietnam Memorial Wall in the front foyer of the school on Monday. In charge of the program was principal Doug Gaither, whose idea was brought to fruition after its origination two years ago. Students and teachers lined the hallway dressed in red, white, and blue to partake of the ceremony. Flags were provided to each student by WOW Lodge 45.

Special guests present were Tom Bratten, Disabled American veteran; Ed Kelley, veteran of Desert Storm; Bruce Whittacre, Vietnam Veterans of America; Harold and Mable Griffith, Gene Allen and Sherry Fike, Danny Fike, and Ina Hicks.

The idea for the memorial wall came about with the hope to "someway make a connection that the pictures on the wall were people, they were sons, brothers, grandsons, and nephews of people in town," stated Mr. Gaither during the dedication. The hope is that this will help the younger students who are far removed from the Vietnam War to not just see the names on the wall out front, but to now connect them with faces.

Mr. Glotfelty and Mrs. Frazee, along with the 2nd graders, provided music by singing the "Star Spangled Banner," "God Bless the USA" and "America, You're Beautiful."

The dedication speech was given by Kelsey Lytle: "In honor of the men of the armed forces of the United States who served in the Vietnam War, we dedicate this wall. The names and photos of those who gave their lives from the community of Friendsville, Maryland, are forever present on this wall. Our school honors the courage, sacrifice, and devotion to duty and country in the Vietnam War. This memorial was designed for this purpose. It will stand as a reminder that some gave all for our country. Dedicated this 31st day of January in the year 2000."

A dedication of the "Reflections" print was made by Bruce Whittacre and was later hung on the wall along with the pictures.

Accompanied by the song "Some Gave All," the names of the fallen men were read by Mrs. Livengood and paper flowers were placed in their memory by students: Shawn Mastji in memory of Marine PFC Danny Nicklow, son of Walter and Bernice Frazee Nicklow, who was killed on March 16, 1967; Hannah Fike in memory of her uncle, Marine Lance Cpl. Ross E. Fike, son of Ross S. and Frances Friend Fike, who was killed on May 16, 1967; Vaughn Sisler in memory of Army Sp4 Charles Wayne Hook, son of Wayne and Grace Hook, who was killed on June 17, 1967; Roland Fisher in memory of Army Spc4 Roger Garlick, son of Ralph E. and Margaret Jenkins Garlick, who was killed on March 17, 1969: Joey Studley in memory of Airman 3 Norman Thomas, son of Hobart and Mildred June Thomas, who was killed on Nov. 17, 1969; and Samantha Stemple in memory of Air Force Sgt. Thomas Fike, son of Emerson and Virginia Francis Fike, who was killed on Dec. 4, 1971.

The photos were provided by Vietnam Veteran Families and Arrowhead Grocery, the plaque and flag holders were provided by Tim Artice and Frani King, name plates on the photos were provided by the Friendsville Lions Club, the flowers were made by Ms. Collen-DuBose and her art students, and assisting in the program were Mrs. Huber, Mr. Hauser, and Julia Sines.

Pictures of the six men from Friendsville who died in the Vietnam War now line the wall for students, families, and visitors to see. Above the pictures hangs a wooden plaque with the inscription "Some Gave All."

"The war was supposed to be close to conclusion but kept calling one more man to serve, sadly claiming six of Friendsville's finest. All of them hard workers, leaders, compassionate and proud, whose memories are tucked away for safe keeping. All of them who are sadly missed by family and friends.

"My thanks to all involved for having a very appropriate idea to help the memories of these men to live on." (Lucretia Sines)

Grant To Provide Tech Training To Area College Faculty Members

Western Maryland's post-secondary institutions — Frostburg State University, Allegany College of Maryland, Garrett Community College, Hagerstown Community College, and Hagerstown Business College — are banding together to make sure their faculty members are equipped to use the latest technology in teaching.

Funded by a grant of $262,802 from the Maryland Higher Education Commission, the efforts, led by FSU, will provide instructors with a direct link between their classroom needs and their technology training.

"Most faculty have said, 'I haven't had the resources to do what I want to do in my classes,'" said Dr. Marthe A. McClive, McHenry, an FSU associate professor in the of Business Administration Department who is coordinator of the project.

The academic technologies include the classroom application of on-line communication, using Internet resources, multimedia materials, advanced interactive video techniques, and the development of on-line courses. Each section will teach a specific and progressively more complex set of skills in applying the technology.

The difference between this approach and most technology training is that each participant will be working on a specific "product" that will be used in the classroom. Faculty will progress through a series of steps. At each step there will be a product to use with students.

"The training is outcome-oriented. Faculty walk away from each workshop with something they can use," McClive said.

The project is in the design stage, which involves meeting with faculty members on the various campuses early in the spring semester. Faculty will help design the workshops, which will begin in the summer session and be offered through next spring's session.

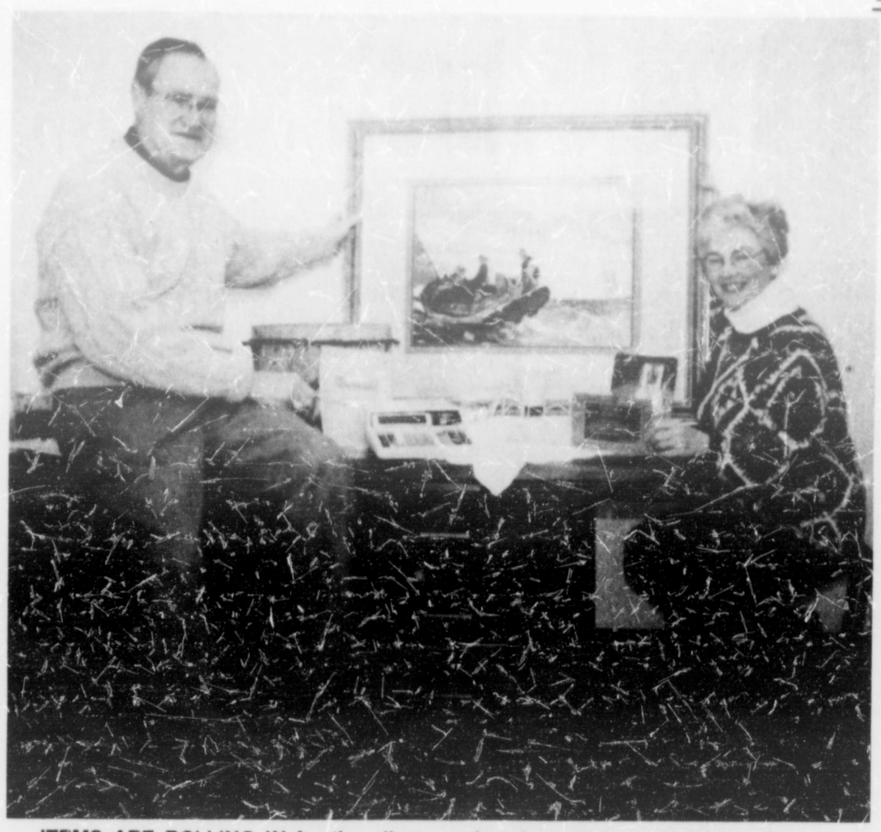
Among the five institutions, there are a potential 800 full- and part-time faculty who can be reached by this project.

All of the institutions involved except HBC are members of the Regional Education Service Agency of Appalachian Maryland, an educational consortium whose aim is to raise the educational level of all people in Appalachian Maryland.

"It's a real coalition of faculty across institutions," McClive said. "We have a history of working together."

She said the ultimate aim is to improve learning. "It's all about the students," she said.

Faculty members of the five schools who want more information can contact McClive at 301-687-4376 or the steering committee members on their campuses. The members are Dr. John Bowman, FSU associate provost; Dr. Lillian Mitchell, GCC dean of academic affairs; Dr. H. Eugene Hall, AC's vice president for instructional affairs; Dr. Robin Spaid, director of Community, Economic, and Workforce Development at HCC; and Dennis Wenger, academic dean for HBC.



ITEMS ARE ROLLING IN for the silent auction that will be held Friday, Feb. 18, at Will O'the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake, for the benefit of Garrett County Habitat for Humanity. The auction will be part of the organization's annual Sparkies and Sweets dessert reception. Ann Hill, president of GCHFH, said that there will be "an excellent selection" of items for the auction this year. "The proceeds will help us put two more local families into their own homes," she said. Hill is pictured above with some of the items and with Wayne Johnson, executive director of GCHFH. Among the items are: a Ken Bauer limited edition print; two hours of computer instruction from Matt Eary; large framed sailing picture from Grand Central Station; numerous glass bowls, plates, and candleholders from Sharon Hamilton; Canon calculator from Mark IV Office Supply; HP ScanJet 3300 Cxi color scanner from TCI Computer Systems; sports memorabilia from Rob Michael State Farm Insurance Agency; gift basket from First United Bank & Trust; woven leather handbag from Rudy's; week getaway to Tidewater, Va., from Tom and Karen Myers; hunter green Adirondack loveseat from Chuck's Chairs; many area restaurant gift certificates; antique wooden bucket from the Book Mark'et and Antique Mezzanine; glass bowl from Simon Pearce; green fees for four from Wisp Golf & Ski Resort; a bird feeder from Green Acres Garden Center and Flower Basket; and others. Tickets may be purchased at Proudfoot's Pharmacy, Englander's Pharmacy, the Book Mark'et, the Tourist Trap, and McHenry Beverage Shoppe, or by calling Wayne Johnson at 301-334-9431, ext. 113.

Mood Receives AGSA Scholarship

Martin Mood, a senior wildlife major at Frostburg State University and resident of Swanton, was recently named the first recipient of the Allegany/Garrett Sportsman's Association Scholarship.

Funding for this scholarship was made possible from the AGSA Last Ticket Drawing held at the Cresaptown Eagles hall. In addition to this $10,000 scholarship endowment to the FSU Foundation Inc., the fund-raising event supports a $5,000 donation to the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

The FSU AGSA Scholarship will be awarded annually to a wildlife management or fisheries major from the local area. Applications for the 2000-2001 award will be accepted through March 15, 2000, at the FSU Financial Aid Office.

AGSA, an association of representatives from the various outdoor hunting and fishing clubs in western Maryland, promotes the right to hunt and fish. For information on AGSA, persons may contact Jerry Zembower, president, at 301-689-5086 or write AGSA, P.O. Box 1188, Cumberland, MD 21502.

Maryland Prepaid College Trust Deadline Near

On March 1, 2000, thousands of Maryland families will have missed another opportunity to enroll their children or grandchildren in the Maryland Prepaid College Trust. However, there is still time to apply before the February 29 application deadline.

The current enrollment period's prices are based on the 2000- 2001 college year. By applying now, parents, grandparents, aunts, or uncles are locking into the current contract prices. If the child attends a Maryland public college in the future, the program will pay the full amount of the tuition and mandatory fees, regardless of the increase. If the child attends a private or out-of-state college or university, the Maryland Prepaid College Trust will pay that year's weighted-average tuition costs to the private or out-of-state school. (The program's board sets the weighted-average tuition each year. It is the average of that year's tuition and mandatory fees at Maryland's public colleges, weighted by the number of full time in-state students enrolled at each college.)

For those families who decide to wait to enroll until the next enrollment period scheduled to begin in mid-November, the prices will most likely be higher, as the cost of college tuition and mandatory fees goes up each year. According to the Maryland Higher Education Commission, tuition and mandatory fees at Maryland's public four-year colleges has increased 123 percent over the last 10 years and community college tuition and mandatory fees have increased 138 percent over the last 10 years. The Consumer Price index for the same frame increased about 40 percent.

The cost of a Maryland Prepaid College Trust contract has also increased each enrollment period since the program's first offering in 1998. For example, a four-year university lump sum contract for a sixth grader in 1998 would have cost $16,719. During the second enrollment period during the spring of 1999, the same contract for the same child, then a seventh grader, would have cost $17,846, an increase of $1,127. During the current enrollment period, for the same child going to college in 2005, the cost of a four-year university lump sum contract is now $18,931, up $1,085 over spring 1999 and $2,212 more than it could have cost in 1998.

For more information on how to obtain a copy of the Maryland Prepaid College Trust's Application Booklet, persons may call toll free 1-888-4MD-GRAD (1-888-463-4723), or on-line at www.prepaid.usmd.edu.

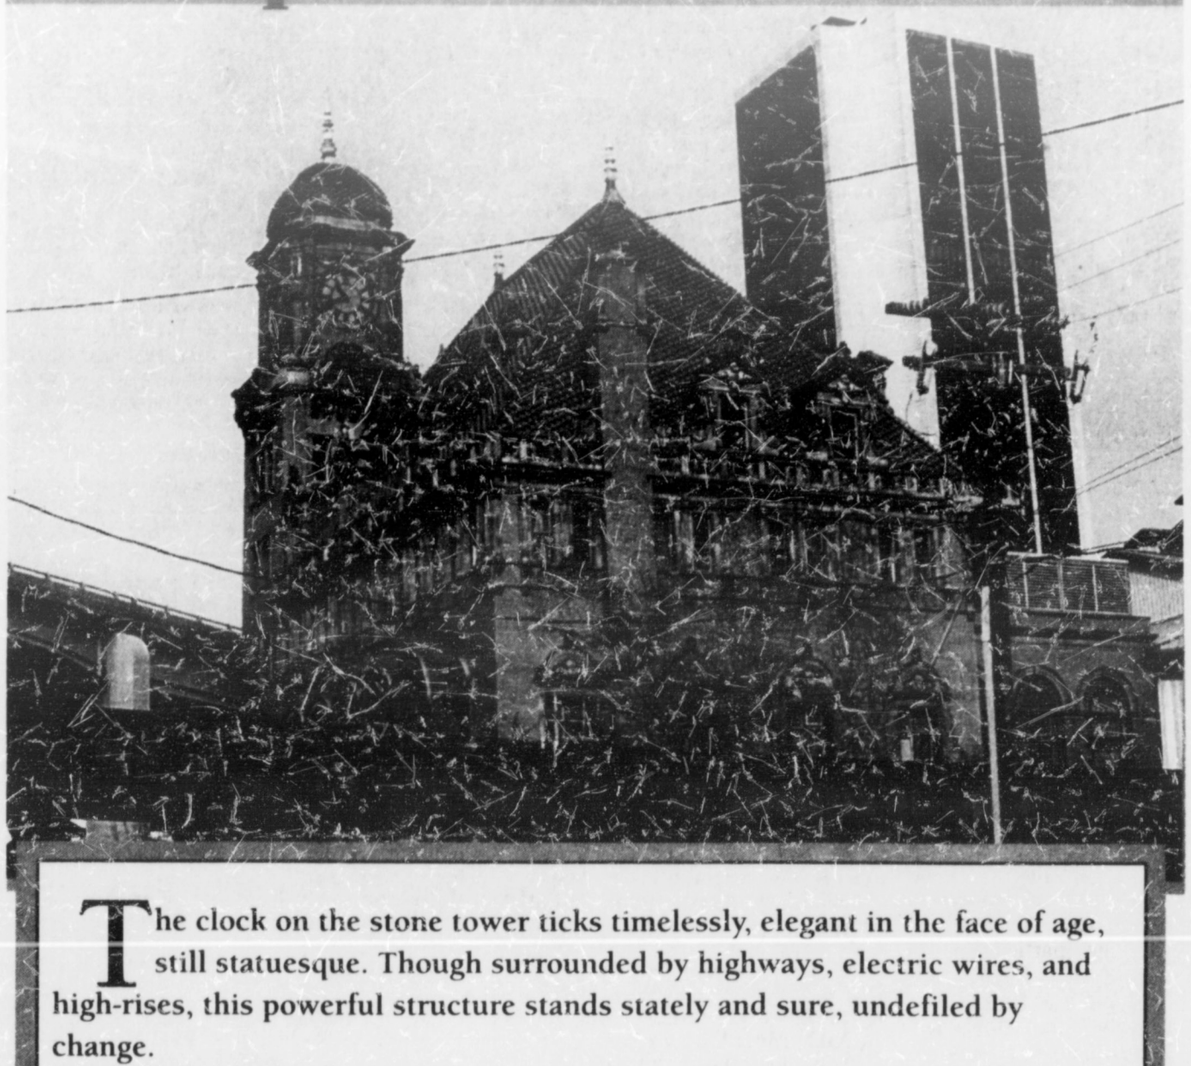
The Spirit of Timelessness



The clock on the stone tower ticks timelessly, elegant in the face of age, still statuesque. Though surrounded by highways, electric wires, and high-rises, this powerful structure stands stately and sure, undefiled by change.

Do you ever feel compelled to conform as the false promises of "glamour" and instant wealth crowd all around you? Don't be tempted. Stand firm.

With God as our foundation, we can possess spiritual beauty, strength, and stability. The Lord says in Matthew 16:18, "Upon this Rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

Begin building your life upon faith in God's promises this week as you worship in His house. Your spirit will be timeless.

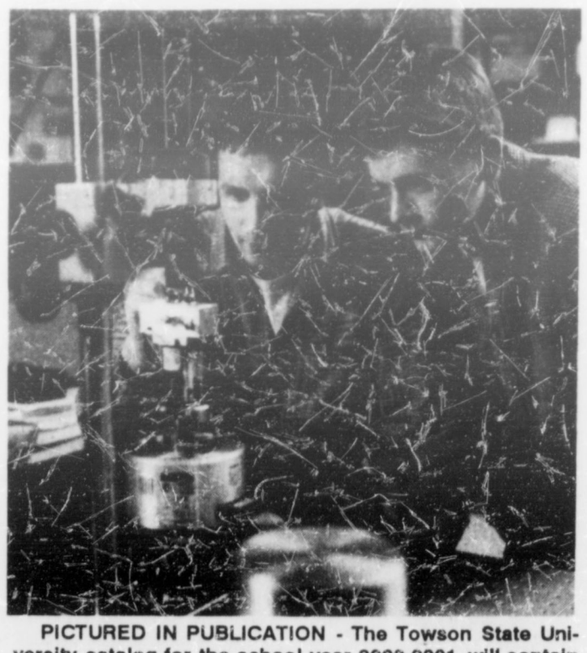
Robinson Brothers To Be Pictured In Towson Catalog



PICTURED IN PUBLICATION - The Towson State University catalog for the school year 2000-2001 will contain a photograph of Josh and Jeremy Robinson, graduates of Northern High School, who reside in Friendsville. The photo above, which will appear in the publication, pictures the Robinson brothers using the university's Atomic Force Microscope for a project.

Brothers Josh and Jeremy Robinson, Friendsville, will be pictured in the Towson University catalog for the 2000-2001 academic year. Physics majors at TSU, both are involved in several research projects, through which they have become proficient at programming and using the university's Atomic Force Microscope (AFM).

The brothers are the only students cleared for operation of the instrument, and often do work for other departments. The picture to be published in the catalog will show the brothers setting up the AFM for some tests.

Since enrolling in Towson, the Robinsons have maintained 4.0 averages each semester, including summer sessions, and have consistently been on the dean's list. Jeremy currently has junior year standing at the university and said he plans on earning a dual minor in chemistry and mathematics.

Josh, who has senior status at Towson, earned his dual minors in chemistry and mathematics. He is named in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, is a member of the Golden Key National Honor Society, and is currently the treasurer/secretary for the Society of Physics Students. In addition, Josh has been named to the National Dean's List for American Universities.

Jeremy participates in the Society of Physics Students and has been nominated for the Goldwater Scholarship — a national scholarship which accepts up to four nominees from a university.

The Robinson brothers are both graduates of Northern High School — Josh in 1997 and Jeremy in 1998 — and the ECAP program at Garrett Community College. They are sons of Rita and William Robinson, Friendsville, and grandsons of Alfreda Friend, Bear Creek, and Romaine and William T. Robinson, LaVale.

Toner Cartridge Sale Benefiting The Dove Center

A contribution of overstocked, remanufactured HP LaserJet II/III Product #92295A toner cartridges from the American University Bender Library are being offered at a discounted price of $25 each by Laser Cartridge Care, Oakland, and all proceeds are being donated to the Dove Center, Garrett County's domestic abuse shelter.

According to a spokesperson for Laser Cartridge Care, the price of $25 per cartridge is some 60% less than the regular retail price of a new cartridge. All have been tested by Laser Cartridge Care and will perform as well as a new cartridge, the spokesperson said.

Persons interested in buying one or more of the cartridges are asked to telephone Laser Cartridge Care at 301-334-8869.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Attending the Penguin-Anaheim hockey game in Pittsburgh over the weekend were Lenny and Torrey Poholsky. Unfortunately, the Penguins lost, 7-0. Torrey gave a rare review of the experience, stating, "Any hockey game is good and any seat at a hockey game is a good seat." Sally, Lenny, and Torrey had a few people in to see the Super Bowl. Sally was happy at the St. Louis victory, even though she doesn't really care too much if the "Stellers" are not involved. So really it wasn't any big deal. I am totally in agreement with Sally on that.

We finally had Meredith's big pool party for her ninth year birthday. The indoor pool filled with little girls of all sizes and colors was a lovely sight. Claire and Blakely did a fine job of directing the games and relay races. There was a lot of giggling and squealing. A great time was had by all those little girls. I love watching kids at birthday parties as they watch the birthday host/hostess opening her presents. They squealed with many "Oh's and Ah's!" Meredith got a new young guinea pig from her fellow animal lover friend, Laura Bitner. They frequently pass baby animals back and forth. She even made a little vest for it. He is cute as a button, even without his outfit.

While Meredith and her friends celebrated her birthday party, Caitlin helped celebrate the birthday of her friend, Dana Hannibal, with a cross country skiing party, and of course their other best buddy, Jamie Haydel, also attended.

On the way to the pool party, I was driven crazy because I did not have a loaded working camera with me to capture the incredible fabulous winter scenery. I need a good record of pictures for my future art work. It is possible to just memorize the scenes, but for a thousand details it takes work and time to till in all those details. I was especially worried about the rocks, rhododendron bushes, and the snow on the hemlocks and on the big hardwood trees. I was delighted to see the spring on Rock Lodge Road in full flow now. That's one good thing about getting lots of snow, as it really recharges the groundwater level.

On Sunday a gang of a few good men tackled a crosscountry ski trip from Peat Bog Road to the Deep Creek Lake State Park. Those making the trip were Dave Ramsey, Tom Dabney, Lloyd, Steve Sherrard, and Walter Haydel. The trop took them to the fire tower, which is a pretty good climb up that ridge, but they enjoyed it immensely. Dave tried to get Lloyd to ski on the frozen lake, but Lloyd declined since he fell through the ice when he was younger and didn't want to take a repeat of that. The skiers have to make tracks when the snow is flying.

My brother, Barry Glotfelty, in Frederick hosted a Super Bowl party on Sunday for our friends down state. Some of those attending were Ann and Pat McLister, Frederick, and even our cousin, Courtney Englar, from here in Garrett County, who made the trip down there to reconnect with that crowd. After the game Lloyd talked to Barry and Barry urged him to come down to join in a ski outing with the Frederick crowd. What he said was, "The best skiing in the state is around Frederick." But the skiing is good enough around here to not waste time in driving there for just a few hours of skiing, no matter how good the company.

Jenelle Bender, daughter of Joanna and Ray Bender of Kolona, Iowa, is now doing her internship in social work at the Garrett County Health Department to complete her B.S. degree from the University of North Iowa. While she is in Garrett County, she lives with her aunt and uncle, Eva and Louis Miller, just down the road from here. She will remain in Bittinger until graduation in May.

Another local future social worker is Jessica Cooper, who is beginning her first semester at Frostburg State University after finishing her college career at Garrett Community College.

Mary Brenneman Frye is recuperating at home following surgery at Garrett Memorial Hospital.

J.D. and Kim Moore and sons from Ocean City visited Ellen, Sam, and Brent Housley for several days. They enjoyed the snow and winter sports in Garrett County.

For anyone spending the last week in the Bittinger area, you know it is definitely real winter. The wind never stops blowing, along with the cold. We have had continual snow accumulation during the last week also. It really shows what real winter weather is all about — brutally frigid.

Proposed 2001 Budget Recognizes Farmers' Role As Land Stewards

Responding to the farmland conservation initiatives in the proposed FY 2001 budget, American Farmland Trust's president Ralph Grossi applauded the administration's recognition of the important role farmers play in America.

"America's farms produce many benefits for this nation, from delicious locally grown food, cleaner water and air to wildlife habitat and open space. The administration's budget proposal recognizes the many contributions America's farmers make to the quality of life we all enjoy, and provides support for farmers and for farmland. Recent state and local elections have shown that the public wants to conserve and protect farmland — so this proposal meets a national need.

"One key to this proposal is reauthorization of the Farmland Protection Program (FPP). Since its creation three years ago, the FPP has been enormously successful at leveraging state and local funds. For a federal investment of only about $275 per acre, the FPP has helped to permanently protect more than 127,000 acres of America's best agricultural land from the bulldozer. The FPP is money well spent in support of America's family farms.

"Farmers are so eager to participate in the FPP that in its first year of operation, demand for matching grants outstripped supply by 900 percent. And funds from the program have largely been reinvested in farm operations, contributing to the economic health of local communities.

"This program is a good start to solving a national problem, but will remain only a start unless this additional funding is authorized. We must support America's farmers in their conservation efforts; America's farmland deserves no less than the best protection," Grossi said.

American Farmland Trust is a private, nonprofit farmland conservation organization founded in 1980 to stop the loss of productive farmland and to promote farming practices that lead to a healthy environment. Its action-oriented programs include public education, technical assistance in policy development and demonstration farmland protection projects.

Structural Changes Are A Reality For Agriculture

The agricultural industry, driven by consumer demand, is evolving at an astounding pace, and the resulting changes are permeating the entire industry. "Not a single producer has escaped the structural changes," said Dr. Allan Gray, assistant agricultural economics professor at Purdue University, during a conference last week at the American Farm Bureau Federation's annual meeting in Houston, Texas.

Driving the changes in consumer preferences are increased income levels and personal preferences. "Consumers have the money and they want to spend it on what they want," Gray said. "Convenience also is very important, and that means price is less important, so they are less sensitive to prices."

Complementing the changing consumer demands are trends beginning to affect the agricultural supply sector. "The challenge for producers will be to push toward a manufacturer's mentality more tightly aligned with other partners in the food chain," said Gray. That "manufacturer's mentality" moves producers away from simply raising a commodity to producing a commodity specifically targeted to an identified end user or consumer.

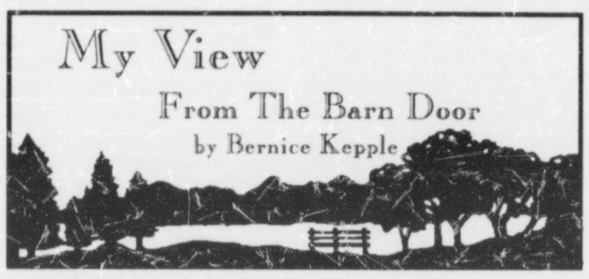
Dr. Gray further pointed toward the evolution that began 10 years ago in the agricultural industry, marked by mergers, acquisitions, joint ventures, and strategic alliances — some 725 during that time frame. Consolidation in production agriculture, as small farms have merged with larger operations, also has contributed significantly to the current economic environment.

Gray pointed toward producers developing "value chains" as a tool to meet future consumer needs. Driving value chains are two supply and demand principles: efficiency and economics.

Value chains tie sectors of agriculture together, ranging from research and development to retailing. "Tying them together is what gives them value," Gray said. "There's value to be captured if the producer can meet demand quickly. That, in turn, drives the value chain."

Integral to making a chain work is providing incentives that reward efficiency, lower costs, improve quality, fully utilize each sector, and include risk management and allocation. Making a chain successful will require an information flow integrating each component.

Gray foresees value chains as being key to successfully and profitably meeting the future demands of consumers and producers. "Growing a raw commodity is simply not where the demand is going to be in the future," said Gray. "There are opportunities to be gained from meeting the needs of these consumers. They are willing to pay for these types of things."



Having been involved in farming of one kind or another all my life, I know the hardships farmers face. I know their ambitions. I know their hopes and dreams. I know about frustration and failure. I know about fighting till the end to uphold the way of life you've inherited and wish to pass on to the next generation, and the next. Each farmer who loses that fight brings the end of the war closer, and the loss of that war could mean the end of the family farm which would be more important to the consumers of this country than they know. Family farmers — whose numbers are dwindling, causing their voice to be weak in Congress — are still the glue that holds this country together. Farmers cannot win this war alone, and consumers are not interested in helping with the fight because food is still so abundant and cheap. A ray of hope is the younger generation; a generation of young farmers who would like to make a living farming, and barring that, or to enable that, they are willing to continue the fight — the fight to let farmers earn an income that will support their families and allow them to continue to farm.

Recently, two young people from the tri-state area have entered the fight through letters to the editor in our paper and others, hoping to call attention to the problems farmers face and convince members of the general public to join the battle. On December 30, 1999, Garrett County's own Laah Broadwater submitted a letter urging more concern for farmland preservation. This week we're printing a letter to the editor from Matt Emerick of Wellersburg, Pa., outlining the differences between the price dairy farmers are paid for the milk they produce and the price consumers pay for that product once it arrives in the store (see Letters to the Editor on page A4), and how that insignificant price is killing off dairy farms in this area and others all over the country.

Laah, an ag education senior at West Virginia University, former Garrett County farm queen, and past Maryland FFA Association president, wrote to encourage the Garrett County commissioners and other leaders to consider more than just "economic improvement," and to "develop sensible plans for land preservation as well as development." She reminded them of some problems farmers face: "bear and deer damage, low commodity prices, increased land and input prices...an ever-growing number of older farmers who want to see their farming practices continue, but who have no children who wish to [or are able to] do so." She said she knows there is no simple solution to these problems, but that "the value of the farming occupation is often overlooked and misunderstood."

Matt Emerick is a senior at Meyersdale Area High School in Pennsylvania, who works for Jimmy and Wilber Paul on their dairy farm in Mount Savage. Since last June he has worked full-time in the summer, and some mornings, every evening, and weekends in the winter, helping to milk and care for the owners' 50 Holsteins. "I really enjoy working with the cattle and doing everything that's involved with their care," he said in a phone conversation this week. Matt has a farm background, although not dairy, and grew up on his family's farm in Wellersburg, Pa., just over the Mason-Dixon Line north of LaVale. There they raise cash crops and produce maple syrup from their two sugar camps. Matt, whose courses in school include college-prep classes as well as vocational agriculture, said he plans to expand the family maple syrup business after high school, is researching bee pollination service as a business, and might even consider dairy farming. His letter to the editor was first sent to his state senator, Rick Santorum, then sent to the Cumberland-Times News and The Republican.

Both of these young people and others like them deserve our applause and support. We hope they continue the fight and are able to earn a spot in agriculture for themselves and other aspiring farmers of their generation.

Statewide Ag Surveys To Be Conducted In Feb.

Implementing effective farm policy depends on accurate information, and Maryland farmers will have an opportunity to be heard on the fiscal health of the state's leading industry through two agricultural surveys being conducted in February. The 1999 Agricultural Economics and Land Ownership Survey and the 1999 Agricultural Resource Management Study, which will be mailed to 900 farmers Feb. 1, will provide vital statistics about the economic condition of production agriculture in Maryland.

"Reliable, timely descriptions of the financial health of Maryland farms is crucial to our policymakers," said Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Virts. "This data is used by legislators, farm organizations, USDA, farm suppliers, lenders and others whose decisions affect our growers."

Locally, the surveys are used in developing drought and other emergency assistance programs. The results also will determine the proportion of operator-owned versus landlord-owned land in agricultural production at the state and national level.

"While we know that commodity prices are low and production was hurt by the drought, we don't know just how much of an impact this has had on farmers," said Maryland State Statistician Ray Garibay. "Survey results help determine disaster relief funding, help creditors set financial positions, and provide a financial benchmark for a variety of farm services."

Producers chosen either will receive a survey form by mail, or will be visited by an interviewer at the farm operator's convenience to conduct the survey. Mailed surveys are to be returned by Feb. 21. Personal interviews will be conducted from Feb. 22 through Mar. 31. Results will be published in a series of reports on the current farm financial condition by the USDA National Agricultural Statistics Service. Copies of the reports, including Maryland-specific agricultural information will be available on the Internet at www.usda.gov/nass/md, or by calling 1-800-675-0295.

Drought, Low Prices Bring $92 Million Loss For Maryland Farmers

Maryland farmers lost nearly $92 million in 1999 because of the severe drought and the declining world price for most crops, according to final production figures from the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA). Although cash receipts for the crops are not final, MDA estimates the total value of the state's field production (corn, soybeans, hay, tobacco) will be $226.4 million, which is $10.5 million more than projected in late September during the height of the drought. The average value of the four major field crops in Maryland over the preceding five years was $318.3 million.

"Even though the total loss for the year was less than anticipated, any industry that experiences a 40% reduction in sales is in trouble," said Maryland Agriculture Secretary Henry A. Virts. "Profitable farms are the best defense against urban sprawl, and we need to work harder to develop strategies to return profitability to Maryland's agricultural industry."

The value of corn (-36.6%) and soybean (-33.6%) production was hardest hit in 1999 declining a combined $78.5 million. However, while 61% ($27.7 million) of the loss for corn was because of lower production — primarily as a result of the drought — revenue from soybeans was more heavily impacted by lower commodity prices, which accounted for 81% ($20.6 million) of the lower value. Tobacco production also was hard hit by the drought, although tobacco production has been in a steady decline throughout the decade. The total losses due to reduced production of tobacco was $4.6 million or 87% of the total loss of $5.2 million.

"As our farmers make plans for the spring planting season, these losses will impact on their decisions," said Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Hagner R. Mister. "Not only must they decide which crops to plant and how much, but whether their lenders and suppliers will be able or willing to advance them enough money to get the crop in the ground."

The analysis was based on the 1999 Crop Production Report issued Jan. 11, 2000, by the National Agricultural Statistics Service. Lower production due to the drought accounts for 58% of the total losses, while 42% is attributed to price declines. MDA calculated the estimates using a five-year average (1994-98) of crop production and price, with the highest and lowest years excluded. New Project Helps Farmers Solve Wetland Problems

The nation's first agricultural wetland mitigation bank for farming activities has been established on a 73-acre site in southeast Missouri.

The project allows farmers to drain small, farmed wetlands in the mitigation bank service-area to improve their farm operations. Farmers can drain the wetland areas if they purchase wetland "credits" from the restored wetland mitigation bank.

The project is unique because it permits drainage that is affordable for farmers. Farmers in southeast Missouri who wish to drain an acre of wetland for rice, soybean, or cotton production will pay only $2,300 per acre. This is much lower than the rates charged by most commercial mitigation banks, which often run to $10,000 per acre or higher.

The pilot project was developed by the American Farmland Trust's Agricultural Conservation Innovation Center (ACIC) with the assistance of the United States Department of Agriculture's Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS).

"We want to ensure there will be no net loss of wetland area, values, or function," said Jim Cubie, director of ACIC. "The center was established to develop innovative solutions to pressing agricultural concerns. In this case, we have developed, with a number of partners, a wetland mitigation program that is both environmentally sound and economically efficient. The result is a workable program that will benefit farmers through increased crop yields, while providing environmental benefits through the restoration and permanent protection of wetlands."

In the Missouri pilot project, the bank site owner has agreed to restore a 73-acre wetland complex on his farm that is currently cropland. Each acre of restored wetland will equal one wetland credit. Funds for the restoration — including a 7-acre berm enclosing the wetland — will come from money paid into the mitigation bank by producers who purchase wetland credits to satisfy federal and state permit requirements. Farmers are typically interested in converting one to two acres of farmed wetlands, and are therefore purchasing one to two wetland credits per permit application.

NRCS will provide technical assistance to restore the wetlands within the bank and will hold the conservation easement that ensures the property remains permanently protected for agriculture. The landowner at the mitigation site will be responsible for long-term management, maintenance, and taxes on the property.

Other members of the Missouri interagency committee that oversees potential wetland impacts related to the pilot mitigation bank include the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the Environmental Protection Agency, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Missouri Department of Natural Resources, and Missouri Department of Conservation.

American Farmland Trust is a private, nonprofit farmland conservation organization founded in 1980 to stop the loss of productive farmland and to promote farming practices that lead to a healthy environment. Its action-oriented programs include public education, technical assistance in policy development, and demonstration farmland protection projects.

Don't Plant the Vegetable Seeds Yet!

This is the time of the year that many of us get the "cabin fever" along with the seed catalogs arriving in the mail. As we leaf through the catalogs there is a strong urge to start growing our spring vegetable transplants. First of all, I am a strong believer that it is cheaper, easier, and generally more healthy plants if we buy our plants at the greenhouse; however, growing plants is fun and you can select varieties not found at the local greenhouses.

Probably the first mistake that is made is to plant the seeds too early. Ideally, the plants should be stocky and well rooted; however, most plants grown indoors tend to be long, lanky and poorly rooted. The following schedule from planting the seed to transplanting into your garden is recommended: 2-3 weeks for cucumber, muskmelon, and squash; 5-7 weeks for tomatoes, broccoli, cauliflower, and brussels sprouts; 6-8 weeks for eggplant and peppers.

If you are growing then plants indoors I would suggest a soilless growing media. Regular soil is often contaminated with fungi and bacteria that may cause plant losses. Commercial soilless mixes are made of peat moss, vermiculite, pine bark and other organic materials. It is extremely important that the soil line is almost at the top of the container. Good ventilation across the top of the pot can help prevent damping off disease. Also, don't over water.

Our office has a lot of good home and garden fact sheets (most free). You are welcome to stop by and browse though our selection.

Milk Production for 1999

U.S. milk production in 1999 was a record high at 162.7 billion pounds, up 3.4% above 1998. This was the largest percentage increase since 1981, which was up 3.5% over 1980. Unfortunately, the projected milk prices for the Maryland and Virginia marketing area does not appear very favorable. June blend prices are projected to be $12.75 per hundred.

Dairy Business Analysis

Do you know how much it is costing you to produce 100 pounds of milk? Do you think General Motors knows how much it is costing to make a car? If you answered "no" to the first question and "yes" to the second question maybe you had better take a "hard" look at your management process! Starting around the first of March we will be assisting farmers in accurately determining the cost of producing 100 pounds of milk. We have developed a rather simple method of using the Schedule F Income Tax information, along with appropriate adjustments, in determining the cost. We can assist you in pinpointing every cost associated with producing 100 pounds of milk. The information generated is a tremendous tool for management decisions. If you are interested in participating, contact my office for additional information (301-334-6960).

Maryland Annual Crop Production Summary Reported

The annual Crop Production Report, by the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service, gives the results of the December Agricultural Survey and Fall Area Frame Survey.

Soybean production in Maryland increased in 1999 compared with the previous year, while corn and hay production were lower, according to the report. Information for the report was gathered from over 800 Maryland farmers.

The 1999 corn for grain yield averaged 93 bushels per acre, based on reports on Dec. 1, 1999, up eight bushels per acre from the November forecast, but still 16 bushels per acre below 1998's yield of 109 bushels per acre. Corn production totaled 33.5 million bushels, down 23% from 1998 production. Corn for grain was harvested on 360,000 acres. Corn for silage production was estimated at 1.1 million tons, 30% more than 1998. Corn for silage was harvested from 100,000 acres in 1999.

Soybean production is forecast at 14.4 million bushels, up 1% from last year. Yield is estimated at 30 bushels per acre, down one bushel from 1998's final estimate of 31 bushels per acre. Soybeans were harvested from 480,000 acres, 20,000 acres more than last year. This was the major contributor to the increased production level from last year.

Alfalfa hay production for 1999 is estimated at 168,000 tons, down 26% from 1998's production level of 226,000 tons. Alfalfa hay yield was estimated at 2.8 tons per acre, down 1.3 tons per acre from 1998. All other hay yield averaged 2.4 tons per acre, down 0.4 tons per acre from a year ago. All other hay production totaled 360,000 tons, a decrease of 11% from 1998's level. Dry weather conditions in western Maryland played an important role in decreased hay production.

The United States production of corn for grain was estimated at 9.44 billion bushels, down 3% from the 1998 crop and down 1% from the Nov. 1 forecast. The 1999 production ranks as the fourth highest production on record behind the 1994, 1998, and 1992 respective crop years. The U.S. yield of 133.8 bushels per acre was down 0.6 bushel from last year.

U.S. soybean production in 1999 totaled 2.64 billion bushels, down 1% from the Nov. 1 forecast, 4% below 1998, and is the third highest production. The average yield per acre in 1999 is estimated at 36.5 bushels, 0.2 bushel below the Nov. 1 forecast and is 2.4 bushels below the 1998 yield.

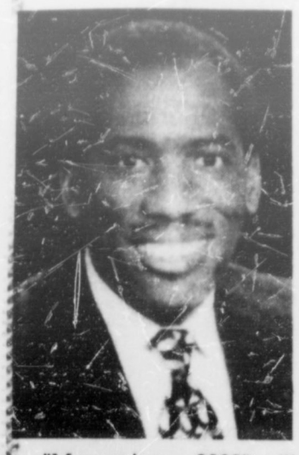
Richard Allen Farmer Returning To "Mountaintop"



"Mountaintop 2000" will once again headline award-winning vocalist and pianist Richard Allen Farmer, who will perform in concert at "A Festival in Celebration of God's Greatness." He will also lead in the musical worship during this 14th annual get-away conference for men and women, to be held March 3-5, 2000, at Lakeview Scanticon Resort in Morgantown, W.Va.

Rev. Farmer has recently been named dean of the chapel at Taylor University in Upland, Ind. Prior to this appointment, the former pastor of Bethany Baptist Church in Pittsburgh and dean of the chapel at Gordon College in Wenham, Mass., resided in Dallas, Texas, and was in full-time ministry as a Bible expositor and concert artist.

Having ministered to congregations on every continent but Antarctica, he continues to travel throughout the world with the goal of "making the scriptures and Christian music come alive for audiences." Several recordings of his music have been produced, and he has written a hands-on approach book on creativity, It Won't Fly If You Don't Try.

"Since our first conference in 1987, Richard Allen Farmer has played a prominent role in each of the Mountaintop weekends. Attendees look forward to his concerts with great anticipation because he is not only a gifted musician, but he has a delightful sense of humor and is an inspirational communicator. His concert is truly a celebration!" said Anne Robinson, co-founder of Living for Christ Conferences, the Ohio Valley-based nonprofit sponsor.

The featured speaker for this conference is Dr. Bill Gillham, popular Bible teacher, author, and host of a nationally syndicated radio program, Lifetime Guarantee. He will be speaking at five sessions during the weekend on the topic "Staying on the Mountaintop After Leaving the Mountaintop."

"'Mountaintop' is one of only a handful of similar events in the country, in that it is nondenominational and for men and women of all ages," said Robinson. "Our goal is to provide an atmosphere apart from worldly pressures and demands where folks can be challenged to grow spiritually." Nearly 3,000 people have participated in this event since its beginning. It has been described as "the spiritual highlight of my year" and "life-changing" by former attendees.

Conference rates, including all programs, four meals, and two nights' lodging, begin at $164 per person (four to a room). For more information or to register, Living for Christ Conferences may be contacted at 304-455-5322 or visited on their web site at living4 Christ.com.

COVER STORY

Best of U.S. skaters hit the ice to compete in nationals

By Cynthia Werthamer
©TVData Features Syndicate

The 2000 State Farm U.S. Figure Skating Championships in Cleveland, airing Saturday, Feb. 12, on ABC, take on high drama with the unexpected upset of three-time ladies champion Michelle Kwan at the recent ISU Grand Prix.

Kwan fell to Russia's Irina Slutskaya in Lyon, France, taking the silver medal at the international competition in January. Nonetheless, she is expected to draw headlines at the skating nationals, which run from Feb. 6-13.

"Her overall picture is very put together," says Dick Button, longtime ABC Sports skating commentator and himself the winner of a record-tying seven national men's championships. "But she is also very vulnerable. It should be a great competition."

The championship is attracting more than 160 skaters from across the United States for eight days of competition, primarily at Cleveland's Gund Arena.

Held annually since 1914, the nation's most prestigious figure skating event crowns 12 national champions in ladies and men's singles, pairs, and ice dancing in each of the Championship, Junior and Novice divisions.

Kwan will defend her 1999 title; she also took the national crown in 1998 and 1996. The two-time world champion and Olympic silver medalist is making her eighth appearance in the U.S. championships.

In the men's competition, Cleveland's own Timothy Goebel, last year's bronze medalist, is expected to provide a strong challenge to defending U.S. champion and world bronze medalist Michael Weiss.

Other hopefuls foreseen as strong contenders include Sarah Hughes in the women's draw and Trifun Zivanovic, last year's silver medalist, in the men's.

Athletes reached the championships through regional and sectional qualifying competitions held in November and December.

"Skating is always fresh," says Button, widely considered one of the premier male figure skaters of all time. "It's invigorating, it's elegant, it's fun, it's dangerous and it's technically wildly demanding. It's very easy to stay excited about it when it's good."

The technical variations among different kinds of jumps aren't important to the enjoyment of watching skating, Button says. "It's more important to know edging, flow, ability to spin and control your spinning. But the name of the game remains how many triple jumps you do, and now, quadruples."

Button himself – pointing out his distinction as the first to perform a triple jump 30 years ago – took the United States, North American, European, World and Olympic championships in 1948, a feat that has not been repeated.

His succession of championships includes five consecutive world titles (1948-52), seven U.S. men's titles and six North American titles. His competitive career was crowned with back-to-back Olympic championships in 1948 and 1952.

"When any one particular element is done well, it's magnificent," he says of watching the competition. "But what's most exciting is when all the elements come together. Then it's beyond belief."

And all the elements – style, technique, personality, skill, music and that indescribable something – come together "very, very seldom," Button says.

TV PIPELINE

Q: Is the leading man on the CBS sitcom Ladies Man the same actor who plays Mr. Wick on ABC's The Drew Carey Show? –A.S. Rodriguez via e-mail.

A: No, although both actors hail from the United Kingdom. London native Alfred Molina plays Jimmy Stiles on Ladies Man. Craig Ferguson, a native of Glasgow, Scotland, plays Nigel Wick on Drew Carey.

Q: Is actor Alex Desert, who plays Jake Malinak on Becker, really blind? –Florence Viassis, Lancaster, Pa.

A: No.

Q: Wasn't Hollywood Squares host Tom Bergeron on another TV show before this one? –J.B.R., Auburn, Ky.

A: Yes. Bergeron, 44, co-hosted the FX Channel morning show Breakfast Time, which morphed into the short-lived Fox After Breakfast when that network briefly tried to launch a morning show.

Q: My mother does not believe that The Andy Griffith Show also was known as Andy of Mayberry. Please clear this up. –Nicky Trodden, Reno, Nev.

A: While the series was called The Andy Griffith Show during its network run, daytime network reruns and some syndication packages did, in fact, air it as Andy of Mayberry.

Q: I distinctly recall an old show called McKeever & the Colonel, but can you refresh my memory of the specifics? –Lawton G., Charlotte, N.C.

A: Set in a military school, McKeever & the Colonel (NBC, 1962-63) followed the antics of mischievous Cadet Gary Mc Keever (Scott Lane), who was a thorn in the side of Col. Harvey Blackwell (veteran character actor Allyn Joslyn).

Alfred Molina

Jackie Coogan (The Addams Family) co-starred as the colonel's aide, Sgt. Barnes.

Q: Judson Mills of Walker, Texas Ranger used to be on As the World Turns. What was the name of his soap character? –Betty Y., Burlington, Wash.

A: From 1991-93, Mills played Alexander "Hutch" Hutchinson on the CBS daytime drama.

Q: Where is Homicide: Life on the Street? It was supposed to return in November! –Pete S., Blakely, Pa.

A: No, it wasn't. Homicide was canceled last spring by NBC, which will air a TV movie to tie up some loose plot strings on Feb. 13. I suspect you were confused by the fact that NYPD Blue, another long-running cop drama, originally was scheduled to return last November on ABC.

SATURDAY

Saturday on A&E Network, William "Jack" Frost (David Jason) doubts a man with Down syndrome is a killer, despite his confession, in A Touch of Frost.

Antiques
by Ralph and Terry Kovel

Q: I recently inherited a Queen Anne-style dining room set from my grandparents. It includes a table, six chairs, a china cabinet and a buffet. I know my grandmother reupholstered the chairs with her own needlepoint. The rest of the furniture is original and in excellent condition. The metal tags inside the drawers read, "Landstrom Furniture 1879 Rockford, Ill." Is that the year the furniture was made? What is the set worth?

A: Your furniture was made in the late 1920s. The Landstrom Furniture Corp. reproduced several styles that were popular in America in the mid-18th century, including Queen Anne, Sheraton and Chippendale. The company used solid wood and wood veneers. The decorations on the furniture were pressed, not carved. The 1879 date in the trademark may refer to the year the company was founded. Your table is worth about $1,000, your buffet and cabinet $500 each, and your chairs $75 each.

Q: My 75-year-old mother still has one of her childhood dolls. It is a 10-inch girl doll with a composition head and jointed wooden body. The red label on her chest reads: "Margie, Des. & Copyright by Jos. Kallus." Can you tell us who Joseph Kallus is and what the doll is worth?

A: Joseph L. Kallus collaborated with illustrator Rose O'Neill to create the famous Kewpie doll based on O'Neill's drawings. In 1922, Kallus founded the Cameo Doll Co. in Port Allegheny, Pa. By the late 1920s, Cameo had started making dolls like your mother's using elastic-strung wooden segments. The Margie doll was made in 1929. It is valued at $225.

Tip: Tufted Victorian pieces covered in dark velvet need to be dusted in each tuft, a time-consuming process. Consider reupholstering without tufts, a style also done in Victorian times.

Pet Care
by Peter Edwards

These days, our pets are living longer, thanks to the same medical advances that are contributing to increased longevity in humans. But as we all know, these technologies cost money, and without adequate health insurance most people could not afford to take advantage of them.

For many pet owners — especially seniors on fixed incomes — who are faced with approving the use of expensive procedures or risk having their animals die, the choice can be heartbreaking. The solution would appear to be health care insurance for pets.

However, there are problems here as well and many of the complaints are similar to those we've seen with human health care plans. For example, there is a reluctance to pay for experimental procedures that may be a last resort to save a pet's life. Some owners feel there's not enough coverage for preventative care. Still, with all the drawbacks, there is a growing acceptance of pet health care insurance as a way to help deal with the expenses of keeping a beloved friend alive and well.

If you have or had health care insurance for your pets, please share your experiences with the rest of us. Send your comments to me at King Features Weekly Service, 628 Virginia Drive, Orlando, Fl. 32803.

MINOR INDOOR REPAIRS

With cold weather keeping you inside, now is a great time to take care of minor repairs and maintenance tasks around the home. You know you're supposed to clean and maintain household appliances regularly, but how often do you actually get around to it? Don't feel guilty. You can still get a little more life out of your banged-up, dusty appliances.

Refrigerators can present a host of problems over time, but following a regular maintenance schedule can extend their lives and keep them energy-efficient. Sears Home Central recommends that you clean the coils underneath the refrigerator once a month. Hair — especially pet hair — and dust can build up easily, making the compressor work harder and ultimately causing a breakdown. Clean the coils with a long brush, making sure not to disturb any insulation.

While you're at it, here's a few other appliance tips:

• Keep appliances dry. This may seem like a no-brainer, but in humid climates, rust is a real danger. Place your fridge, washer or dryer and dishwasher in air-conditioned rooms.

• Clean them frequently with a damp cloth and a mild, non-abrasive cleanser. Pay special attention to the refrigerator — the door gasket must be kept clean to ensure a tight seal, while cleaning the back of the fridge every three months will improve airflow.

• Here's one you may not have heard: Wax your appliances! That's right — apply a coat of paste wax to them, just like you'd wax your car. It's extra insurance against moisture, dirt and rust.

• Treat scratches easily by applying touch-up paint to them as soon as they occur. This keeps rust from forming or spreading.

• Check the belts on the washer and dryer. If they're worn or broken, replace them.

• Inspect the vent at the back of your dryer, and clean any lint or other obstructions. Your clothes will dry more quickly, and you'll prevent a potentially hazardous situation — the trapped lint can ignite, causing a fire.

Your appliances' "winter cleaning" can be accomplished in a day or less, depending on how long it's been since you last looked under your refrigerator. So, get to work! You'll save money in the long run.

Free Tax Help Is Offered By FSU Students

Free help in preparing 1999 tax returns is available through the IRS-sponsored VITA (Volunteer Income Tax Assistance) Program at Frostburg State University's College of Business. Help with basic federal and Maryland income tax returns will be offered from early February through early April by volunteers from among FSU's accounting and business students who have been trained and approved by the IRS.

Taxpayers who file Form 1040EZ, Form 1040A, or a basic Form 1040 federal tax return can receive assistance. Volunteers will alert taxpayers to special credits and deductions for which they may be eligible.

Appointments must be made in advance by calling Dr. Joyce Middleton, VITA site co-coordinator, at 301-687-4154. Student volunteers will work Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in FSU's Frampton Hall.

Taxpayers should bring the tax packages mailed by the IRS and the state, Form W-2 from all employers, interest and dividend statements (Form 1099), a copy of last year's returns, if available, and any other relevant information about income and expenses.

Faculty volunteers will oversee the student preparers, who include Kescia Alexander, Amy Arbutis, Henriette Browne, Travis Daniel, Inem Ekpa, Tricia Hetz, Mischelle Johnson, Carolyn Llewellyn, Windy Ruby, Donald Stack, Megan Stanton, Ricardo Trujillo, and Heidi Yoder.

FSU Department Of Social Work Slates Session

The Department of Social Work at Frostburg State University will hold an information session Saturday, Feb. 12, 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., for persons interested in a career in social work. The meeting will include information on the curriculum requirements of the social work program at FSU.

The session will be at the Department of Social Work offices in Room 029, Guild Center, on the FSU campus.

The session is designed for people who want to learn more about the social work profession and FSU's undergraduate social work program. For those who intend to apply to the FSU program, the session serves as orientation to the major and provide details about admissions criteria, course requirements, curriculum planning, social work licensing, and continued study beyond the undergraduate level.

Those who plan to attend are asked to call the Department of Social Work at 301-687-7497 at least one day in advance. Persons with disabilities who need accommodation or who have questions about the physical access provided may call the ADA Compliance Office at 301-687-4102, TDD 301-687-7955.

The FSU undergraduate social work program is fully accredited by the Council on Social Work Education. Graduates are eligible to take state licensing exams at the undergraduate level and are potentially eligible to apply for advanced standing in master's degree programs in social work. Advanced standing allows students to complete their master of social work degrees in less time than it would otherwise take.

For information about FSU's social work program, persons may contact Department Chair Kathleen H. Powell, M.S.W., at 301-687-4695.

Twelve Angry Jurors Set At Frostburg State

The Roots African American Theatre Organization will present the play Twelve Angry Jurors Thursday and Friday, Feb. 10 and 11, at 8 p.m. each night in the Frostburg State University Performing Arts Center Studio Theatre. The cost is $2.

Twelve Angry Jurors is based on Twelve Angry Men, the Emmy-award winning television movie by Reginald Rose, adapted for the stage by Sherman L. Sergel.

The play is about a jury panel trying to reach a verdict in a murder trial. Eleven of the jurors are ready to convict the boy in the murder of his father, but one juror disagrees and sets out to change the others' minds.

Directed by Tony Washington, a 1999 FSU graduate, Twelve Angry Jurors is being presented by The Roots African American Theatre Organization in collaboration with the Dramatic Publishing Company, the Performing Arts Center at FSU, and the Communication and Theatre Arts Department.

The theater troupe is a student organization that started as a reading group. Since 1996, the group has produced plays with the aim of promoting African American playwrights and encouraging young African American actors.

Spruce Forest Seeks Musicians For "Showcase"

Spruce Forest Artisan Village, which is located along Old Route 40, Grantsville, is looking for local musicians who would be featured in the monthly "Musicians' Showcase" at the village during the summer season.

"Musicians would perform outdoors amidst the 75-year-old spruce forest, casually playing for visitors as they stroll through the colonial village and visit with working artisans inside charming log cabins and schoolhouses," said village administrator Trish Morgan.

The first "Musicians' Showcase" will be held Saturday, June 3, beginning at 12 noon. Musicians are free to select the length of their performance, with a minimum of one hour suggested. In case of inclement weather, musicians may choose to perform on the porch of the 1835 Miller House Peace Center at Spruce Forest. Other season dates for the showcases are July 1, August 5, September 2 and October 7.

The showcases are sponsored in part by the Maryland State and Garrett County arts councils and admission is free. Although some seating is available, visitors to the showcases are encouraged to bring their own seating. For more information, persons may contact Morgan at 301-895-3332 or by e-mail at tmorgan@spruceforest.org.

Loch Lynn Approves Plan To Fluoridate

Loch Lynn's mayor and town council have approved the plan to fluoridate the town's water system, in a vote taken during the town meeting Monday evening. This action was recommended to the town officials following the decision last month by the residents and officials of Mtn. Lake Park to introduce fluoride into the municipal water system which it shares with Loch Lynn.

With agreement reached by the residents and officials of both towns, the fluoridation project will now be implemented through the Garrett Sanitary District, which provides the water service for both areas. Paul Shockey, mayor of Mtn. Lake Park, explained that the sanitary district director, Ron Petrelia, will assume responsibility at this point in the process. "Ron will be working in conjunction witih Rodney Glotfelty at the health department, who will apply for some grant money for the materials," Shockey said.

Glotfelty, Garrett County's health officer, spoke in favor of fluoridation of the water system for both municipalities, noting that Oakland's many years of water fluoridation has been "very positive" for the dental health of the community.

Petrella explained the immediate steps to be taken. "I have the information about the equipment we will need. I'll call Rodney to discuss the total cost and then he will work on the grant application," he said.

Petrella, Glotfelty, and Dale Baker, the lab director for Garrett Sanitation, traveled to Boonsboro earlier this week to look at the town's newly installed water and fluoride treatment system. "We talked to the people in Boonsboro about the system, how it is working, and what, if any, kinds of problems they have encountered," Petrella said.

Once the equipment is acquired and installed by Garrett Sanitation, representatives from the Maryland Department of the Environment will come to Garrett County to train the local employees who will maintain the system.

Petrella also explained a

The story contains plenty of humor, but also a powerful, poignant message concerning the appreciation of life, or lack thereof.

Tractor Trailer Driver Killed In Backbone Mountain Accident

A tractor trailer traveling eastbound on Route 135 down Backbone Mountain early Monday morning reportedly failed to negotiate a 90 degree right turn at the bottom of the grade and collided with a cement wall on the opposite side of the road, killing the driver, John E. Vana, 63, Janesville, Wisc. Vana, transported by Tri-Towns EMS to Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, W.Va., was pronounced dead by medical examiner Dr. K. David Lesler.

The accident, which occurred at 4:34 a.m., was investigated by Tfc. Jesse F. Broadwater of the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police and reconstructed by commercial vehicle reconstructionist Sgt. Theresa L. Fischer from the Finzel scale house.

According to the report filed by the state police, investigation of the wreckage at the accident scene indicated that the tractor trailer operated by Vana was traveling 70 mph at the time of impact with the wall. The weather, described by police as dry and clear, was not reported to be a factor.

The cargo of the trailer was composed of food products and liquid oxygen bleach. The Hazardous Incident Response Team from Allegany County responded to the scene along with fire fighters from Bloomington, Westernport, and Luke.

Investigation by the state police continues and anyone who witnessed the accident or has information about it is asked to call the McHenry barrack at 301-387-1101 or 301-895-1101.

Lost Control

Arlene G. Livengood, 62, Grantsville, reportedly lost control of her 1995 Ford Taurus while traveling southbound on Chestnut Ridge Road north of Route 40 Tuesday afternoon, and struck a utility pole.

Tfc. B.L. Bittinger responded to the accident scene at 5:55 p.m., along with Allegheny Power, Northern Rescue Squad, Confluence Ambulance, and Grantsville VFD.

Livengood and two passengers, Anita Livengood, 30, and Hope Livengood, 6, were transported by ambulance to cumberland Memorial Hospital for treatment. Anita and Arlene Livengood were admintted to the hospital and are reportedly in "stable" condiditon as of this morning.

No charges were filed.

Grantsville Man Faces Multiple Felony Charges

A Grantsville man was arrested by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation early this morning and charged in connection with several thefts spanning the tri-state area, as well as a pair of drug offenses. Numerous items of stolen property were recovered as a result of the ongoing investigation, some of which remains to be identified by owners. More arrests are likely, according to GBI detective Jeff Murphy.

Ronald Lee Wilt Jr., 18, Durst Road, faces two counts of felony theft stemming from the recovery of a 1998 Polaris four-wheeler valued at $6,000 and a 1999 Honda four-wheeler valued at $5,000. Both vehicles were stolen from a Pennsylvania location. Additional felony theft charges were filed against Wilt in connection with the recovery of a $600 Italian muzzleloader stolen from the Whitewater Inn, Grantsville, and the theft of more than $300 in cash and miscellaneous equipment taken from Yo-

Symphony At Deep Creek To Be Discontinued

The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival Summer 2000 schedule will present two concerts by the Deep Creek Chamber Players, but not the two concerts by the Symphony at Deep Creek that have been presented for the past 13 years, according to Elizabeth Johnson, executive director of GLAF. Johnson cited that the decision of Kathryn Sincell-Corwell not to renew her contract as executive director of the symphonic concerts as the reason for the change.

Sincell-Corwell will still produce the two chamber music concerts scheduled for August 18 and 19, for which she invites internationally renowned musicians to perform. In a statement to the GLAF board of directors, she indicated that the effort and time involved in bringing approximately 40 musicians from throughout the world to Garrett County for the week of concerts has become too burdensome. She also expressed her gratitude to local families and organizations that have housed and fed the musicians during their stay in Garrett Coun-

Commissioners, Board Of Public Works Agree To DCL Sale Terms

Two major steps were taken this week in the ongoing selling process of Deep Creek Lake. Locally, the Garrett County Board of Commissioners signed a resolution Tuesday to approve the state's purchase of the lake, and statewide, the Board of Public Works endorsed the sale yesterday in Annapolis. A report submitted by Gene Lynch, the Maryland Office of General Services negotiator in the sale, indicated that the closing of this step of the purchase process will be complete by Feb. 25.

There are two steps to the purchase: the first includes the purchase of the lake, which in size is approximately 4,400 acres, at a price of $7.8 million, plus closing costs. The second step involves the purchase of the "add-on parcels," or the 600 or so acres of the buffer strip and other lots, which will be bought by the state for $9.8 million by April 30.

The add-on parcels will be offered to the adjacent property owners for the state's costs (acquisition and overhead) at approximately 0.38 cents per square foot. Lynch noted that this price is "dramatically lower" than the approximately $5 per square foot that lake front property costs on the open market.

All add-on parcels sold to the adjacent owners will have conservation easements. The money generated from these sales over the next two years is expected to repay the general fund for much of the $10 million the state is paying for the tracts. After two years, the parcels will revert to the state and become part of the park system.

"We are confident that the deal with GPU and the state is in keeping with the intent of the county commissioners to protect property owners, as well as maintain the natural quality of the buffer strip and surrounding area," said Wendell Beitzel, chairman of the commissioner board. "It has always been important to us that we protect this land. We don't want the buffer strip developed in any way that would detract from the natural recreational qualities of the lake. This deal does indeed protect the lakefront from being destroyed."

Maryland law does not permit the state to purchase large tracts of county land without the approval of that county's government. The sale was contingent upon that agreement, which the commissioners did sign this week.

Beitzel said the commissioners are fairly comfortable with the state-county arrangement, noting that the proposed nine-member advisory board will now have three state-appointed members as opposed to an earlier request of the governor to have five. He said one portion that remains somewhat unresolved is the "long-term recreational management" of the lake.

"We are still working on that final piece, but really there are just minor details to figure out," Beitzel said.

Commissioner Ernest Gregg said the "most pertinent" issues have been settled. "First, we are reasonably satisfied that we have been able to secure the 'status quo' for the lake property owners and for all county residents. Secondly, no one is going to obtain a financial windfall from this transaction. That was a fear we had early on, and we were adamant that no one should profit from this deal.

Governor Proposes 10 Percent Salary Hike For Teachers

by Leah Carlson
Capital News Service

With substantial support from state legislators, Gov. Parris Glendening wants to give Maryland teachers a record 10 percent pay hike over two years. Glendening earmarked $90 million for public school teacher salary increases in a supplemental budget released Tuesday.

"An educator's salary must have a level of dignity. It should be enough to support a family," said Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend.

Baltimore, Montgomery County, and Prince George's County are slated to receive the biggest shares — totaling more than $12 million each for the first two years — and Calvert and Talbot received the smallest allocations — about $1.3 million each.

There is a catch: The counties must pay for a 4 percent pay increase to get another 1 percent from the state each year.

"10 percent! This is going to get really exciting here. It will make all the difference in the world, especially because I have three children in college," said Virginia Crespo, a social studies teacher at Broadneck High School in Anne Arundel County.

Poor schools would get a share of a $19 million set-aside to help them meet the 4 percent trigger, with Baltimore getting more than half of that set-aside.

In 2001, the funds will come from the state's portion of the national tobacco settlement. A source for the 2002 funding has not been identified, Townsend said.

The salary boost might help alleviate the teacher shortage by attracting more people into the profession and keeping qualified educators from leaving the state for better-paying jobs.

Maryland schools will need an additional 11,000 teachers by 2001, but state colleges graduate only about 2,500 education majors a year — and about half of those leave the state.

"It's a wonderful initiative. It's daring," said Maryland State Teachers Association vice president Patricia Foerster.

"This is a signal that our government cares," said Susie Jablinske, a first-grade teacher who now serves as president of the Teachers Association of Anne Arundel County.

Maryland's average teacher salary ranks 14th

Oakland Becomes "Place To Stroll" For International Walking Group

An international group of trail-walkers has designated Oakland as one of its sites for its worldwide membership to get credit for completing a 10 kilometer or 6.2 mile walk, according to Glenn Tolbert, Main Street manager for the town. The designation of the town by VolksMarch (or "People's Walk") organization, which promotes walking as a health and pastime activity around the world, could bring an increase to the numbers of visitors to the Oakland area this summer and fall, Tolbert said.

"This is good news for our efforts in promoting our community," said Mayor Asa McCain. "And it is a real honor. We finished our walking trail just in time for this."

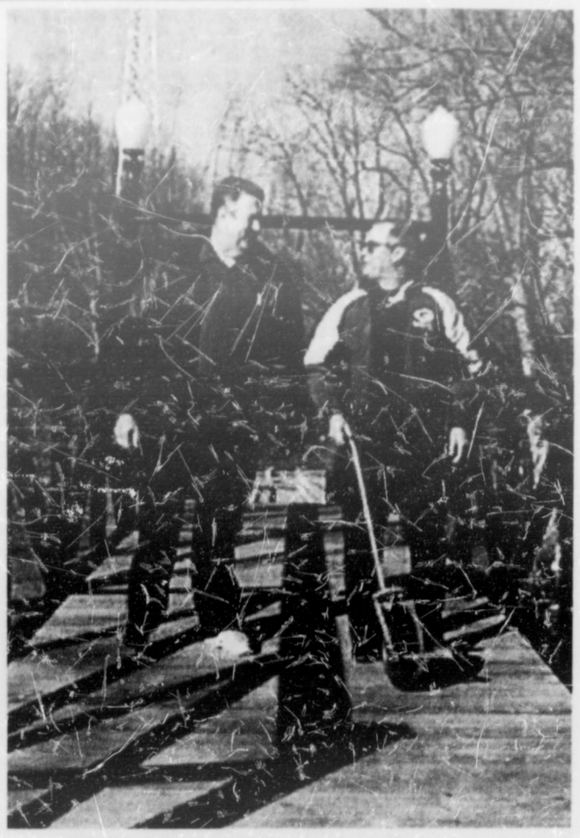
The American branch of the VolksMarch organization, VolksSport, will announce the addition of the Oakland trail on its web site. From July 1 through November 30, its members and those affiliated with overseas clubs can visit the community and earn "international credits" for walking the circuit.

Members of the organization will be asked to sign up for the walk by registering at the Oakland Post Office along Second Street. A registration box with instructions will be located in the lobby. The association offers a voluntary International Achievement Awards program for those who wish to track their progress and credit.

The cost to participate in this program is $2 per person. The trail may be walked for free by anyone not wanting to walk for "credit." The start location for the event beginning July 1 will be the post office. Tolbert reported that the group has sanctioned a "carefully marked trail" that includes the walking path behind the Mountain Fresh Produce Pavilion, over the new bridge on the Little Youghiogheny River and past the Glades development, down Second Street, across 219 to pass in front of Garrett County Memorial Hospital, and eventually leading through Oakland's downtown shopping district.

Oakland's inclusion into the organization that promotes walking as a recreational and health activity came about when local resident Dave Insley spoke about his parents involvement with the group in Germany, Tolbert reported. Follow-ups over the internet by Oakland's Main Street program resulted in several visits from a representative of the American VolksSport Association (AVA) to the town. Steve Duex, a representative of the AVA and an officer of a Maryland group called the Piedmont Pacers, joined Mayor McCain to mark off the trail that is now a part of the organization's offerings.

More information on the AVA may be obtained on the internet at www.ava.org. Persons may contact Tolbert at 301-533-4470, or McCain at 301-334-2691.



INTERNATIONAL ROUTE MARKED OFF — An international group of trail-walkers has sanctioned a 6.2 mile circuit in and around Oakland to be one of its official sites. The American branch of the VolksMarch organization, titled VolksSport, will announce the addition of the Oakland trail on its web site, and from July 1 through November 30, its members and those affiliated with overseas clubs can visit the community and earn "international credits" for walking the circuit. Sherbin Sentences Convicted Thief To 7-Year Term

James Sherbin, judge of the Circuit Court of Garrett County, presided over criminal hearings last week and sentenced a Baltimore man to seven years in jail. Francis Edward Candeloro, 35, had pleaded guilty to second degree burglary after he was implicated in a March 1999 break-in at the Funny Farm Citgo, Friendsville.

Candeloro is reported to have pried open the door of the Citgo station in the early hours of March 10, 1999, entered the building, and removed numerous cartons of cigarettes. The defendant was arrested by the Maryland State Police in July, following an investigation by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation (GBI).

Charges in a second case in which Candeloro was similarly charged for events that took place in February at the Grantsville Rite Aid Pharmacy were dismissed as part of his plea, according to Lisa Thayer Welch, state's attorney for Garrett County.

Candeloro's alleged accomplice, Richard Ashbrook, 38, was sentenced last month to the same term of incarceration for his involvement in the Rite Aid break-in.

In another circuit court case last week, Sherbin ordered a juvenile committed to the Department of Juvenile Justice. The youth was arrested after apparently stealing two vehicles early last month and causing property damage at numerous locations in Loch Lynn, Mtn. Lake Park, and Oakland.

Pending last week's hearing, the minor had been placed in one of the state's juvenile detention facilities, Welch reported. Under the commitment ordered by the judge, the juvenile will be required to complete a 4-to-5-month rehabilitation and treatment program in a state youth camp.

In the early morning hours of Jan. 4, Garrett County Sheriff's Office deputies responded to a number of calls regarding theft and destruction of property, according to the report. Det. J.D. Murphy, assigned to the GBI, determined that a juvenile had removed a dump truck from the parking lot of Frank Arnold Contracting Inc. in Loch Lynn. The driver proceeded to damage a vehicle at the David Eddington residence in Mtn. Lake Park, as well as a mailbox, driveway, and culvert at the Richard DeLoach residence along Broadford Road. He also reportedly damaged a fence at Broad Ford Elementary School.

The truck apparently broke down along Fourth Street in Oakland, at which time the suspect climbed the fence at the Garrett County Roads Garage and removed a crew cab utility pickup and drove it through the roads department fence. Part of the fence landed on another county vehicle parked in the lot, according to the report.

The county roads truck was recovered at the Frank Arnold parking lot, where the juvenile apparently returned to the scene of the original crime. The suspect was also reported to have attempted to take a vehicle from the Glass Unlimited business location, but was unable to gain entry into the building. A planter was thrown against the front door of the business, causing damage to the glass.

In the hearing for this case, the judge also determined that the juvenile's guardian is responsible for restitution to the various victims in the combined amount of $9,000, according to the report.

Organization Of SGHS Alumni Assn. Announced

Members of the Southern Garrett High School (SGHS) Alumni Association recently attended a meeting of the Board of Education to announce the organization's formation and to explain its mission. The members also made an initial commitment of $1,000 toward sponsoring a program for Southern Garrett students that would feature Bob Moore, author and motivational speaker.

The association has been created to reunite Southern graduates and to support current students by sponsoring speakers, by providing scholarships, and by participating in career-oriented programs in order to encourage academic excellence and a life achievement. The association also plans to recognize and honor successful alumni, publish a newsletter, and promote class and all school reunions.

The organizing committee, which consists of Southern graduates and staff, is in the process of creating a database of all the graduating classes. The association will be writing to graduates to enlist their support for the organization through an annual membership of $25 or a lifetime membership of $500.

Members of the organizing committee include Robert Sharps, class of '67; Bill Grant ('71); Jim Murray ('71); Lisa Thayer Welch ('78); Kathy Lipscomb Greaser ('72); Marcy Polce ('88); Kendra Stemple Todd ('88); Lynn Bell, principal; Shirley Spiker, assistant principal; Martha Deberry ('59), librarian; Chris Csonka, teacher; and Dave Mayfield, teacher. Those desiring additional information or who are willing to underwrite some of the initial costs for this new organization are asked to contact a committee member or write to Southern Garrett High School, 345 Oakland Drive, Oakland, MD 21550.

AN ALUMNI ASSOCIATION has been established for Southern High School and was officially recognized at a recent meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education. The first official act of the new organization was to commit $1,000 to the board to sponsor a special program for local students. Chamber Will Host Financial Planning Seminar

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce will continue its new Brown Bag Seminar Series with a presentation on "Financial and Retirement Planning." The seminar will be at noon next Wednesday, Feb. 16, and presented by Rob Sharps and Carrisa Rodeheaver of First United Bank & Trust.

This new chamber educational series features members sharing information in their areas of expertise with others. According to Ken Wishnick, executive director of the chamber, these seminars are "a great way to invest some time" in learning skills of value to businesspersons and entrepreneurs. "To be successful in business today, you need to have a broad base of knowledge in many areas. Through this series, we will provide access to many experts that will increase both efficiency and profitability," said Wishnick.

Sharps and Rodeheaver, investment advisors from First United, will be covering "Retirement Plan Options, specifically Roth IRAs and 401 K Plans." Also, they will suggest strategies for minimizing risks and maximizing profits from investment portfolios. There will be opportunity to ask questions of these experts that should help each businessperson with his/her own financial planning needs.

Wishnick encourages all small-business owners to attend this seminar. "Entrepreneurs often are so busy, covering so many bases, that they sometimes overlook the need to plan for their personal financial futures. The consequences of not planning range from paying much more in taxes at a later date to simply not having enough money set aside to retire," he said.

The seminar will be held in the Visitor Center conference room. The program is free to chamber members and $5 to non-members. Participants should bring their own lunches. Soft drinks will be available at a nominal cost.

Five additional seminars are scheduled through the end of May on a wide variety of topics. For a schedule of all brown bag seminars, persons may contact the chamber at 301-387-4386.

Three Hurt In Monday Collision On Md. Highway

A two-vehicle collision Monday morning in Mtn. Lake Park resulted in the transport of all three occupants of one car to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released. The driver of the other vehicle faces charges in connection with the accident, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

John William Hinebaugh, 31, Mtn. Lake Park, was traveling north on B Street at 8:40 a.m. when he reportedly failed to stop at the Maryland Highway intersection stop sign. His 1991 Ford Escort entered the right-of-way of an oncoming eastbound Geo Prizm operated by Heather Dawn Roth, 15, of Horseshoe Run, W.Va., colliding with her vehicle.

Roth and her passengers, Robin Sue Roth, age not available, and a 1-year-old child, were each transported by the Southern Rescue Squad to the hospital. The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department also responded.

Deputies charged Hinebaugh with failure to stop at a stop sign and failure to yield right-of-way.

A one-vehicle accident on Boiling Springs Road at 5:15 p.m. Saturday evening was attributed to an ice-covered roadway, deputies said. A 1989 Ford Bronco operated by Kenneth James Murphy, 19, Deer Park, was traveling northbound along Boiling Springs Road just north of the Eagle Rock Road intersection when it spun out of control on a patch of ice and hit a tree.

Murphy and his passenger, Marvin Eugene White, 22, Oakland, were transported by Southern Rescue to Garrett Memorial, where they were both treated and released. The Deer Park Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene. No charges were filed.

Friendsville Man Jailed For Non-Support Of Child

A Friendsville man will serve a two-year jail sentence following his guilty plea to a charge of non-support of a minor child in a recent Garrett County District Court hearing. Joseph Andrew Jenkins, 33, was handed a three-year jail term, one year of which was suspended by Judge Ralph M. Burnett. Jenkins had been arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies in December after a state's attorney's office investigation determined that he was in arrears of over $13,000 in support payments.

In other district court news, Randolph Lee Harvey, 18, Oakland received a four-day jail term after he was convicted on a drug charge. Harvey pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and was handed a 60-day sentence with all but four days suspended, a $200 fine, and one year of supervised probation. An additional charge of possession of drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted.

Harvey's November arrest by Maryland state troopers came after a consent search of his vehicle uncovered a burnt marijuana cigarette and a rolling paper machine. The search took place in the parking lot of the Oakland Sheetz store, after Harvey's vehicle had been observed the previous night parked at another location, reportedly with marijuana inside in plain view.

James Michael Stanton, 18, Oakland, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and received a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which was suspended. An additional drug paraphernalia charge was not prosecuted.

Stanton had been arrested in October by sheriff's deputies who were investigating a reported assault. He was in a car with several other individuals that was stopped along Foster Road in connection with the alleged incident, and an ensuing search uncovered marijuana in the vehicle.

Rodney James Friend, 32, Friendsville, was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) after he pleaded guilty to second degree assault and malicious destruction of property. The ruling also stipulated a 60-day suspended sentence, a $100 fine, and one year of unsupervised probation. An additional charge of trespassing was not prosecuted.

AMES RECEIVES WARM THE CHILDREN CHECK — The Ames department store in Frostburg was an active partner in this year's Warm the Children campaign, spearheaded for the third year by The Republican newspaper. Lisa Broadwater, the newspaper's Grantsville office manager and the coordinator of the program for the Ames shoppers and volunteers, presented the store with the total spent this year — nearly $8,400. Of the 180 kids served in this year's effort, 103 of them went to Ames with volunteer shoppers to buy coats, hats, jeans, boots, and many other items of winter wear. (The 77 other youth went to the J.C. Penney catalog store in Oakland, where they were assisted by Annie and Larry Steyer, whose photo appeared in last week's issue.) "The Ames staff is just great," Broadwater said. "They are always nice — there's never a problem. I love working with them." Shelby Calhoun, representing the Frostburg store, is pictured at right as she accepts the check from Broadwater.

Sheriff's deputies arrested Friend in September following a reported domestic-related assault at the Mtn. Lake Park residence of his wife, from whom he was separated. According to the charging statement, he assaulted a guest at the apartment, then went to the parking lot and shattered his wife's windshield with a tire iron.

Carmel Emerson Bosley II, 26, Keyser, W.Va., received a PBJ after he pleaded guilty to charges of possession of marijuana and driving while intoxicated (DWI). He was handed a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which were suspended, fined $155, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

Bosley's May arrest took place when he pulled his vehicle into the driveway of a home where sheriff's deputies were on hand investigating a report of a missing juvenile. Bosley, who had the child in the car with him, was intoxicated and was carrying marijuana in his pocket.

In a separate hearing Bosley pleaded guilty to a third charge, driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DUI), which resulted in a PBJ ruling and a $300 fine and a 30-day suspended sentence.

David Scott Friend, 32, Oakland, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ, a 30-day sentence with all but two days suspended, a $100 fine, and one year of supervised probation. An additional charge of drug paraphernalia possession was not prosecuted.

Garrett County Narcotics Task Force detectives arrested Friend in October after a search of his Boy Scout Road property uncovered marijuana and rolling papers.

Nathaniel Jacob Puckett, 20, Westminster, was not prosecuted on a charge of unlawfully taking a vehicle without the owner's consent. He had reportedly taken a family member's vehicle from Garrett County in October in order to travel to Baltimore, and was arrested by state troopers along I-70 in the area of Frederick.

Mark Allen Robertson, 36, Friendsville, was handed a not-guilty ruling on charges of second degree assault and reckless endangerment when a victim refused to testify against him in court. Robertson had been arrested by state troopers following a November domestic incident at his Stacy Fike Lane residence.

Robert Lee Stark, 34, and Essie Darlene Stark, 21, were each deemed not guilty of second degree assault charges stemming from related cases.

Eric Scott Aronhalt, 25, Oakland, was deemed not guilty of a charge of second degree assault.

DWIs/DUIs

Charles Edward Roberts, 29, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, a $255 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, one year of unsupervised probation, and 40 hours of community service.

Jonathan David Farmer, 23, Oakland, and Nathaniel Edward Passman, 39, Grantsville, both pleaded guilty to DUI, and each was handed a PBJ, a $200 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, one year of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service.

Proposes Hike

among the states now, and in 1993 it was ranked eighth, Maryland State Teachers Association executive director Betsy Moyer said.

The state's ranking has worsened in recent years because Maryland schools have used funds to hire new teachers, instead of raising salaries, Moyer said.

With the state boasting a $940 million budget surplus, Glendening, a former University of Maryland professor, set aside "big bucks" for education.

Last month the governor earmarked $24.3 million in his operating budget for teacher recruitment and retention programs.

Senate President Thomas V. "Mike" Miller Jr., D-Prince George's, and House Speaker Casper Taylor, D-Allegany, along with many other delegates and senators, praised the newest proposal, dubbed the "Governor's Challenge."

"We are indeed putting our money where our mouth is," Taylor said. "What's happening in the classroom is of vital importance to our future. This is a very, very important step forward."

Superintendent Reacts To Teacher Pay Increase Plan

In his initial response to the governor's proposal for a statewide 10 percent teacher salary increase, Dr. Wendell Teets, Garrett County school superintendent, noted his gratitude for the action, but concern for the potential impact on Garrett County. "We're glad to see the governor's support for salary increases and that he is offering the 1 percent and the enhancement money. We're grateful, but it's not enough," Teets said.

Currently, Garrett County offers teachers some of the lowest salaries in the state. "We need to be able to meet the 4 percent increase in order to remain competitive. If we don't and the other counties do, we will drop behind another 4-5 percent," Teets said.

He explained that other jurisdictions in the state, from Washington County east, will probably be able to meet their 4 percent of the increase more easily than Garrett County will. "This will be putting a strain on local funding. We have looked over our budget," Teets stated.

The governor's proposal still faces action by the state legislature. "During the course of the legislative session it might be changed, but from talking with Del. George Edwards we feel confident that the funding itself looks solid. It would be far easier for us if our match would be lowered — even to 3 percent," he said.

Teets said that the county school system has attracted some very good teachers even though the salary level is the third lowest in the state. "Some come here for the quality of life. But if we drop 5 percent behind each year, it will become more and more difficult to find the competent teachers we want here. We need to find the funding to match this salary increase. It is critical," Teets concluded.

safety feature that will be installed with the system. "We are going to be putting in a fluoride analyzer. It is a key component to the system, in that it constantly monitors the level of fluoride level and will shut down if too much fluoride gets into the water," he said.

Once the official letter of approval from Loch Lynn's mayor Charles Tressler is received in Petrella's office, the grant process will begin. "We will move as quickly as possible. We hope that the weather cooperates," he concluded.

der's Meat Market.

Wilt was also charged with possession of a stolen dealer's tag that was taken from a West Virginia car dealer, as well as possession of marijuana, drug paraphernalia, and Ketamine (a prescription cat tranquilizer).

Was Hired As Financial VP For Hospital

Donald Battista, president and CEO at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, has announced that Gregory J. Was, CPA, MBA, has been hired as the hospital's vice president of financial services.

Was comes to Garrett County from the Buffalo, N.Y., area. In addition to his being a certified public accountant and earning a master of business administration degree, his career includes experience as a CFO and controller at several New York hospitals. He has also worked as a senior accountant in a public accounting firm and was a billing/audit supervisor for Blue Cross of Western New York.

Was is a past president of the Western New York Chapter of the Healthcare Financial Management Association (HFMA) and is a certified NYS emergency medical technician (EMT) and Red Cross CPR instructor. His personal interests include ham radio, hunting, and fishing. He, his wife Pat, and their two daughters, Meghan and Colleen, will reside in the Deep Creek Lake area.

"I believe Greg Was will be an excellent addition to the hospital staff, and he is excited about living and working in Garrett County," commented Battista.

BOE Reviews ECAP Criteria, School Improvement Plans

The selection criteria for the Early College Admissions Program was reviewed by the Garrett County Board of Education during its Tuesday meeting. In addition, principals from two elementary schools presented their cooperatively developed school improvement plan.

ECAP Criteria

Martin Green, director of secondary education, presented to the board a list of 10 criteria to be used as guidelines for selecting students for ECAP. Those who qualify for the program attend college classes prior to completing high school and earn college credits that will also be applied toward high school graduation requirements.

Green explained that the standard for acceptance has never been clearly defined. "There is no policy or procedure that defines the criteria. It only states that grades and attendance will be considered. Principals have tried to set up some guidelines to work from," said Green, former principal of Northern High School.

Until about two years ago, it was only the top 2% of students who applied, but that trend has changed, Green noted. Among the criteria that were presented to the board is the stipulation that students have a cumulative average of at least 85% in core classes. Previously the guidelines suggested that the cumulative average calculation be based on all courses.

The suggested criteria for the SAT score reviewed by the board Tuesday would go from 1,000 to 1,100. Green explained that 1,100 is the required SAT score for students entering certain colleges without high school diplomas.

Stephanie Forman, the student representative to the BOE, commented on the ECAP program. "I think it would good to publicize the program more so that students know about this as an option," she stated.

Several board members suggested that the explanation of ECAP be included in the course description booklets that are distributed to students.

School Improvement Plans

School improvement plans (SIPs) were presented to the board by Keith Harvey, principal of Crellin Elementary School, and Sheila Miller, principal of Kitzmiller Elementary School.

"We are the last two small feeder schools to Southern Middle School," Harvey said, explaining that they have combined resources where available and worked together to help each other. "We began with a grant three years ago that allowed our two schools to get the technology to inter-

In Loving Memory of
Paul J. Merrill

One year ago on Feb. 6, 1999 my father went to be with the Lord. He has been greatly missed but I know that he is no longer suffering. My father was one who knew what it was to be a Christian and serve the Lord even up until the end. He was a man who would help anyone, but yet let them know that if they would give their heart to the Lord, He would be there in the bad times and in the good times. All you have to do is ask him to come into your heart and He will forgive you no matter what you have done. I will always cherish the moments we had with him and will rejoice on the day that we will be with him in Heaven.

Nothing's More Important...

A 10 percent pay hike for all Maryland school teachers has been proposed by Governor Glendening in a supplemental budget that was released Tuesday. At first glance, it seems like an excellent step toward treating our teachers as the true professionals most of them are, and recognizing their extreme importance to the very future of our society. However, the details of the proposal rapidly squelch most of the excitement since the onus to provide most of the pay increase will fall upon the individual counties.

The governor is challenging county governments to provide a 4 percent salary increase in each of the next two school years. Those that do so will then be rewarded with the extra 1 percent per year, making a total of 10 percent over two years.

The proposal does have a set-aside enhancement fund to help poorer counties meet the 4 percent trigger, but even with that, there is a huge question as to whether or not it would be enough for the Garrett County commissioners to even consider providing enough additional money to our board of education for that purpose.

For some counties, Garrett in particular, the governor's well-intended proposal could dramatically backfire. If, for example, most of the counties meet the 4 percent challenge, but Garrett does not, it will be a huge step backward for our teachers, whose salary levels will take another big drop when compared to those of most other counties. Ultimately it would affect teacher quality in Garrett County, as the better teachers would be drawn elsewhere. Quality of life here on the mountaintop is a significant drawing card, but it can be played only so many times.

We sincerely hope that, if the governor's proposal receives the blessing of the legislature, the Garrett County commissioners will take a serious look at the numbers and try hard to meet his challenge. We know that budgeting is tough and the tax dollars are limited, but we reiterate that nothing in our county, including tourism and economic development, is more important than the quality of our children's education.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

We are writing to express our state of confusion toward adding fluoride to the water in Mtn. Lake Park.

First, this will most likely put an extra charge on our already elevated water and sewer bills. As we know, in the future, this will probably allow for additional service charges.

Secondly, we feel fluoride should be available in pill form to those who wish to use it. We do not believe it should be put in the water and forced on us. This is another example of socialism slowly sneaking in on us. We believe fluoride is an unnatural chemical that could have toxic ramifications.

On February 2, 2000, the Cumberland Times-News had an article by Dr. Harry Goodman supporting fluoridation. He stated fluoridated water is "totally safe." He also claimed that "fluoride is a natural element" that is found in water. We are totally confused.

We logged on to the Preventive Dental Health Association web site (one of many web sites), and found "fluoride is a toxic waste by-product of phosphate fertilizer production and aluminum manufacturing." They also indicate that "these companies have found it cheaper to support 'scientific research' into the benefits of consuming hazardous waste and sell it to the cities as a health product rather than to dispose of these materials properly."

So, what is the truth? Is it natural and safe or is it a hazardous toxin? There obviously are two sides to this issue, and from our reading, we believe it is a poison that should not be a mandatory water supplement. If both sides of this issue have been presented to our dignitaries, what has influenced their decision? Is it politics and money? If so, we are a society which has been conditioned or handfed bogus information.

We have various ways of preventing tooth decay, some examples being fluoridated toothpaste, fluoridated mouthwash, dental hygiene and education in our public schools, fluoride treatment at the dentist's office, dental sealants, and many more. With proper disciplined coaching at home, such as diet, hygiene, a toothbrush, and 6-month dental checkups, we should be able to fight tooth decay without ingesting some chemical that could adversely affect other parts of our body.

Please allow us all the choice. Since there seems to be two sides to this issue, grant us two options — that being providing it in pill form to those who volunteer to use it and not forcing it on those who do not wish to ingest it.

Sincerely,
Mike and Cindy Carr

To the Editor:

Fluoride, unlike chlorine which kills germs to prevent disease, is an unproven poisonous medicine whose sole purpose is to prevent a few cavities in children's teeth. To compel those who don't have their natural teeth or are allergic to ingest it is an adoption of the atheist communist philosophy of sacrificing some for the good of many. It is therefore a rejection of an American's personal freedom to choose what medicine to take and breaches the private doctor/patient relationship as to the ministering of medicine quantitatively.

The deceived majority who favor mass fluoridation are insensitive to others and would be quick to protest if aspirin or other medicines which are recommended by physicians for those over 50 years of age were added to their drinking water. The decades of bickering on this matter could have been eliminated by having soft drink and bottled water companies add a profitable fluoridated by-product along with their existing products rather than infringe on the rights of others.

The Great Deceiver/Destroyer is alive and well in Communist America.

Respectfully,
Bob Groves
Loch Lynn

To the Editor:

I publicly applaud the recent efforts of the mayors and town councils of Mountain Lake Park and Loch Lynn to rationally weigh the evidence for community water fluoridation. Having considered that evidence, they wisely chose to place their trust in our local, state, national, and international health care professionals. Hopefully, the surrounding unfluoridated communities of Garrett and Allegany counties will follow their example in the near future.

Sincerely,
Albert W. Getty, D.D.S.

To the Editor:

Now we're cooking! On Saturday, Jan. 29, the G.C. Chamber of Commerce sponsored a live radio show that was broadcast from the Wisp ski area to Baltimore. Rouse and company from station WQSR (the most popular morning radio show in Baltimore) did the honors. Everyone had a great time, and I am sure that this event will go a long way toward bringing business to the county. Hopefully, the chamber will continue to take more positive action like this instead of the negative things that they have been doing, such as promoting county-wide zoning and superhighways.

Selling the county and not selling it out is something that the people who live here can support enthusiastically. If the chamber would get behind the people and help them stop the invasive actions of state and federal government who want to build the shortcut for traffic through this beautiful county, now that would really be something!

Keep up the good work and let's see more of the same.

George Falter Jr.
McHenry

P.S. Keeping my fingers crossed that more positive actions continue.

To the Editor:

I want to commend Jeffrey Murphy for the letter to the Garrett County Board of Commissioners.

I think it is time the people of Garrett County know what is going on. Why pay someone else to do a job that is already being paid for by GBI?

Deputy Murphy is right. The Garrett County Commissioners have an ongoing conflict with the Sheriff's Office, and why? we would like to know. They should be ashamed that Garrett County's Sheriff's Office is the lowest paid in the state.

I would like to know, too. Just what did you accomplish by wasting $4,000 of the taxpayers money? We have at least two commissioners in there who should not have been in there in the first place, and I know of a lot of people that will agree.

Now, as for you, Mr. Tasker, do you think you can just waltz in there and become a deputy just because you think you can? Well, I have news for you, too. It doesn't work that way. Do you realize that it takes a lot of training and schooling to become a deputy? I don't think so, and as far as having a car to take any time on or off duty, you are wrong there, too. When they decide that they don't have a car to take if they get a call when they are off duty, then whoever decides that will come and pick them up and take them to get a car. There won't be any vehicle leave this driveway.

You say they knew what the salary was when they took the job of deputy. I am sure they didn't think it would be the S.O.S. after 20 to 25 years. Don't try to tell me anything about the Garrett County Sheriff's Office because I will tell you, you don't know what you are talking about, and the commissioners had better get over this vendetta they have against them. There will be another election one of these days.

You stated your opinion, and now I am stating mine.

Thank you.

Mrs. W.G. Gnegy

To the Editor:

In your January 27 editorial, you discussed a "crisis situation" involving a child on a day when state offices were closed due to snow. Your allegation that "the professional intervention that was desperately needed for this child was simply unavailable" is not accurate. The general public and all professionals who work with children should know how to access Child Protective Services when a crisis occurs during a blizzard or on a weekend. I am writing to inform your readers about what to do in any after-hours situation that involves a suspected case of child abuse or neglect or elder abuse in Garrett County.

At any time day or night, rain, sleet, or snow, persons who have knowledge of a crisis — especially a crisis involving the safety or well-being of a child — may call 911 and ask for the Child Protective Services worker who is on-call. This is what will happen next: 1) The 911 operator will page the DSS worker on-call, 2) the DSS worker will call you back and take your report, 3) the DSS worker will then take any necessary action to ensure the immediate safety of the child.

After the caller makes a report in good faith it is the responsibility of the child protective services worker — not the caller — to determine if a crisis exists and whether or not to take immediate action OR to follow up on the report during regular office hours. Generally, the caller will not be informed of the disposition of their report, unless they are the parent or guardian of that child or work with the child in a professional capacity (teacher, counselor, etc.). If the report is investigated and a case is opened, the caller will simply receive a letter stating that a case has been opened.

When one has "reason to believe" that a vulnerable adult is being abused, neglected, or exploited, follow a similar procedure for emergency, after-hours crisis situations. Dial 911 and ask for the Adult Protective Services worker on call.

I will share the following example of how this system works. I was talking with my former mother-in-law on the phone one Sunday several years ago, and she informed me that her other son's step-child had been taken to another relative "out of state" due to a spanking from her son that had resulted in severe bruising. I immediately called information and got the

PLANNING THE Y2K GARDEN

Fresh, sliced tomatoes surely do taste good on a sandwich. Is it bragging to say that I am still enjoying tomatoes from my garden? I don't have a green house and I don't know anything about hydroponic gardening. I do have a cardboard box and newspapers.

Remember that first freeze back in late October or early November when I was rushing around bringing in the last vegetables from the garden? One of my tasks was to wrap the best of the green tomatoes in newspaper, put them in a cardboard box, and then enjoy them at leisure.

No, they aren't as good as summertime tomatoes, but they are just as good as the expensive tomatoes at the grocery store. Those grocery store tomatoes were grown in California or Florida, perhaps, but more likely in Central America where there are no laws against using DDT. I know all about the tomatoes I am eating because I grew them.

February is a good time to plan the garden. One reason for planning now is to be able to ask, "What do I want to be eating fresh from my garden this time next year?" By planting winter hardy crops, crops that only require passive storage, and by the use of simple season extenders, it is possible to eat from the garden all year-round.

One thing I am really missing this winter is Red Russian kale. Planting it was one of those late summer jobs I just did not get to. In years past I have gone to the garden and shoveled snow off the kale, brought it indoors frozen solid, in order to eat candy-sweet greens a little while later. When spring arrives, the kale sends up fresh, tender shoots, which make wonderful eating again, the first produce of the new year.

Where do the seeds come from for all this food which tides me over the winter? The committed gardener ought to have four different kinds of sources for seed. 1) We should buy locally, and we ought to encourage the local seed sources to purchase seed from small seed producers. 2) We should support small seed companies through mail orders. 3) We ought to be saving our own seed. 4) We should be swapping seed with other seed savers.

Seed Savers' Exchange has promoted the third and fourth ways of acquiring seed for a generation now. Over the past few years they have also made serious inroads into the mail order business. They have a special niche, because at the Heirloom Farm in Iowa they grow out hundreds of old, open-pollinated varieties every year.

From their experience they are now offering some of the best of those varieties on a commercial basis. Sellers of seed should be interested in this new project because SSE is also offering their seed at wholesale prices. Their catalog has 36 varieties of lettuce and 54 varieties of tomatoes, just as examples of how splendid their offerings are.

A small commercial seed firm I like is Fox Hollow Seed Company. They run a bare-bones operation, and put all their emphasis on the seeds in the packet they sell. The black and white catalog is easy to use with accurate and helpful descriptions. Two of my favorite specialty tomatoes come from there, the Burgess Stuffing and the Long Keeper.

For value, Fox Hollow is hard to beat. I haven't seen the 2000 catalog yet, but last year they had lots and lots of packets for less than a dollar. Because they keep overhead to the barest level, owner John Van Sicklin asks that you send him a dollar bill when requesting a catalog (P.O. Box 148, McGrann, PA 16236-0148). It is an investment I recommend.

When the snow flies, delight is to be found in seed catalogs. Good planning now can lead to delight for the next 12 months in gardening and — need I say — in eating.

MY AUNT AND UNCLE'S VALENTINE STORY

by David Foster

In 1943, 29-year-old Martha Schuchart, who had grown up on a Missouri dairy farm and taught in a one-room country schoolhouse for 11 years, was stationed in Des Moines, Iowa, as a 3rd officer in the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps (WAAC). She received orders for training at the Chemical Warfare School at Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland, where one of her instructors was 25-year-old Abner Sachs, an Army officer from New York City.

Martha's roommate at Edgewood was another WAAC trainee named Jenny, who told Martha that Abner Sachs was "one of the best looking men I've ever seen," adding in no uncertain terms that she was "setting her hat to marry him." Martha's reply was "You can have him, because he's just an old fuddy-duddy — he's always so serious and never jokes around. When our group goes out for some fun he never comes along because 'we're too childish.'"

Jenny, however, held her course, and before the training was completed Abner invited her to join him for a visit with his family in Manhattan. Martha was recruited as chaperon for the trip, and was at the hotel when Jenny burst into the room displaying an engagement ring that Abner had given her during a romantic carriage ride through Central Park. Martha's reaction held to her course, too; "Well, good for you."

Jenny and Abner were married soon thereafter, and Martha returned to her regular assignment in Des Moines upon completing the Edgewood school. She never saw Jenny or Abner again, on occasion keeping in touch with Jenny through infrequent cards.

In December of 1961, now a lieutenant colonel stationed in Ethiopia, Martha learned that Jenny was fighting a brain tumor back in the States. Shortly afterwards she received a brief note from Abner telling her that Jenny had died. Martha sent a short condolence note and did not expect to have contact with Abner again.

In 1964, while assigned to Army Intelligence Headquarters at Arlington Hall Station, Va., four miles from the Pentagon, Martha received a phone call at her desk from lieutenant colonel Abner Sachs, who invited her "up to his office for a cup of coffee." Martha replied that she just couldn't walk down the hall as she was a distance away. Abner, who had just been transferred to the Washington area from Pittsburgh, had been thumbing through the officers' roster when he came upon Martha's name and didn't realize they weren't in the same building.

At the conclusion of their brief phone conversation of "small talk and remincising," Abner invited her along to Baltimore the next Sunday to visit his brother's family. She had previous plans, so he offered several other days, each of which was already booked on Martha's calendar. Finally he said, "Well, here's my number, when you're not busy give me a call."

As Martha hung up the phone, her sergeant looked over from his desk and asked, "Colonel Schuchart, what was that about?" Holding true to her course, Martha told him the story of her "old fuddy-duddy instructor" of 1943. A month went by, and the sergeant asked Martha if she had called the "fuddy-duddy" back. She hadn't, and he said, "Oh, go on, call him up; at least be nice."

Martha relented, and as a result of her call, Abner invited her to dine at his apartment. She hesitated "because in those days women didn't do that." Abner cajoled by telling her that "the girls would be happy to meet you." (Jenny and Abner had adopted two daughters who were living with the widower.)

Martha had a "rather enjoyable" evening over a dinner prepared by the girls, and the next evening Abner took all of them to see Johnny Mathis perform at the Carter Barron Amphitheater across the river in Washington, D.C. From then on he "wanted to go out all the time."

One year later Abner popped the question, and Martha said "yes." When she informed her 80-year-old father, who was still milking cows on the family farm back in Missouri, he was alarmed. Martha had always been the most independent of his nine children, and the last unmarried one, so he feared someone might be taking advantage of her. He left his cows for the first time and drove 200 miles to St. Louis for his first airplane ride to fly out to Washington, D.C. His mission? — To "check this fellow out" and make sure his 50-year-old daughter "wasn't making a mistake."

After having a long private conversation alone with Abner, which included talk of their shared German heritage and fondness for good beer, Martha's father pronounced that the marriage could proceed. "I feel sorry for you," he informed Abner at that time, "because she can't even cook."

Martha and Abner were married on July 3, 1965, and the two have traveled the world together constantly since then, in between helping her sister Stella and her husband Bill raise their six children. She is now 86 and he is 82, and they continue to travel, and attend plays, concerts, and operas, and all types of cultural events in our nation's capital and other cities around the world.

Now as then, the odd turns of events that brought their two lives together continue to provide Martha and Abner and their family members with much amusement. She recalls that on their initial dinner date at his apartment, she asked him how he come to remember her. His reply? "I always remembered the very smart students and the very dumb ones, and the very pretty students and the very ugly ones — take your pick."

However, Martha, known for always getting the last word, has her own take on the story. "Today when someone asks me 'Why did you wait so long to get married?' I tell them, 'We met in 1943, and it took over 20 years for him to get up the nerve to propose!"

Crawford Memorial Scholarship Honors Late Civic Volunteer

The endowment of the Bill Crawford Memorial Scholarship for the 2000-2001 academic year at Garrett Community College was announced this week by the Garrett Community College Foundation Inc. "We were honored to be selected by the family to receive charitable contributions in memory of William E. 'Bill' Crawford Junior, the late husband of GCC director of enrollment development Joan B. Crawford," said Ann M. Smith, GCCF president. "We are very pleased to have this annual scholarship. We certainly want to extend our sincere appreciation to the Crawford family."

Crawford was a full-time resident of Garrett County for 28 years, during which he served four terms as a member and officer of the Republican State Central Committee. He was also an active member of the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club, serving in all offices and as zone chairman and regional vice chairman. He was honored as Lion of the Year in 1994, and was named Republican of the Year in 1999.

Crawford was also a member of the Proctor Kildow Post of the American Legion, the Ali Ghan Shrine, the Oakland Elks, and the Garrett County Board of Realtors. He was a sales associate with the Goodfellow Agency, A&A Realty, and Mountaineer Log and Siding. A former naval officer, he was a member of the U.S. Naval Institute, the LST Association, and the Naval Memorial.

Other members of the Crawford family are two daughters, the Honorable Susan J. Crawford, chief judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces, and Dr. Mikal Crawford, associate professor of psychology at Frostburg State University.

The Crawford Memorial scholarship is restricted to a resident of Garrett County. The scholarship recipient must maintain a college semester average of at least a B. This scholarship is intended for an individual who has demonstrated leadership qualities or interest in high school and/or the community in the areas of community and public service and/or journalism. The award amount for the academic year is $500.

The scholarship is presented in the annual GCCF scholarship booklet, a publication that provides information about GCCF scholarships offered for GCC's 2000-2001 academic year. The booklet is available from the GCC Financial Aid Office, and Northern and Southern High School students may contact their guidance office for a copy. Reference copies of the scholarship booklet are available at all branches of the Ruth Enlow Library system in Garrett County as well as the GCC Library.

The scholarship application is included in the scholarship booklet, and there is no fee to apply. The application deadline is March 1, 2000, for the 2000-2001 academic year.

"The Garrett Community College Foundation wants to encourage all interested individuals to apply for these scholarships for the next academic year at Garrett Community College," stated Smith.

GCNet Launches Worldwide Local Dial-Up Service

GCNet, a Garrett County Internet service provider, has unveiled a new worldwide local dial-up service that allows members to access their accounts from over 2,400 places in the United States, Canada, Mexico, and Australia. Any GCNet members wishing to access their account may now do so through the use of a local number in a participating city without having to pay fees to join a different Internet service provider in another area.

A member planning to travel out of the local area can check the GCNet web site for a local dial-in number in the city he or she plans to visit. From that city the member can enter the phone number local for that location and log on to his or her actual GCNet e-mail account.

Finalized last week, the dial-up service agreement is an effort to make travel easier for Internet users, according to Rick Nichols, GCNet systems engineer. "This is a win/win situation. GCNet is trying to make Internet access less complicated for users and at the same time give people extra benefits," Nichols commented.

For more information on the GCNet Global Community Network, interested persons may log on to the service's home page at www2.gcnet.net, or call the GCNet Helpdesk at 301-387-3048.

Two Grantsville Residents Face Burglary Charges

Investigation of an attempted burglary in Allegany County led to the arrest of three suspects, including two Grantsville residents, early Tuesday morning. The report was filed by Tfc. B. Hughes of the LaVale barrack of the Maryland State Police who responded to a burglar alarm at 2:24 a.m. at the United Energy Coal Co. on Route 936.

Hughes said he saw a red Pontiac Firebird traveling in a "suspicious" manor on Route 936 in the area of the coal company. The officer made a traffic stop for reported equipment violations on the suspect vehicle. Upon approaching the vehicle, Hughes said he noticed a ski mask and several burglary tools in the vehicle in plain view.

The vehicle was occupied by Samantha Mae Fike and Garrett Keith Barclay, both of Grantsville, and Michael Lee Shipley, Frostburg. Hughes arrested all three and charged each with second degree burglary, malicious destruction of property, and 4th degree burglary.

The foundation in its first two years of operation has already contributed some $42,000 to 17 local organizations, with grants ranging from $500 to $5,000. Members of the advisory committee are: Del. George Edwards, Oakland Mayor Asa McCain, Karen Myers, Donald Sincell, Mark Stutzman, and Dr. Wendell Teets. Patrick and Kim Conroy are the foundation trustees.

LaVale, MD: Ralph E. Pritts III, 48, of National Highway, LaVale, died Tuesday, February 1, 2000, at the University of Maryland Hospital, Baltimore, from cardiac arrest following minor surgery.

Born on November 16, 1951 in Cumberland, he was the son of Barbara (Filsinger) Pritts, Deer Park, and the late Ralph E. Pritts, Jr. He graduated from St. Peter's School, Oakland, attended Charlotte Hall Military School on scholarship where he graduated as the valedictorian with honors, and attended Carnegie-Mellon University, Pittsburgh, PA, studying electrical engineering for two years. He transferred to and graduated from the University of Maryland with a degree in computer science.

When he worked for Logicon in Virginia in the 1970s, one computer filled an entire room. He relocated to San Antonio, TX, the city he loved, where he worked for Data Point until he started his own consulting company.

A heart attack and stroke disabled him and he moved back to Maryland to be closer to his family. While living in Cumberland the last few years, he had been involved with Archway Station and was on the board of directors.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by five brothers, Philip Pritts and wife Sylvia, Mountain Lake Park, Christopher Pritts, Dearborn, MI, Curtis Pritts, Hagerstown, Jonathan Pritts, Oakland, and Matthew Pritts and wife Jane, Roanoke, VA.

He will be sadly missed by five nieces and nephews, who enjoyed playing chess and other board games with their uncle. Ralph was very inquisitive and was an avid reader and fan of historical books, movies and documentaries. He studied the Civil War extensively and was a railroad buff. Ralph was knowledgeable about many subjects and was a most worthy opponent in games of Trival Pursuit in which he often would single-handedly defeat a team consisting of the rest of the family. He was a kind, honest and warm person with a keen sense of humor. He will be missed by many.

The body will be cremated and a memorial service will be held at a later date. The family requests that memorials take the form of contributions to the Archway Station, 408 N. Centre St., Cumberland, MD 21502 or Ruth Enlow Library of Garrett County, 6 N. Second St., Oakland, MD 21550, or a charity of choice.

The Stewart Funeral Home, Oakland, is in charge of arrangements.

Let's Get Down To Business!

This is a feature of The Republican to better acquaint our readers with various area business establishments.

Appalachian Iron

Appalachian Iron, a Garrett County-based business, offers custom ironwork through Internet and on-site sales. From the fabricating shop near Oakland, orders can be shipped anywhere in the United States.

Business owner Howard Kepple, who has 30 years of experience in fabricating and welding, is assisted by his wife Bernice in creating and marketing the ironwork.

"A major business expansion has been in the form of custom wrought iron gates and fencing for homeowners," Howard said. The decorative addition of wrought iron gates and fencing is often selected to add a desired touch of elegance or charm to one's home. Distinctive designs in ironwork have traditionally been used for this effect, Bernice noted.

"These designs — such as the Victorian designs used for the historic Oakland Train Station and Rotary Park — are also popular with towns and municipalities, organizations doing graveyard restorations, and for parks and recreation areas," she explained.

Adding to the line of outdoor products, Howard also manufactures park benches in all sizes for use in towns such as Oakland. "They are also suited for use on patios and in home garden settings," Howard said. This outdoor line also includes wrought iron trash can holders and bike racks, he added.

The interior decor of one's home may also be enhanced by the influence of iron, either crafted into designer racks for firewood or into the graceful lines of a wine rack, available through Appalachian Iron.

"We also offer a range of western decor items, which are created from horseshoes and can add a special touch to reflect a person's lifestyle or interests," Bernice said. She also pointed out that many of their orders are for gift items. "Our customers find that we have a unique product that can be customized for the person who is going to receive the gift," she added.

Looking to future, Howard said he would like to see his business grow so that he could provide employment opportunities to other local residents.

To contact Appalachian Iron, persons may call 301-387-9312, visit the web site at www.appalachianiron.com, or send e-mail to appiron@mail2.gcnet.net.

Instrumental in the station's renovation is Oakland mayor Asa McCain, pictured trying out the town's new bench. Appalachian Iron can be reached be calling 301-387-9312.

Eyer Couple Celebrates 40th

David and Irene Eyer, Deep Creek Lake and Key West, Fla., recently celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary. The Eyers were united in marriage by the Rev. Dr. Frank Ruth at the Zion Blue Mountain Church, Strausstown, Pa., on January 2, 1960.

Irene is the daughter of Alvin and Lillian Moyer Riegel of Shartlesville, Pa., and Hamburg, Pa., respectively. She is a 1958 graduate of Hamburg High School and received a B.A. degree in visual arts management from Seton Hill College, Greensburg, Pa., in 1995.

David is the son of the late John William and Pauline Bear Eyer. He is a 1956 graduate of Hamburg High School. He earned a B.S. degree in mining engineering from Lehigh University in 1960 and an M.S. degree in mining engineering from West Virginia University in 1967. He retired from Consolidation Coal Company, Pittsburgh, in 1995 after 35 years of service in operations and engineering positions. He is a consultant to the mining industry.

They are the parents of five children: Michele of Valley Grove, W.Va.; Kathryn, wife of Scott Lee of Orlando, Fla.; Kristine of Pittsburgh; Douglas of Franklin Park, N.J.; and Michael, a senior at Stetson University, DeLand, Fla. Three of the children are engineers by profession.

David and Irene celebrated their anniversary on a cruise in the eastern Caribbean from St. Kitts to Grenada on the Yorktown Clipper.

David is a commissioner of the Engineering Accreditation Commission (EAC) of the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology (ABET). He serves on the board of trustees for the Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre, Garrett County Arts Council, Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, and Music at Penn Alps, and on the advisory board for the Key West Council on the Arts, Impromptu Music Series. Oakland Native To Turn 103 Feb. 11; Lifetime Spans Three Centuries

by Mary Sincell McEwen

Edith Kimmell Starkey, Harrison, Ariz., will celebrate her 103rd birthday on Friday, Feb. 11. Born in 1897 in Oakland, she is the daughter of the late John William and Agnes Kimmell. With this new year of 2000, Mrs. Starkey's lifetime has spanned three centuries.

Married at age 19, she reared three children, Velma O'Neill, with whom she resides in Arizona; Bill West of St. Petersburg, Fla.; and Harlan West of Las Vegas, Nev. Her children are now all in their 70s. Mrs. Starkey has nine grandchildren, 27 great-grandchildren, and four great-great-grandchildren.

She left Garrett County in 1924 and over the years has resided in several locations, including West Virginia, Ohio, Florida, and now Arizona. Her daughter said her mother "holds much love for her homeland."

While living in Oakland, Mrs. Starkey used one of the town's first telephones, and drove a horse and buggy on the dirt streets. During the Great Depression, she was no longer in Garrett County. At that time, she sold bus tickets on a city corner to feed her family. She earned about $3 a day.

She reports that she is in good health and doesn't have "an ache or pain." Playing cards with friends at a senior center is a favorite pastime in which she engages about once a week.

Her daughter and son plan to bring Mrs. Starkey back to Garrett County and the surrounding area for a visit this summer.

Mrs. Starkey's father, J.W. Kimmell, was a poet, writing much about his home in the Maryland mountains. After his death in 1949, Mrs. Starkey took it upon herself to compile about 25 of his poems in a bound booklet titled Memories and Moods In Verse. The poems expound on the beauty of the area, as well as the people he felt were deserving of praise. His work honors the memory of Joe and Carrie Glotfelty and Meshach and Mary Browning, both well-known couples in the early years of Oakland, and describes places such as Ryan's Glade and Swallow Falls.

Mrs. Starkey has inherited her father's penchant for writing, and has also written poetry over the years. The following is a piece she wrote in honor of her homeland:

High Up in the Alleghenys

High up in the Alleghenys
Where I spent my childhood days,
Where I watched the sun descending
In the evening's purple haze.

High up in the Alleghenys
Is the home I love so well
Where the wild crabapple blossoms
Like the daisies in the dell.

High up in the Alleghenys
Where the fairest wild flowers bloom
Where the fragrant honeysuckle
Fills the valley with perfume

High up in the Alleghenys
Where the Youghiogheny flows
Where the crystal springs are bubbling
And the rhododendron grows

High up in the Alleghenys
Where the purest water flows
Where the speckled trout lies gleaming
In the sunlight's glittering throws.

High up in the Alleghenys
Are my friends and kindred still
And I hope again to meet them
In my home among the hills.

New Book Details Rowlesburg's Past In Photos, Text

A new book, Early Times in the Rowlesburg Area: A Pictorial History, has been published by the Rowlesburg Area Historical Society (RAHS). The 176-page book features over 300 never before published photos and historical notes of the town, one of Preston County's oldest. All proceeds from sales go to benefit the RAHS.

"The book will be a keepsake for generations to come," said Mary Ellen Wiles, who worked with fellow RAHS members Joycelyn Ayersman, Lucille Grimm, and other members to compile the photos. "The Historical Society has been the recipient of hundreds of wonderful photos depicting Rowlesburg's early history and the society wanted to make them available to all. Our kids and their kids will really appreciate the historical value of this keepsake book.

"We worked hard to sell the book even before it was printed in order to help raise money," Wiles continued. "People responded with enthusiasm and allowed us to proceed with printing," which was coordinated by Terra Alta's Headline Books Inc.

Early Times in the Rowlesburg Area: A Pictorial History can be ordered for $25 plus $3.20 shipping and handling from the Rowlesburg Area Historical Society, P.O. Box 527, Rowlesburg, WV 26425, or by calling 304-454-9656. West Virginia residents must add $1.35 tax per book. Visa and Mastercard credit card orders may be placed by calling Headline Books at 800-570-5951 or 304-789-5951.

Energy Express Site Coordinator Being Recruited

Plans for two Energy Express sites in Grant County are continuing. Site proposals have been submitted to the state Extension office and applications for mentors and site coordinators are being accepted.

Energy Express is a six-week summer nutrition and reading program for students in grades 1-5. The statewide program has been held in Grant County for the past four years. Participants have improved 3½ months in reading scores during the six-week period. The children report that the program is "interesting and fun."

Each Energy Express site requires one site coordinator to supervise the program. This person should have a college degree in education or a related field and a background in reading and children's literature. Applicants will need to make an eight-week commitment to the program, set for June 12 through August 4, in addition to a three-day training session in March. Applicants should have a demonstrated commitment to community service and a belief in the strengths of children, parents, and the community. The site coordinator will supervise a team of five to eight college-age mentors who will, in turn, work with eight youth each. The coordinator needs to provide ongoing training and facilitate reflection sessions for the mentors. The coordinator will work closely with the county extension office to coordinate community involvement in the program.

The position pays $4,000 plus fringe benefits. Applications are available through the WVU Extension Office, 115½ Virginia Avenue, Petersburg, WV 26746, the Grant County Board of Education Office, or by calling 257-4688. Applications are due February 25, 2000.

Husky Matmen Win Bedford Tourney, Dual Meet Regional

It was a huge week on the wrestling mats this week for the Northern High School wrestling team, as the Huskies captured for the first time ever the team title in the prestigious Thomas Chevrolet Tournament in Bedford on Saturday, and then won the Maryland State Dual Meet Regional Tournament last night in their own gym.

There were 22 top high school teams in the Bedford event, with 21 of them from Pennsylvania and Northern being the only Maryland representative. The Huskies amassed 186.5 points and had two individual champions, while North Schuylkill finished second with 152 points and Lampeter Strasburg was third with 148. Host Bedford was eighth with 109 points, Somerset finished 16th with 73.5, Hyndman was 18th with 58.5, and Chestnut Ridge placed 20th with 44 points.

Capturing individual titles were Matt McNees in the 119-pound class and Mark Wolf in the 160-pound division. McNees, who is now 22-2 for the season, won on a 3-0 decision in his title bout, and Wolf earned a 4-2 overtime decision in his championship round.

Brandon Stein, a current Maryland state champion, tasted defeat for the first time this season, but finished second in the 135-pound class. He was edged by Scott Sutton of Penn Cambria, 12-8, in the title match.

Placing third for the Huskies were Pete Stein (103) and Ryan Brenneman (189), while Blake Huber (112), another reigning state champ, finished fifth. David Wampler (171) placed sixth and Jeremiah Guard (125), Paul Beitzel (130), Brandon Kamp (140), and Ryan Savage (275) all finished with seventh places.

"All 13 of our wrestlers won at least one match, so every one of them contributed points toward the championship," stated Northern coach Scott Stough. "I was really proud of every one of them. Pennsylvania wrestling is among the best in the country, and it is a major accomplishment for a Maryland team to win this title."

In last night's regional dual tournament, the Huskies got their biggest challenge from Urbana, but still won by a comfortable 35-22 margin. They also crushed Middletown, 66-6.

Huskies earning pins against Urbana were Pete Stein (103), Brandon Stein (135), Brandon Kamp (140), and Mark Wolf (160), while Matt McNees (119) won via technical fall. Blake Huber (112) and Keith Artice (145) were decision victors.

All of Urbana's victories were by decision or forfeit.

Recording pins against Middletown for Northern were Pete Stein, Huber, McNees, Brandon Stein, Kamp, Artice, Jeremy Layman (160), Ryan Brenneman (189), and Trey Brenneman (275). Adam Brenneman (152) won by technical fall, while Jeremiah Guard (125) and Wolf won on decisions.

The Huskies, who are 4-0 in tournaments and 12-1 in regular meets, will compete in the Maryland State Dual Championship at West Lake High School in Waldorf this Saturday. The semi-final matches will begin at noon and the finals will get under way at 6 p.m.

Southern Mat Club Finishes Third Among 48

For the fifth time this season, the Southern Mat Club youth wrestling team captured a team trophy for third place or better in tournament action. On Saturday, the team traveled to Connellsville, Pa., and competed against 48 other teams from the four-state region. The SMC finished the day in third place overall.

"These kids have a lot to be proud of," commented Coach Dave Taylor. "Each week they compete against the top 40 or 50 teams from West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Maryland and end up bringing home some impressive trophies. Five top-three finishes out of six tournaments is incredible. I couldn't be happier with what they have accomplished so far this season and I know they have only just gotten started."

Individually, three SMC wrestlers won first place trophies. Brutus Scheffel captured first place for the sixth time this season, Scott Wildesen brought home his third championship award of the year, and 5-year-old Gavin Murphy was crowned champion for the first time in his young career. Brutus Scheffel also finished in second place in a separate division.

Earning third place awards were Justin Ratliff, who won 5 of 6 bouts in a very tough division; Lex Ozias, who won 4 of 5 matches in an equally tough division; Jakob Scheffel, whose only loss was to the defending national champion; and Scott Wildesen, who won an exciting overtime bout against a wrestler who had defeated him earlier in the day. Placing fourth were Colin McCaffrey and Lex Ozias. Also competing were Daniel Carr, who won three matches, but was unable to claim a trophy, and Zach McCaffrey, Ryan Ratliff, and Nick Brant.

Three SMC wrestlers traveled to Elkins, W.Va., on Saturday also. Jeremy Gregory won all his bouts and was crowned champion. Jeff Gregory lost only one match and placed second, while Tyler Gregory won 3 of 4 individual matches to earn third place.

This weekend the team will travel to Frankfort High School in Short Gap, W.Va., on Saturday and Hedgesville, W.Va., on Sunday for more tournament action.

RAMS TOP HUSKIES AGAIN, but not by much (again). Friday night's varsity basketball contest between the Southern High Rams and Northern High Huskies went down to the wire as the Rams took a 51-48 win on the NHS floor. SHS's Bryan Panther (#33) is shown above battling Northern's Russell Lawson (#42) for the ball in a photo that captures the spirit of cross-county rivalry. From the left in the background are Huskies Greg Speicher (#10) and Rob Dozier (#50), Southern's Justin Liller (#40), and NHS's Tim Umbel (#22). Dozier scored a game-high 20 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to lead the Husky effort, while the Rams were paced by 14 points by Nathaniel Panther (#11), pictured below going up for two over Lawson's outstretched arm. SHS's Panther and Liller follow the action at the left. The 3-point Southern victory came on the heels of the previous Friday's 10-point overtime Ram win in Oakland.

Rams Hold On To Edge Huskies, Then Whip Beall

It was another barn-burner Friday night between the Southern and Northern high school boys' varsity teams, as the Rams held on for a 51-48 Western Maryland Interscholastic League victory on the Huskies' floor. It was the second close victory for the Rams against Northern in a week, as they edged the Huskies in overtime the previous Friday night.

The Rams then whipped visiting Beall on Tuesday, 58-43, in another WMIL contest to up their overall record to 13-4 and their league mark to 9-1.

The Rams led throughout most of Friday's game at Northern, but the Huskies trailed by only one point twice in the final two minutes before a pair of foul shots by Nathaniel Panther iced the win for Southern. The Rams were up by five points at the end of the first quarter (23-18) and at intermission (32-27), and were ahead by four after three quarters (42-38).

The Huskies were down by just one point with less than two minutes left when Justin Stephens pulled off what amounted to a four-point play to put Southern back up by five. He connected on one of two foul shots, missed the second one, but got his own rebound, scored, and was fouled again on the shot. He made good on his free throw to complete the four-point play.

The Huskies pulled to within one again, though, before Panther drained two foul shots in the final seconds.

Panther led the Rams in scoring with 14 points, Stephens netted 12, and Bryan Panther and Justin Liller each scored 9.

Leading the Huskies were Rob Dozier with a game-high 20 points and 11 rebounds. Greg Speicher scored 10 points and Tim Umbel finished with 9 points and 10 assists.

The Rams won the game from the foul line, as they were out-gunned in field goals by a 21-15 margin. They converted 19 of 26 attempts from the line, while Northern made good on three of four shots.

The Southern junior varsity easily won the first game, 80-22, with D.R. Parsons scoring 17 points and Ricky Reams hitting 10 for the Rams. Jeff Wilson led the Huskies with 8 points.

Panther also led the Ram varsity in its win over Beall Tuesday night, as he connected for 16 points, while Josh Bosley and Bryan Panther also reached double figures with 11 and 10, respectively.

The Rams got off to a slow start, and trailed the Mountaineers by one, 10-9, at the end of the first quarter. But they out-scored the visitors in the second stanza by a 13-6 margin to take a 22-16 halftime lead. Southern stretched that advantage to 11 points, 38-27, by the end of the third period.

Andy Deakin and Jeremy Smith were the scoring leaders for Beall (7-11 overall, 1-7 WMIL) with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

It was another easy win for the Southern junior varsity in the preliminary game, as the Rams coasted to a 66-23 victory. Mike DeWitt scored 12 points to pace Southern, while Bobby Smith netted 8 to lead the Beall jayvees.

The Rams will host Tucker County this Friday and entertain Fort Hill next Tuesday. The junior varsity match-ups will tip off at 6 p.m. and the varsity contests will get under way at 7:30.

Cody Ferguson Night Set At Southern High

It will be a special night of basketball at Southern High School on Tuesday, Feb. 22, as all proceeds from the junior varsity and varsity games between the Rams and the Preston Knights will be donated to the family of Cody Ferguson.

Ferguson, who is the son of Southern volleyball coach Sue Newton and her husband Bob, suffers from Du Chenne's muscular dystrophy. He recently had extensive surgery at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore to help ease the conditions of his disease and, in order to better care for him, it was necessary for the family to purchase a specially constructed van.

"The cost of the van is approximately $50,000," stated SHS athletic director Tom Woods, "and we would like to help this special 'Ram family' by donating all proceeds from our final regular-season game to help cover the costs associated with this van."

Woods said that all money derived from gate receipts, donations, and raffles at the game will be presented to Cody's parents. The Southern student government will also have a donation table in the gym lobby for persons who wish to make separate donations.

"Since we're playing Preston, we anticipate a very good crowd," Woods said, "so we hope to raise a substantial sum for Cody, who is a true Ram fan."

Ram Freshmen Record Three More Victories

The freshman boys' basketball team of Southern High School continued to win this past week, as Coach Jon Hegeman's squad recorded victories over Allegany, 64-23, last Wednesday in Oakland, at Petersburg, 45-43, on Friday, and at home against Pendleton, 57-34, on Monday. Dennis Tressler also continued to pace the Rams in scoring, as he amassed a total of 75 points for the three-game series, which upped the Rams' record to 11-3.

Tressler netted 23 points, and also had a game-high 11 rebounds, in the easy win over Allegany last week, while Joe Davis and Brent Niner each chipped in with 8 points. Matt Stephens had 5 steals. Garrett Snyder led Alco in scoring with 5 points.

"Our defense was very good," Hegeman stated. "We caused a lot of turnovers and bad shots on their part."

Tressler finished with 22 points and Stephens netted 10 in the close win over Petersburg. Tressler again pulled down 11 rebounds and Stephens had 5 steals.

The Rams trailed most of the second half, but took the lead for good with 1:45 to play in the fourth quarter.

Todd Heare scored 13 to lead the Vikings.

"This was a big win for us," Hegeman said. "Petersburg is the best team on our schedule, and we lost to them by 27 points in our home opener.

"The second-half play by Joe Davis is what won it for us," the coach continued, "and Matt Stephens' outstanding defense limited their best shooter to just two field goals."

Tressler ripped the nets for 30 points against Pendleton, with Stephens scoring 7, and A.J. Bender and Joe Davis each dishing out 5 assists. Jake Owens led Pendleton with 10 points.

"Dennis just dominated the game on the offensive end," Hegeman said. "But without the great passing by A.J., Joe Davis, Jay Tressler, Adam Cooper, Matt Stephens, and David Steyer, Dennis would not have such great scoring games. Brent Niner, Jay, and Adam came off the bench and played very well in the second quarter.

"This win was over another team that had beaten us earlier in the year," Hegeman added, "so we are certainly showing signs of improvement and should be a very good team by the end of the season."

Southern will play two more homes games this week, tonight against Fort Hill (7 p.m.) and Saturday vs. Keyser (2 p.m.).

Huskies Edged Again By Rams, But Defeat Wildcats

The boys' varsity of Northern High School came close, for the second week in a row, to defeating cross-county rival Southern last Friday night, but the Rams held on for a 51-48 victory (see separate story). However, the Huskies bounced back Tuesday night to record a Western Maryland Interscholastic League win over host Westmar, 59-50. The split left the Huskies with a 12-6 overall record and a 5-5 mark in the WMIL.

The Huskies dominated the first half of play, building a 21-9 advantage by the end of the first quarter and a 33-15 lead by halftime. The Wildcats regrouped in the locker room, however, and came back to out-score the Huskies in the third stanza by a 20-8 margin, as Northern led 41-35 going into the final period. The Huskies held the Wildcats at arm's length the rest of the way.

Josh Resh and Rob Dozier paced the Huskies in scoring with 19 and 17 points, respectively, while Josh Glass hit a game-high 20 points and grabbed nine rebounds for Westmar. David Ziler also reached double figures with 10 points.

The Northern junior varsity was topped in the first game, 68-32, as Jason Wampler, Sid Bittinger, and Rich Dellinger led the Wildcats with 14, 11, and 10 points, respectively. Jensen Long paced the Huskies with 13 points.

Coach Paul Edwards and the Huskies will return to action this evening at Turkeyfoot and will play at Bishop Walsh next Tuesday.

Huskies Victors Over Aggies, Beall, Savage; Win Streak Stands At Four

Northern High School girls' varsity basketball team won each of its three contests last week to improve its record to 12-7 overall. The Huskies downed Flintstone by a 70-39 margin and beat Beall by a 64-52 score, before soundly defeating Mt. Savage last night, 61-21.

Thursday night at Northern the Huskies used a 22-2 third quarter run to run away from the Aggies after mounting leads of 10-8 after the first quarter and 27-20 at the half. NHS tallied a 43-19 second half advantage on its way to victory.

Heather Nugent scored 20 points to pace the Huskies while dishing out 8 assists. Amanda Frantz had 14 points and 9 rebounds, Heidi Frazee scored 12 points and stole the ball 7 times, Kristin Lander added 10 points, and Bridget Frazee had a game-high 10 rebounds. Lacey McCusker's 18 points paced Flintstone's scorers.

Nugent hit for another 20-point tally Monday night at Beall in a Husky win that got off to a sluggish start. NHS was down 17-9 after one quarter, but rebounded to take a 30-26 halftime lead and a 45-43 third quarter advantage. Frantz and Heidi Frazee recorded 17 points and 12 rebounds each. Nugent added 6 steals. Cheryl Simmons' 14 points led the Mountaineers.

Northern also won the junior varsity contest with Beall, but the score was unavailable.

Last night at Mt. Savage the Huskies dominated their winless opponents to take a 40-point win in fashion similar to last month's 58-point NHS drubbing of the Indians. NHS, which was up by a 13-4 margin after one quarter, held a 25-7 halftime lead and a 41-11 advantage at the opening of the final quarter.

Frazee's game-high 23 points paced the Huskies, while Nugent, Lander, and Frantz added 10 points each. Bridget Frazee took down 9 rebounds and Heidi Frazee dished out 7 assists. Four Mt. Savage scorers tallied 4 points apiece.

The junior varsity contest resulted in a 47-12 Northern win as Jolene Brenneman scored 10 points to lead the Huskies to victory.

The Huskies are idle until this coming Thursday, Feb. 17, when they host the Spartans of Bishop Walsh.

thanks all who made his life full of love, peace, and happiness. Most importantly, we thank our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ for preparing him a home in Heaven.

A heart-felt thanks to Frank Custer for his superior care in every aspect of the funeral, to Rich Mattingly, Bev Thrasher, Rick Gorden, Clara Graham, Johathan Wildesen, and Sam Moon for help above and beyond the call.

We are fortunate to have the high quality of health care in our area and we appreciated the compassionate efforts of Dr. Dan Miller, Dr. Mark Domenick, Dr. Robert Goralski, Dr. David Evans, the ICU staff, the ER staff and the Lab for years of tests. All the personnel at Garrett County Memorial Hospital are the greatest.

The day of the funeral was made easier thanks to the comforting words of Rev. Arthur Evans and Rev. Richard Walker, to Dave Martin's song, Cliff DeWitt's piano accompanying, Rev. Harry Stewart's singing, Alice Stewart's piano, and Sheila Jeffries' piano prelude and postlude.

We appreciate the TLC of pallbearers Don Sell, Ralph Keefer, Dr. Dan Miller, Dick Stuck, Charlie Kitzmiller, Dick Kitzmiller, Melvin Spiker, Tom Beeghley, and Jim Rodeheaver.

Thanks to Blue, Mark, and Al Marucci for the beauty of Garrett County Memorial Gardens and to the men and women of all the veterans' organizations who provided the military honors.

Not only did the members of the Oakland Church of the Nazarene provide a delicious meal following the funeral, but they also provided a great time of fellowship.

To all our friends who stood in line for so long, to those who tried to stop by and couldn't, for the hundreds of cards, phone calls, flowers and memorials, we can't say in words what you all mean to us. Thanks for your prayers, and keep us in them always.

Jennie, Brad, Patsy, and Amanda

Lakers Top Anne Arundel, Frederick; Edged By Dundalk

Despite sustaining their fourth loss of the season, it was another impressive week on the basketball court for the Garrett Community College men's team, as the Lakers defeated visiting Anne Arundel Community College on Saturday, 84-67; were edged by nationally ranked Dundalk CC on Monday, 78-75, also at McHenry; and then topped visiting Frederick CC last night, 91-86.

All were Maryland JUCO contests, with Dundalk ranked #3 in the nation in Division II standings. The Lakers are 19-4 overall and 12-3 in the conference.

Against Anne Arundel on Saturday, the Lakers trailed throughout much of the first half, but used a 9-0 run to open the second half to pull away after finally taking the lead for the first time in the game with 4:26 left before halftime. The GCC defensive effort was also key to the win, as the Lakers forced 26 turnovers and had 19 steals. Five consecutive take-aways in the second half resulted in 10 unanswered points.

Charles Somerville had a double-double for the Lakers, as he finished with 16 points and 13 rebounds. Dexter Levi also hit 16 points and blocked three shots, while Carlos Jones netted 11 points and Corin Turner dished out six assists.

The Lakers held a 31-25 advantage at halftime and led by as many as 22 (71-49) with about five minutes left in the contest.

John Bentz had a game-high 23 points and 11 rebounds for Anne Arundel, Thomas Williams scored 15 points, and Brandon Queen finished with 11. Ellis Champion was credited with six assists.

"Fortunately our defense helped us score some points when we were playing poorly offensively," stated GCC coach Dennis Gibson.

Charles Somerville had his most outstanding individual performance of the season Monday night in a losing effort to defending JUCO champion Dundalk CC, as he recorded 26 points and 15 rebounds. Levi also had a double-double night with 16 points and 13 rebounds, and Carlos Jones scored 16 as well.

The Lakers were on fire in the early minutes of the game, and jumped out to a 15-5 lead in the first three minutes of play. But the Lions came back to score 14 of the next 18 points to knot the score at 19-19. The lead exchanged sides several times until a last-second jump shot gave the Lakers a 36-34 advantage at intermission.

The score was tied at 48-48 with 12:45 to play, but over the next two minutes, the Lakers committed five turnovers upon which the Lions capitalized and took a 57-48 lead.

The Lakers did not quit, though, and would trail by just one point two more times in the final 1:11. A lay-up by Levi at that point, after three Lion turnovers and a technical, pulled Garrett to within one, 74-73. After Harris and Somerville exchanged baskets, Dundalk was up 76-75 with 10 seconds to play. GCC's Warren Coats then fouled Anthony Chase, who connected on both of his free throws to seal the win for the Lions.

Chase scored 20 points, including 10 in the final minutes, to lead Dundalk, while Eugene Jackson netted 17 and had six steals, Micah Davenport hit 16 points, and Demetrus Harris added 12. Sean Glasgow grabbed 14 rebounds.

"Our defense played great ball, and Charles Somerville had a super game inside, but we still missed too many inside shots," Gibson said.

The Lions, now 21-2 overall, finished with a 53-44 lead in rebounding.

Somerville was held to just nine points last night in a close, physical game with Frederick CC, but he grabbed a game-high 12 rebounds, blocked five shots, and had four steals, as the Lakers held on down the stretch for the victory.

Garrett jumped out to a 24-11 lead, but let the Cougars pull to within two by halftime when the score was 40-38. There were six ties and eight lead changes in the second half, but a three-point play by Corin Turner, followed by a free throw by Carlos Jones with 3:32 remaining put Garrett up by five points. The Lakers were on top by six, 89-83, at the 1:56 mark.

A lot of time was spent at the foul line, as the Cougars were called for 33 infractions and the Lakers, 24. The Lakers connected on 31 of 47 attempts, while Frederick made good on 24 of 31.

Turner led the Lakers in scoring with 20 points, Jones finished with 15, Scott Kochenderfer netted 14 and dished out nine assists, and Dexter Levi recorded 13 points and four blocks.

Pacing Frederick (14-11) was Terrell Fraser with a game-high 27 points, seven rebounds, and four assists. Andrew Jackson, Danny Oog, and Antoinne Phillips also reached double figures with 15, 11, and 10 points, respectively.

"Frederick is a better team than we thought they were," Coach Gibson said, "which made this another big win for us."

The Lakers will wrap up their regular season this Saturday when they host Hagerstown CC. Tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

Mountain Top League Finishes Regular Season

The final regular-season games in the Mountain Top Basketball League were played Sunday, with Condoerr defeating 219 Motors, 79-65, Midas crushing an out-manned 84 Lumber, 102-38, and Smiley's nipping Beckman's Variety, 62-61.

Poke Winters scored 25 points to pace Condoerr, while Brian Reams netted 15 to pace 219 Motors.

Jason Brenneman poured in 37 points for Midas in the second game, and Kevin Artice led 84 Lumber with 10 points.

In the third game, Beckman's jumped out to a first-quarter lead, but Smiley's rallied to assume a 36-32 edge at halftime. The lead changed hands several times in the second half, but Smiley's was up by five points with two minutes left. Beckman's Jared Beckman then scored six unanswered points to give his team a one-point edge, but Scott Shahan of Smiley's fired up a successful jumper over the 6-7 Beckman with just three seconds left to give Smiley's a 62-61 lead. Beckman's called timeout on the inbounds, but had no timeouts left, was hit with a technical, and the game was over.

Playoffs will begin this Sunday, Feb. 13, with second-seeded 219 Motors facing #7 84 Lumber at 1 p.m.; #3 Smiley's meeting #6 Beckman's at 2 p.m.; and #1 Condoerr receiving a bye.

Garrett Downs Prince George's, Takoma Park; Falls To Frederick

The Garrett Community College women's basketball team took two out of three contests this week, beginning with a 66-61 win over Prince George's and 53-46 victory over Takoma Park before dropping to Frederick last night by a 102-65 margin. The Lakers will take an overall record of 8-11 into Saturday's 5 p.m. match-up with Cecil in McHenry before traveling to CCAC-Allegany for Tuesday's regular season finale.

Friday afternoon at Largo the Lakers battled Prince George's in through a see-saw first half that saw GCC holding a 32-28 lead at the end of the first half. Garrett took the lead at the 12:30 mark of the second half and never relinquished the reins, going up by as many as 14 points at one instance. The hosts closed the gap to 4 points at the 1:20 mark for its closest margin.

Erica Henderson's 12 points led GCC and teammate Donielle Gaines added 11 points. Amanda Larnerd and Tasha Blackmon each tallied 9 points, Tameka Graves scored 7 points, and Sha'Ray Washington and Shawntice McLaughlin recorded 6 points apiece. McLaughlin also had a team-high 9 rebounds and 7 assists. Syretta Johnson's 17 points for PGCC led all scorers.

The contest with Takoma Park Saturday in McHenry was a hard-fought battle in the early going. A slow GCC start left the Lakers scoreless until Henderson connected on a basket at the 16:54 mark. The visitors were up by a 26-23 margin at the half, and Garrett did not gain the lead for good until the 14-minute mark of the second half. The Lakers went on to hold Takoma Park scoreless for a 5:45 stretch while scoring 16 unanswered points to take a 47-30 lead. Takoma Park went on a 6-0 run in the final 46 seconds, but it was too little, too late.

GCC's victory was marred by 40 turnovers, although the visitors were unable to convert many of the Laker miscues into points of their own.

Gaines led all scorers with 16 points, 8 of which came during the Lakers' big second-half run. She also recorded 5 steals and 4 assists, while Henderson added 14 points and Graves pulled down a team-high 12 rebounds. Alice Gaines paced Takoma Park's scoring with 13 points.

Last night's match-up with Frederick the Lakers fell in a contest that saw the Cougars outscore Garrett 51-32 in the first half and 51-33 in the second stanza. GCC outrebounded the guests by a 45-42 margin, but committed more than twice as many turnovers, 28-13.

Blackmon and Henderson scored 14 points apiece for the Lakers, while Gaines added 11 and Graves had 9. Blackmon took down a game-high 12 rebounds. Frederick's Dani Thomas poured in 28 points, including 15 points on five 3-pointers.

The Maryland JUCO Women's Tournament is slated to begin this coming Thursday, Feb. 17, with a seeding schedule that will be determined Sunday.

Donielle Gaines (#20) is shown above making her move to drive around Sha'Ray Washington's (#45) perfect pick, which stopped a Cougar defender dead in her tracks. Erica Henderson (#40) is shown going up for two of her 14 points, a team-high tally that she shared with Tasha Blackmon.

In her letter of resignation Sincell-Corwell wrote: "I will miss the music, musicians, and the camaraderie that we have every year, but at the same time, it will be a much less stressful summer for all of us. Erick (Friedman) and I do, however, feel very good about the concerts that we have presented for the past 13 years. We accomplished our goal of bringing quality classical music to Garrett County, and I am happy that we were able to do it as long as we did."

Marcene Huebner, chair of the GLAF board, stated, "Garrett Lakes Arts Festival is immensely appreciative of the work Kathryn, Erick, and the other musicians have done in bringing extraordinary chamber and symphonic performances to Garrett County for more than a decade. GLAF will build upon the foundation that she has laid to ensure that this community will be able to enjoy superb classical performances in the years to come. We enlist the continued support of our faithful patrons whose sustaining financial assistance during this time of transition will enable us to obtain outstanding successors to the Classical Music Series we have known for the past 13 summers."

"This is perhaps the most significant issue ever faced by the county, and we are pleased with how it is playing out," Gregg said.

After signing the resolution Tuesday, the commissioners and the county administrator were in Annapolis yesterday for a morning meeting with the Board of Public Works. Governor Parris Glendening was absent from the meeting, as his wife is hospitalized with a respiratory illness. Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend took his place for the proceedings, and Lynch was present as well, opening the meeting with an overview of the entire process.

The commissioners each spoke, and Comptroller William Donald Schaefer had one question about the two-year buy-down process. After the issue was addressed, the vote took place and the agreement was unanimously supported. The meeting lasted approximately 15 minutes, as reported by Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator.

The board agreed that the first purchase of about $8 million is to come from Program Open Space. The second purchase (about $9.5 million) will require a general fund deficiency appropriation. This is the amount that is expected to be replenished through the add-on parcel purchases.

act," he said.

In developing a combined SIP, Miller and Harvey concurred on goals. "The largest component in our school plan is reading improvement," Harvey said.

The two schools set out plans for teacher workshops on topics such as guided reading, working with struggling readers, and individual reading inventories. They also planned "shared tasks" for the students, which would be the same for both schools. "We share grading tasks by exchanging them between the schools," Miller said.

She also described the conferences between the teachers at the separate schools. Such conferences are used to consider remedies for troubled readers and sharing of assessment of progress. "If we have identified a student as being at-risk or if we have any concerns, we can call a meeting with the teaching team and look at needs and strategies and set up follow-up meetings," Miller stated.

Harvey noted that teachers are emphasizing editing skills in all subjects. "All daily work gets language scores in all content areas," he said.

Character trait development is also on the Crellin/Kitzmiller SIP.

Board president Rodney Durst commended Harvey and Miller for their efforts in tracking closely the development and progress of each student. "This way, if a student has a problem, you can pick it up early and he won't fall through the cracks," he said.

Garrett County Outdoors

By Robert Yonke

This past weekend, Deep Creek Lake was dotted with ice fishermen. The prolonged cold weather has put a solid cover of ice on the lake and concentrations of tip-ups have been noted in the area of the lake along Route 219, particularly near the 219 bridge, and across from the state park. For the past several weeks, Deep Creek has seen great yellow perch fishing. A few walleye, trout, and chain pickerel are also turning up. Reports are that in some locations, like McHenry Cove, it is absolutely red hot. Tip-ups or ultra-light spinning tackle has been effective. Small jigs such as Rapala jigs or Swedish pimples will take them, as will minnows.

Ice fishing can get tough later in February, and a lot of anglers quit because they can't find fish. One reason could be that pike and walleyes are starting to think about spawning, period. To find these fish, check the spawning areas. For pike this could be in front of a shallow marshy area where the vegetation is thick. Walleyes will probably be in deep water near a rubble shoreline.

Later season fish require a very accurate presentation. They won't be fooled easily. You need active minnows, light line, and varied colored jigs.

WINTER ARCHERY LEAGUE STANDINGS

Many of the county's best bow hunters keep their eyes sharp by shooting in competitive archery through the winter. D & B Sport Shop in Deer Park sponsors an indoor winter league on their electronic range for teams of three. This season's 10-week session is now in week four. Standings at the end of the third week are: first place, the team of Dennis Leatherman, Lonnie Lewis, and Jerry Bogel; second place, the team of Dick Sherwood, Lonnie Artice, and Allen DeWitt; and third place, the team of Tom Layton, Dan Layton, and Don Kisner. Dan Milavec said that this year's competition is closer than it has been in some time and, with seven weeks left, the ultimate championship is truly wide open.

EASTERN SPORTS & OUTDOOR SHOW HAS SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

The show features over 900 exhibitors and competition in fly-tying, decoy painting and head carving, wildlife photography, and various wildlife calling. Tickets are $10 for adults, $8.50 for seniors, and $4 for children 6-12. There is free parking at the State Farm Show Complex, located just off the Cameron Street Exit of I-81 in Harrisburg. PUBLIC MEETING REGARDING PROPOSED HUNTING AND TRAPPING REGULATIONS

The DNR Wildlife and Heritage Division will hold four regional public information meetings regarding proposed hunting and trapping regulations for both the 2000-2001 and 2001-2002 hunting license years. These proposed regulations will be announced by the DNR on March 3.

These meetings provide an opportunity for interested citizens to comment on proposed regulations. DNR wildlife biologists will make presentations regarding proposed hunting regulations for resident game species, including deer, forest game, upland game, and furbearers.

Participants will also have the opportunity to comment on proposed hunting season dates for select migratory game birds, including mourning dove, woodcock, resident Canada geese (September season only), and teal (September season only). Biologists will discuss the status of game

In Memory of My Son,
Kenny Lucas
Dec. 14, 1962 - Feb. 14, 1999

If I could have one lifetime wish, one dream that would come true, I'd pray to Jesus with all my heart for yesterday and you. Everyday I'm reminded of you and when I'm thinking of each lovely memory, I still want to cry. The memories I have I will forever cherish, and they will never fade.

My life feels so empty without you, the sadness I feel will never die. It broke my heart to lose you, but you did not go alone, for part of me went with you the day Jesus called you home.

Believing you're gone is still very difficult, still somehow I know I must go on. The saddest word mankind knows will always be "Goodbye." But I am finding some comfort in knowing you're with Jesus now. And Jesus above, who knows all things, decided it was time to take you away. Away from here to a better place. To give the heavens a little more grace and a little more light for your smiling face.

I know Jesus took you to make the land of Heaven so much more beautiful. The calling on you was very hard for me. I lost someone very special to me, but Jesus gained a very special angel.

Although you were taken ahead of me, I know one day we'll reunite again. I must remember it is not all over, it is not the end, for in that land of Eternal Light Jesus will give you back to me. And until we meet again, you will be forever in my heart.

Loved and sadly missed,
Mom

"I remember all the Valentine's Days of before.
They were filled with laughter, hugs and kisses galore.
Now I'm alone and you're so far away.
But I want you to know that you're remembered today.
So, Happy Valentine's Day Honey, there's no card this year.
Just tears and loneliness and no one to hear
The pain in my heart, the ache in my soul,
The void in my life like a deep dark hole.
You changed my life, you made me see
The joy of life and what real love should be.
Now I'm alone as the the days go slowly by.
With no one to talk to or hold me when I cry.
Not a day goes by that I don't see your face.
It's burnt in my memory with your loving embrace.
I wake up at night screaming your name.
The life I once knew can never be the same.
In the dark of night I kneel by your grave
And pray for the strength to help me be brave.
Just be patient my darling, for it won't be long,
Till I'm back in your arms again, right where I belong.

I Will Always Love You,
Ann

after-hours number of the Department of Social Services in the urban Maryland county where her son resides. (In the larger urban areas there is an after-hours number for DSS; in Garrett County we call 911 and page the DSS worker on call.) I reported the information that I had been told, and I received a letter in the mail the following week stating that a case had been opened.

This child was developmentally delayed, and may have been difficult to handle, but he was only 6 years old. According to my mother-in-law, the family received supportive services from the local DSS, the child was not removed from the home, and she was certain that her son would not administer excessive corporal punishment (a beating) again. Did my former brother-in-law ever speak to me again? No. But the good part is that the child is still alive and well, and developing to the best of his ability.

To report suspected abuse or neglect during the regular Department of Social Services office hours (8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday), call the Child Protective Services hotline at 301-533-3005 or the Adult Protective Services hotline at 301-533-3004. The criterion for reporting is "reason to believe" that a child has been subjected to abuse or neglect. All suspected cases of child neglect should be reported to the local DSS. Suspected cases of child abuse should be reported to DSS or to any local law enforcement agency — and copied to the State's Attorney's Office. If you are wondering whether or not you should report suspected child abuse or neglect, then you "have reason to believe" that child maltreatment has occurred.

In most cases efforts will be made to work with the family to ameliorate the circumstances that led to the abuse and neglect. Local voluntary family preservation and support programs include Families Now, Intensive Family Preservation, Family Stabilization, and Wrap-around Case Management. Workers in these programs carry beepers and are on call 24 hours/7 days a week to help enrolled families deal with emergency situations.

However, if the DSS worker determines through a formal risk assessment that there is a concern for the immediate safety of the child, then the child will be placed in temporary shelter care and a court hearing will be scheduled to determine the best possible safe placement for that child. In most cases the local Department of Social Services will work to reunify the family. Under Federal Adoption and Safe Families Act guidelines implemented by the Maryland Legislature in 1998 (HB 1093), reasonable efforts to reunify the child with the parent or natural guardian may be waived under certain circumstances.

Briefly, the court is required to grant a reunification waiver to the local DSS if the parent has subjected the child to 1) torture, chronic abuse, or sexual abuse; or chronic and life-threatening neglect; 2) the natural parent has been convicted of "a crime of violence" against the child, the other natural parent of the child, another child of the natural parent, or any person who resides in the household of the natural parent; 3) the natural parent has involuntarily lost parental rights of a sibling of a child.

I am hopeful that the above information results in no further "reports" of any responsible adult in Garrett County being unable to access help for a child who is in a "crisis situation" on a snow day or after hours. I also trust that local citizens will not be hesitant to report suspected cases of child abuse and neglect and that the local department will be diligent in investigating all reports in a timely manner to ensure the health and safety of our children.

To the Editor:

In your editorial "Winning is Everything...", you addressed the lack of accountability to which gifted athletes are held as a contributing factor to the high number of criminal professional athletes. I want to point out that, when the "sport" is football, violence is encouraged and applauded. Although it was 10 years ago, I still clearly remember hearing a 13-year-old friend of my daughter recounting a Northern Steelers' football game in which he had participated. To my horror, the most exciting part of the game to him was when he "hit" (blocked) an opposing player so hard that the other boy had to sit out the next play. In football, hitting someone hard enough to put him out of commission is a "job well done." In society, it is assault. How do we reconcile this?

I think we must begin to recognize that there is a widely held attitude of acceptance of violence in our area, as well as in our country. I offer the following incident as an example: A few weeks ago, I went to the McHenry Barrack of the Maryland State Police to pick up my son. While I was waiting for him, I read a poster on the wall of the waiting room that encouraged victims of domestic violence to seek help. As my son and I were about to leave, the police officer who had walked out with us said, "He's all yours. Take him home and beat him."

Either it is all right for us to beat our family members, or it is not! I believe it is not. A friend said to me "Linda, you don't think he (the police officer) was serious, do you?" I think we must not even joke about beating our children.

In closing, I hope to see more articles in The Republican addressing the damage that results from violence against our children.

Sincerely,
Linda Theriot

To the Editor:

Maryland, like other states, has been hit hard by the flu in recent weeks. Maryland hospitals have experienced a tremendous upsurge in the number of ill people seeking help. Patients with the flu or respiratory illnesses have deluged hospital emergency departments and filled hospital beds.

I want to commend Maryland hospitals' staff, especially the front-line caregivers, for their tireless efforts to put patient care above their own personal and family needs during this stressful time. Hospitals have reported caregivers so busy that they couldn't get away from patient care for meals or breaks; others worked extra shifts; and still others filled in for their fellow staffers felled by the flu themselves. There are countless examples of hospital employees — regardless of their regular jobs — working together to care for patients.

Thanks to all Maryland hospital caregivers for the special things they do, not just during the flu season, but year-round. Their dedication improves the quality of life and health of communities throughout Maryland.

Sincerely,

Dr. Bob Doyle directs the Planetarium at Frostburg State. Since the mid '70s, Doyle has been writing sky columns for beginners who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets, and sights in their backyards. For a weekly sky report, call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270. Doyle also hosts "SkyWatch," a brief weekly program on days of the week and sky sights on WFWM, Frostburg State's listener-supported radio station. E-mail address is rdoyle@frostburg.edu.

THE SUN — In February, sunlight hours each day increase from 10.2 to 11.3 in the latter part of the month. The sun's midday peak height increases from 33 to 43 degrees (45 degrees is halfway up). Sunset times advance about 30 minutes (from about half past 5 to a little past 6). Sunrise times fall back about a half hour (from about a quarter past 7 to about a quarter before 7).

THE MOON — February opens with a slender crescent moon low in the eastern dawn. On February 5 the moon swings from the morning to the evening side of the sun, triggering Chinese New Year. (The year we have just entered is the Year of the Dragon.) The moon will appear near the bright planet Jupiter on February 10 and next to Saturn on the 11th. A few days before Valentine's Day the moon will appear half full (looks like a "D"). This shape of the moon offers the best lunar detail through binoculars or telescopes. The full moon on February 19 is known as the Wolf Moon, Hunger Moon, or Snow Moon. February ends with the moon about half full in the dawn sky. (It will be more convenient to view the moon in the southern day sky around breakfast time.)

THE BRIGHT PLANETS — Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine steadily, compared to the flickering stars. As soon as it gets dark, look for yellowish Mars, low in the southwest. Dominating the southwestern evening sky is the very bright planet Jupiter. To the left of Jupiter is the planet Saturn. In mid-February the bashful planet Mercury can be seen below and to the right of Mars. At dawn the planet Venus is awesome low in the east.

FEBRUARY'S STAR SIGHTS — On February evenings the Big Dipper appears about halfway up in the north northeast; its two top stars point leftward to the North Star, a modest star about halfway up in the north. To the right of the North Star is Cassiopeia, which resembles a titled letter "W". The most impressive star group is in the southern evening sky, Orion (say O'Ryan), the Hunter. Orion's trademark feature is his belt of three moderately bright stars in a row, equally spaced. Above and to the left of Orion's belt is the bright star Betelgeuse (say Beetle Juice). To the right of and below the belt is Rigel (say rye-JELL), Orion's brightest star. Orion's belt points rightward to the 7 Sisters star cluster, a tiny star mist. Orion's belt points down and left to Sirius (sounds like serious), the night's brightest star.

FEBRUARY PUBLIC SHOW AT FROSTBURG STATE — The FSU Planetarium's main feature in February is "The Explorers," with free showings each Sunday at 1:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. These presentations are free and open to the public. They last about an hour. Also included is an informal tour of the current evening sky. The Planetarium is just off the front lobby of Tawes Hall in the middle of campus with convenient parking nearby.

LOCAL ASTRONOMY CLUB MEETS — The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet Friday, Feb. 18, at the LaVale Public Library at 7:30 p.m. All interested sky gazers are welcome. Several club members are residents of Garrett County, including the vice president, Gus Johnson of Swanton.

Md. Jobless Rate At Record Low; County's Higher

Maryland's unemployment rate has set a new record low, dropping to 2.8% for December. This is three-tenths of a percent below the previous low of 3.1% set in November, and is the third consecutive month that a new record low was reached. Maryland's unemployment rate in December was nearly a full percentage point below the national average of 3.7%.

Meanwhile, in Garrett County the jobless rate increased from 6.8 percent in November to 7.7 percent in December, but was still well below the December 1998 rate of 10.5 percent.

"Maryland's economy and business climate are stronger than ever, our families are enjoying unprecedented prosperity, and our children's future looks even brighter," said Governor Parris N. Glendening. "This record low unemployment for the second straight month is a historic achievement for our state. Marylanders are getting jobs, keeping jobs, and creating better lives for their families every day.

"Although we cannot expect the unemployment rate to reach a new record low every month, we also cannot be complacent," he said. We must move aggressively to ensure that Maryland families keep good-paying jobs, businesses continue to flourish, and this record-breaking prosperity lasts. Businesses tell us that the key to their future growth is a well-educated, well-trained workforce. As a result, we are making record investments in education that will give our students the tools they need to succeed in the knowledge-based economy, and will keep unemployment low in the future.

Across the state, unemployment rates either declined or held steady in all but four local jurisdictions. Fourteen jurisdictions reported unemployment rates below the statewide estimate, with levels in Howard, Montgomery, Frederick, and Charles counties among the lowest. Although employment levels declined over the month, as is the norm, the exodus of seasonal job seekers pushed the unemployment rate below 3.1 percent for the first time since collection of this data began in 1978.

During December, activity generated by the holiday season prompted the hiring of part-time workers in a number of retail trade establishments, in trucking and warehousing, and at the post office. Gains in these industries, coupled with hiring in health and business services, helped to downplay the effects of seasonal reductions in construction, agricultural services, hotels, amusements, and educational services. Even with the normal seasonal reductions, December's employment level represented the highest on record for the month.

Biochemical Research Explains Effects Of Massage Therapy

by Peggy Santamaria

The following article is based on information provided by Cynthia Knight, a Grantsville resident who is a nationally and state certified massage therapist and an instructor in anatomy and physiology in Garrett Community College's message therapy program.

Melatonin, endorphins, serotonin — these words have slipped out of the research lab and into daily usage and television commercials. They are the names of three of the numerous chemicals produced by the body which affect mood, sleep, mental health, and physical health. Scientists are only now learning how they are produced, where they are produced, and how they function.

As scientific research yields more and more information on how the human body works, there is more support found for the belief that massage therapy actually offers major health benefits. Anatomy and physiology instructor Cynthia Knight has explained some of these findings and how they cast a new light on a traditional method of healing.

"Biochemical research scientists study chemical substances that are released or suppressed by our emotions — anger, fear, sorrow, joy, happiness, safety, love, etc. Psychoneuroimmunology is the new branch of science that studies the links between the mind — our thoughts and emotions, the nervous system, the endocrine system, and immune function," Knight reported.

Massage has come a long way in the American culture. Previously viewed as having only sexual overtones, its image progressed to that of being a "feel good" luxury with little or no "health" value, Knight explained. "Some people in the medical field would say things like 'What good is it? It only relaxes you.' It only relaxes you? Relaxing is critical to the body being able to function as it was designed to," she said emphatically.

One of the body's systems that can be affected by massage is the autonomous nervous system with its newly-found neurotransmitters. "This is not the part of the nervous system that stimulates muscles for movement. Rather, it plays a more subtle role in balancing the activities of our internal organs," Knight explained.

What researchers have learned is that these transmitters are not just in the brain, but in all body organs. "The discovery of neuropeptides — neuro-transmitters and their receptor sites — throughout our bodies and not just in the brain explains much of the physiology of the body that has puzzled scientists for years. Neuropeptides function in the nervous system much like our hormones function in the endocrine system." she said.

Research biochemists have discovered molecules throughout the body which are triggered by emotions and can alter one's body organs and how they function, Knight pointed out. "That is why laughter, positive thinking, positive visualization, and other such activities can affect the course of an illness. Massage, by providing safe, supportive, physical touch, allows us to get into safe mental touch with our emotions and change our own physiology," Knight stated.

Future articles will discuss stress management through massage, benefits of massage for different age groups, and the place of massage in the community today.

Massage Therapy And Seizures To Be Forum Topic

The Epilepsy Support Group of Garrett County will sponsor a free forum on seizures and massage therapy, to be presented by certified massage therapists Charlotte Garner and Deborah Nichols.

This informational event will be held on Thursday, Feb. 17, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Community Services building behind Garrett Memorial Hospital. For more information or to register, persons may call Sara Hoffman at 301-387-7723.

Kid's Safety Seat Check Offered To All Residents

A safety check of children's car seats will be available to the community on Wednesday, Feb. 16, 1-4 p.m. at the Oakland town garage.

Diane Lee of the Garrett County Health Department, who is coordinating this service, said that the check will be conducted by trained personnel who will examine seats to make sure they are properly installed, are the right size and style for the child's age and size, have not been recalled by the manufacturer, and do not have obvious damage.

Recent seat checks in Garrett County have shown a problem with the seat or installation in at least 90 percent of all the seats checked, Lee said. "Installation problems range from not having the seat belts tight enough to seats with missing or broken parts, and not using booster seats for children 40-80 pounds," she stated.

This public service event is provided in conjunction with an employee training that is being sponsored by the health department and the Department of Social Services. The participants in this Buckle Up Kids class, which will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 15-16, will include personnel from social services, the health department, and the Oakland Police Department. The trainers will include Lee and Steve Hamilton, who are both National Child Passenger Safety technicians.

"Class participants will learn how child safety seats protect children, correct installation, appropriate seats for a child's age and size, how to check for recalls, and other issues," Lee explained.

Additional child safety seat checks will be scheduled throughout the year. For more information persons may call Diane Lee at the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-8122 or 301-895-3113.

WINNING A SECOND TIME - When the Garrett County Health Department held a raffle for a fruit basket in November, the winner was Bill Cain. Recently, another fruit basket raffle was offered by the health department's Outreach team. "Two-hundred and eleven people signed up for the raffle. Much to the team's surprise, Bill Cain's name was drawn again," said raffle coordinator Gail Dever. In the photo Cain accepts the basket from Dever. The Garrett County Health Department Outreach team travels throughout the county offering blood pressure screening and health information to businesses for their employees and/or customers. For more information, persons may call 301-334-8122 or 301-895-3113.

Maryland To Devote Funds To Keep Senior Citizens Living Independently

by Lolly Bowean
Capital News Service

Evelyn M. Chittum, 73, lives in a Glen Burnie community where she cooks, cleans, and receives visitors in her small apartment. But without the help of drop-in nurses, she wouldn't be able to live on her own.

Like Chittum, many senior citizens say they want access to help that will enable them to live in their own homes longer, so Maryland lawmakers are responding to the call.

"I don't want to be a burden to anybody," Chittum said. "No matter what shape I'm in, I want to try to help myself for as long as I can."

Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend last week unveiled the seniors' agenda for this General Assembly session, announcing plans to invest $9 million in the Medicaid waiver program, which will increase the number of seniors who can receive care at home. There are 135 seniors in Maryland who use waivers to pay for at-home assistance. The number would grow by 1,000 with the new money.

"Like all citizens, seniors are happiest and healthiest when they can maintain their independence and live at home, and our agenda for this year will enable more elderly men and women to make that choice," Townsend said.

The senior agenda also includes funding to expand services in senior housing complexes and to increase health benefits to low-income seniors.

Senior advocacy organizations applauded the agenda, saying the administration is dedicated to improving health and living conditions for seniors.

"As you get older, you want to continue with your independent lifestyle," said Pamela Causey, spokeswoman for the Maryland Department of Aging. The state is "stepping up opportunities for more seniors by giving them services that will let them live in their own communities."

Nearly 400 seniors braved the snowy streets of Annapolis last week to rally before the administration's announcement. United Seniors of Maryland has sponsored the rally and lobbying effort since 1979.

"There are a lot of seniors who don't have someone to visit them or protect them," said Charlie Culbertson, United Seniors of Maryland president. "Sometimes it doesn't require very much assistance, just (enough) to get over the hard places where they can't manage."

Seniors were excited to meet with legislators, Culbertson said. They supported Townsend's announcement to help seniors live at home longer.

"When you are more comfortable, you live a more healthy and long life," Culbertson said. Up-front costs may seem high, he said, but it will be made up by what the state saves in the long run because seniors won't need to stay in nursing homes as long.

The seniors' agenda pleases the elderly like Chittum, who value their independence but need a little help.

Chittum used to live in a basement apartment with her daughter, but she became frustrated because she had trouble getting in and out. Securing a home aide enabled her to move into her own apartment two years ago.

"I can walk with a cane or walker. I can do for myself," she said. "I don't want a nursing home. I love it here on my own. I'm happy, very happy."

AHA Quick Quiz Evaluates Risk Of Heart Attack

The American Heart Association has published the following quiz for anyone who wishes to assess his or her own risks for having a heart attack. According to the AHA, the factors on the quiz may increase a person's chances of heart attack.

- Are you a man over 45 years old, or a woman over 55, or passed menopause or had ovaries removed and are not taking estrogen?
- Did your father or brother have a heart attack before age 55, or your mother or sister have a heart attack before age 65, or your mother, father, sister, brother, or grandparent have a stroke?
- Do you smoke or live with people who do smoke?
- Is your total cholesterol 240 mg/dL or higher?
- Is your "good" cholesterol less that 35 mg/dL?
- Is your blood pressure 140/90 or higher?
- Do you get less than 30 minutes of physical activity on most days?
- Are you 20 pounds or more overweight?
- Do you have diabetes?
- Do you have a history of heart disease, stroke, or heart attack?

The AHA urges persons who answer yes or do not know the answers to two or more questions to see a health care provider. One may also contact the association at 1-800-AHA-USA1 or visit the web site www.americanheart.org.

MedicAlert™ Suggests Gifts For A Valentine

MedicAlert Emergency Medical Information Service, a 40-year-old nonprofit organization which issues bracelets and necklaces identifying the wearer's medical condition, is offering Valentine's Day gifts for loved ones with a medical condition or allergy.

"Here's a gift idea that could be a lifesaver," said a spokesman for the organization, who suggested a MedicAlert membership for a family member or friend. He also noted that the bracelets and necklaces, available in sterling silver and 14k gold, are currently listed at reduced Valentine's Day prices. Basic metals are also available.

The MedicAlert membership is noted by the insignia worn at the wrist or neck. "It is more than a bracelet, it's a lifeline. In an emergency, one call gives doctors or paramedics medical condition, medications, allergies, doctors, and family contact information, which is kept in a confidential data base," the spokesman explained.

"No one else provides the comprehensive service, confidentiality and commitment to privacy that MedicAlert membership offers," said Tanya J. Glazebrook, president and CEO of MedicAlert Foundation.

She also stated that the MedicAlert service is recommended by more than 100,000 medical professionals in the United States, and that the MedicAlert trademark is recognized by emergency personnel around the world. "So members are protected everywhere," Glazebrook concluded.

Some Lawmakers Determined To Relieve Seniors' Prescription Woes

by Rachel Mansour
Capital News Service

Maryland lawmakers from rural delegations are scrambling to draft legislation to help 14,000 seniors secure prescription coverage in the wake of the recent pullout of two major Medicare providers from 14 counties.

Spearheaded by Delegate Ronald A. Guns, D-Cecil, a troop of legislators from western and southern Maryland and the Eastern Shore are researching alternatives to temporarily relieve seniors' prescription dilemma until the federal government can add drug coverage to Medicare.

"Seniors should not have this kind of worry — not in this nation and not in this state," said Delegate Norman H. Conway, D-Wicomico.

With a $1 billion state surplus and an expected $4 billion in tobacco settlements, legislators have fiscal room for such action.

One idea under discussion is to use this money to lure Medicare HMOs back to rural areas with subsidies. Another is to set up a state-run prescription service.

"We all understand senior citizens' problems right now. We are just trying to find the quickest and simplest way to deal with it," said Delegate Donald B. Elliott, R-Carroll.

Elliott, a pharmacist, said to save money his customers don't take their medications as prescribed or miss filling prescriptions.

"Now that is just a sad situation," he said.

FreeState Health Plan and United Healthcare-Mid Atlantic pulled out of 14 rural counties Jan. 1, after claiming federal reimbursements for Medicare recipients were too low.

Federal budget cuts in 1997 slashed about $200 billion from Medicare over five years, thereby greatly reducing federal reimbursements to health providers. Plus, federal reimbursements already were lower for rural patients.

In 1998, FreeState tried to recover millions of dollars it says it lost by imposing a $75 premium in rural areas. But it still was forced to withdraw because the sparse senior populations and distant doctors combined were too costly. It charges a $50 premium in

COVE

The worship service of the St. John's Lutheran Church, ELCA, will begin at 8:30 a.m. St. John's will also be having communion that morning. The pastor is Rev. Roland Nairn.

The Cove Kids 4-H club met Tuesday evening at St. John's fellowship hall. Mrs. Edna Bender was the guest speaker. CARTER CARVES A CRITTER FOR YOUGH GLADES — With the second anniversary of the opening of Yough Glades Elementary School on the horizon, the staff and students of the school recently received a present. John Carter, father of first grader Christopher "Critter" Carter, carved a nearly life-sized alligator for the school. Yough Glades Elementary's mascot is the "gator," so the new addition, carved from an oak log, was a fitting gift. The gator is 5 feet long, stands one foot tall, and weighs about 100 pounds. A contest is to be held among the students to name the new "pet." Pictured above are Principal Lindsay Stanton, Carter, his son "Critter," and the oaken alligator.

Debt Elimination Seminar Slated At Garrett CC

The Small Business Development Center at Garrett Community College has slated a "Get Completely Out of Debt" seminar for Tuesday, March 7, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. The seminar will take place in Room 305/311 of the college's Continuing Education building.

The session "shows people how they can pay off all their consumer debt in one to three years, and their mortgage in another four to five years, all with the same money they currently earn," according to a spokesman for the Debt-Elimination Institute, which is presenting the seminar.

"The seminar warns against a lifestyle based on credit dependence, and will arm participants with powerful and practical information they can immediately apply in their own lives. They will leave with a complete individual debt elimination plan that will show them how to pay off their debts, and will tell them when they can be completely debt-free," the spokesperson said.

The fee for this course is $35, which includes a required workbook. An optional textbook will be available for an additional $35. For additional information interested persons may contact the Debt-Elimination Institute toll-free at 1-888-798-6452 or consult its web site at www.4debtfreedom.com. Registration may be made by contacting the Small Business Development Center at 301-387-3080.

Seniors' Woes

urban areas.

With such a large population of seniors and 14 counties left without coverage, Maryland legislators are left tossing around ideas and crunching numbers trying to fill the void. While their plans to correct the state's prescription predicament are embryonic, their determination to pass something this session is firm.

"We are just trying to get (rural) seniors on the same playing field as the urbanite seniors," said Delegate George C. Edwards, R-Garrett. "Right now they have nothing."

A portion of the $4.4 billion the state expects from the tobacco settlement over the next 20 years could be tapped to compensate Free-State's claimed $3 million loss and lure the company back, lawmakers say.

But patient advocates urge legislators to use the money more wisely and funnel the surplus more directly to senior citizens.

It would be a "gross disservice" to filter tax and tobacco money through "badly mismanaged HMOs," said Charles Gerhardt of the Maryland Patient Advocacy Group. He recommended using the money to enhance the state's existing prescription programs, such as the Maryland Pharmacy Assistance Program for low-income Medicare and Medicaid recipients.

Indeed, legislators are weighing using the money to set up a temporary prescription service similar to MPAP or the State Employees Pharmacy Plan.

"We just want to provide (senior citizens) with adequate medication so we can prevent long-term hospitalization," said Delegate Adelaide C. Eckardt, R-Dorchester.

We can't sit around when the "federal level has not been responsive," she said.

Last November, U.S. Sen. Barbara A. Mikulski, D-Baltimore, sponsored the Balanced Budget Refinement Act of 1999 that restored $16 billion in Medicare funding to providers nationwide and gave a 5 percent bonus to HMOs entering areas without one. But there was no provision requiring that HMOs stay in rural areas.

Mikulski has vowed to pass legislation that would add a prescription drug benefit to Medicare this session in Congress. But until then, seniors will have to scrape for prescription money.

Without a Medicare HMO, seniors can either apply for a Medicare supplemental insurance plan that, for about $100 to $200 per month, covers prescription or dental expenses, or simply pays out-of-pocket for prescriptions.

"And that is bad for senior citizens on a fixed income, who often have multiple prescriptions," said Stephanie Garrity, chief of the Client and Community Services Division for the Maryland Department on Aging.

"Senior citizens," she said, end up "halving and quartering their medications to save money, making choices between food and medication, and relying on doctors for sample medications."

NEXT FRIDAY

Rated R - Running Time: 1:33 - Released 1/12/00

One would be hard pressed to find a more inconsequential film than Steve Carr's Next Friday, a sequel to the slightly-more-important 1995 film Friday, which featured rapper Ice Cube and comic Chris Tucker sitting on the porch in South Central L.A., smoking weed and watching the day go by. While that film gave us a humorous look at life in the 'hood, we are treated now to a more action-oriented story based in the suburbs. Both films were written by Cube and D.J. Pooh; this is, however, the freshman effort of director Carr.

As in Friday, Cube's role is mainly that of straight-man, but this time Tucker's wasted Smokey is replaced by Mike Epps's frenetic homeboy Day-Day. Cube's character, Craig, goes to visit his cousin, who left South Central for this posh neighborhood when his dad (Don "D.C." Curry) hit the lotto and won a million dollars. While there, Craig and Day-Day get in trouble with Day-Day's pregnant girlfriend (Tamala Jones), his pimplike boss (Clifton Powell), and his drug-selling Latino neighbors (Jacob Vargas, Lobo Sebastian, and Rolando Molina). At the film's end, Day-Day asks Craig, "when can I come visit you and [mess] up your neighborhood?" Craig replies, "You can't."

This film, while genuinely funny on a few occasions, has the mentality of a Cheech and Chong movie. Most of the humor derives from overblown ethnic stereotypes, drug abuse, and sexism. While Epps is running frantically from the diminutive-but-furious Jones, Cube is making flirtatious advances at the next-door bad-boys' sister (Lisa Rodríguez). Or maybe that should be spelled "seeester." Half-baked subplots involve Craig's newly rich uncle and his busty sexpot girlfriend (Kim Whitley) getting kinky with whips and chains, and his dog-catcher dad (John Witherspoon) speeding down the highway with two criminal escapees hiding in the back of his truck (Tiny Lister and Sticky Fingaz), and a bad case of diarrhea. Not to mention the spliff-smoking party the guys share with Day-Day's co-worker (Justin Pierce), using a vacuum cleaner to suck up the telltale smoke. Smart stuff, eh?

Virtually nothing memorable happens in Next Friday, but it will afford its market (mainly black teens) a mindless romp through homeboy comedy, a rap soundtrack, and a break from the doldrums of early-year film releases. ★★★½

Rated R - Running Time: 1:56 - Released 2/4/00

Wes Craven should have quit when he was ahead. His Scream 2 was smarter, funnier, and more interesting than its prequel, even though Scream was hailed as a groundbreaker. But Scream 3 tries too hard to continue in that direction, and the result is a bloated, over-complex story with too many characters and too much exposition. For a slasher movie, it has a surprising poverty of blood, and for fans of that genre, it's sure to displease. It's just plain boring, folks.

Craven's first mistake may have been trusting his old formula with a new screenwriter. While Kevin Williamson penned the first two Screams, this time his characters have been handed over to Ehren Kruger (Arlington Road), who tries to make more of them than they were to start with. If there were a more talented troupe, this could almost be a straight murder thriller (except for the cloaked, masked figure jumping around), but Craven and his stars Neve Campbell, Courteney Cox, and David Arquette are still firmly in the slasher mode, so watching them wade through the voluminous expository material just makes us say, "Get to the killing!" I was having more fun watching the couple making out a few rows in front of me in the theater.

This film, as with it predecessors, follows in the tradition of parodying the horror film genre. There are numerous references to how unlikely events in horror movies are, and numerous phone calls from the killer, who now has an electronic device to make his voice sound like that of anyone in the film. Convenient, eh? This time he attacks the people who are currrently filming Stab 3, the movie depicting the ongoing murders in the lives of Neve's character Sidney Prescott. So this time, we not only have the usual cast, like opportunistic reporter Gale Weathers (Cox) and ex-cop Dewey Riley (Arquette), but the actors playing them in the film. Gale's double is Jennifer Joile (Parker Posie), Sidney's is Angelina Tyler (Emily Mortimer), and Dewey's is Tom Prince (Matt Keeslar). There's also the film's director (Scott Foley) and producer (Lance Henriksen).

After a few cast members are offed during filming, we learn that the killer is really looking for Sidney again, and, against all logic and good reason, she shows up to help in the investigation. The set is closed down, production is halted, and our intrepid cast spends the rest of the film running around the fake houses dodging the knife. The killer, still dressed in the familiar, now unscary mask and cloak, runs amok, disappears, reappears, gets killed over and over, and still lives to stab again. But alongside the killing is the complex story of the on-again, off-again romance between Gale and Dewey (incidentally, Cox and Arquette married during filming), and a vague sub-plot involving the murder of Sidney's mother long before all this other stuff happened.

Campbell looks bored. Cox is awful again, and her pretender, Posie, is almost as bad. Arquette is more interested in playing with his new wife than doing this film. And Roger L. Jackson's phone voice, which doesn't match any of the characters' voices or that of the eventually uncovered killer, sounds ridiculously unconvincing in its pretended ominousness.

Traditional slasher movies of the '70s were like pornos with a knife. Scream and Scream 2 moved out into the realm of quasi-intelligence. But Scream 3 goes way too far in trying to be clever. However, there is one thing I liked: Scream 3 purports to be the final chapter in a trilogy. We can only hope. ★★½

Social Services To Hold Forum

The Garrett County Department of Social Services will hold a public forum on Wednesday, Feb. 23, at 6 p.m. at the Mary Browning Center of Community Action, 104 E. Center Street, Oakland. The forum will cover two topics that social security recipients have identified as areas of concern: the Medical Assistance Program and Child Protective Services.

The forum will include presentations on both topics by Social Services staff. There will be question-and-answer sessions, as well as opportunities for those in attendance to offer general comments and suggestions regarding all of Garrett County Department of Social Services programs and services. The forum is expected to be concluded at approximately 7:30 p.m.

All interested persons are invited to attend. Light refreshments will be served. Persons with questions or needing special accommodations are invited to contact the Social Services office at 301-533-3000 or toll-free at 1-800-526-2213.

The department will offer similar forums in the northern area of the county later in the year. In the event of cancellation because of inclement weather, information will be provided to local radio stations.

Spruce Forest Weekend Event To Honor Presidents

A family celebration honoring George Washington and Abraham Lincoln will begin Friday and continue through Saturday, Feb. 11-12, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days. This first-time event, the Cherries and Chill Festival, will offer activities and entertainment for children and adults.

On Friday, village artisans will welcome visitors to their log cabin workshops. Complimentary refreshments will be served, and door prizes awarded.

Weather permitting, outdoor activities for children up to age 12 are planned for Saturday from noon to 3 p.m., starting with a scavenger hunt with prizes to be awarded. At 12:30 p.m. children can take part in a snow-building contest and have a guided tour of the historic village cabins.

At 1 p.m. everyone will be welcome in the heated Village Church to hear local historian Jack Carruthers spin tales and legends about George Washington. Abe Lincoln, portrayed by Dennis Morris, will visit the Cherries and Chills Festival and join everyone in the church for a "sing-along with Abe" — who will bring his harmonica.

A birthday party for George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, snacks, games, and door prizes will complete the afternoon children's activities.

For more information on the festival, including the cherry dessert contest, persons may call village administrator Trish Morgan at 301-895-3332.

Limitless Love

Isn't it wonderful that love is limitless! It seems that the more we give, the more we are able to give. The late actor, Eddie Cantor said it this way..."Love isn't like a reservoir. You'll never drain it dry. It's much more like a natural spring. The longer and the farther it flows, the stronger and the deeper and the clearer it becomes."

1 John 4:8 tells us, "God is love." This is the way God manifests Himself on Earth. Yes, when we truly love, our heart is our own paradise, warm inside of us, for then God dwells within our soul.

If we love those whose lives we touch each day, they will know it and they will be drawn to us. Love has a way of mushrooming. Once begun, it spills endlessly upon your life like sunlight from the sky.

Give yourself a Valentine this year. Worship God each week. You will learn to give love...and you will receive love that knows no bounds.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WATCH!

February 13, 2000

Background Scripture:
Matthew 24:1 through 25:13.
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 24:36-44.

The Sunday after Christmas I taught our adult Sunday school class on the subject, "Apocalypse: Will There Be A Next Sunday?" Today, as I write these words, it is next Sunday, January 3, and despite all the dire predictions, we made it through New Year's Eve and Day without any worldwide cataclysms. (Yes, I realize that, by the time you read this, there may have been some!)

During our study of the apocalyptic element in Christian belief, we studied a variety of relevant biblical texts. We studied premillennialism, postmillennialism and amillennialism. We considered the beliefs of those who believed Christ's Second Coming was his resurrection, those who believe it was in the Pentecostal experience of the Holy Spirit, those who believe that it is what the Christian experiences at death, those who believe his return can be identified with the gradual, evolutionary growth of God's rule on earth and those who believe Christ is yet to come apocalyptically.

To me, it seems that the only unambiguous biblical texts on this subject are those typified by what Jesus says to his disciples—and us—in Matthew 25: "Watch therefore, for you know neither the day nor the hour" (25:13). Like the ten maidens awaiting the return of the groom in his parable, we do not know when our Master will return and I believe that he does not want us to know: "But of that day and hour no one knows, not even the angels of heaven, nor the Son, but the Father only....Therefore you must be ready; for the Son of man is coming at an hour you do not expect" (24:37,44).

Two Strategies

It would seem that there are two strategies for making sure that Christ does not catch us unprepared. One would be to find some way of determining just when and how he is returning. Just as we prepare for an important day in our lives by marking it on the calendar and calculating what we must accomplish before that date falls, so we could similarly be certain of being ready for Christ's return. The only thing wrong with that strategy is that Jesus says we are not to know "that day and hour."

That brings us to the second strategy: to be ready for his return at any time.

We are to be ready for him, not at a precise month, day and time, but for all months, days and times. "Therefore you must be ready; for the Son of man is coming at an hour you do not expect." That is the

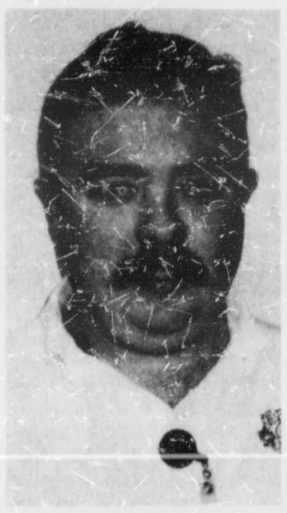
Ward Selected GCMH Employee Of The Year



Rick N. Ward was selected as Garrett County Memorial Hospital's Employee's Choice of the Year award recipient for 1999.

Ward works as a nursing assistant on the medical/surgical unit and has been employed at the hospital for 11 years. He was also selected as the Employees' Choice award recipient for August of 1999 and is described by his co-workers as "someone with a great deal of compassion for the patients." Co-workers remarked that Ward is a team player who goes the extra mile to be an extraordinary employee.

"Rick takes a lot of pride in his work and strives to be a good employee. He is well-deserving of this award," commented Mary Jo Sabatelli, nurse manager of acute care services.

Ward and his wife Cheryl live in Aurora, W.Va., with their two boys, Jon and Aaron. He enjoys gardening and raising different breeds of chickens. He also reports being active in his local church, where he helps with the children's church.

Tom Valentine is the director and Dr. John Hawkins is the musical director/producer. Valentine and Hawkins collaborated last year on the college's successful production of Grease.

The musical requires five males and females on stage and a number of backstage people. Since the production is a true ensemble piece, the 10 actors remain on stage for virtually the entire production.

Jesus is played by Ken Nolan, while Richard Coleman will portray John the Baptist and Judas. Other cast members include: Jenny DuVall, Kim Shoemaker, Andrew Farris, Laura Becker Groves, Dan Stevens, Heidi Bobb, Jared Lancaster, Rita Powell of Mtn. Lake Park, Joee Sanders, and Heather Footen.

Included in the band are John Hawkins on keyboards; Jim Roderick, electric/acoustic guitars; Mark Riley, bass guitar; and Rich Frush on drums.

Following the performance on Sunday, Feb. 27, groups of adults and students are encouraged to remain after the performance for an interactive discussion among the cast members and audience.

Tickets are available for reserved seating, advance tickets, and at the door prior to each performance. Adult tickets are $9 and student tickets are $7; advance tickets — adults, $5, and students, $3 — may be purchased at the Potomac State College Bookstore (now located in the campus Student Union Building) or at Linda's Hallmark Shop, Keyser Square.

Berry To Speak To Garden Club

The Mountain Laurel Garden Club will welcome guest speaker Mary Jane Berry at its February 15 meeting at the Point View Inn. Berry, a local wildflower enthusiast, will present a program explaining the plants used by 19th century women for personal care and medicinal purposes. Renewed interest in gardening with wildflowers makes this a pertinent topic, according to a club spokesperson.

While pursuing a college degree in social work at Sweet Briar University, Berry encountered an ecology professor's wife who introduced her to the world of wildflowers. Thirty years later she is established in the field of social work, but still spends much of her spare time studying nature through continuing education courses. In one of these courses, Berry met with other students of nature, who have continued to meet together regularly for study and natural experiments like dying wool, making paper, and creating natural decorations. Many of these gatherings have been in Garrett County, according to Berry.

Berry has been recruited to teach a course on "Edible and Useful Wild Plants" at the United States Dept. of Agriculture Graduate School and at Garrett Community College.

Farming In Maryland.....

MDA To Hold Public Hearings On Nutrient Management Regulations

Public hearings on Maryland's final nutrient management regulations will be conducted around the state in February and March, Maryland secretary of agriculture Henry A. Virts, D.V.M., has announced.

The Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) is holding the hearings following publication of the final regulations in the Jan. 28, 2000, Maryland Register.

"We are doing everything in our power to ensure that the agricultural community and the citizens of Maryland are fully apprised of these regulations," said Virts. "We feel confident that we are going the extra mile to make this a completely open process."

In addition to the Maryland Register, the regulations are available on the Maryland Department of Agriculture web site at http://www.mda.state.md.us/nutrient/regsred.html. MDA also will accept written comments on the regulations until March 15, 2000. These comments should be addressed to the attention of Louise Lawrence, Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401.

A public hearing for western Maryland has been scheduled from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 16, at the Hagerstown Community College, CLR111, 11400 Robinwood Drive, Hagerstown, MD 21742.

Authorized by the Water Quality Improvement Act of 1998, Maryland's nutrient management regulations include requirements for most agricultural operations in the state, people who apply nutrients to both agricultural and non-agricultural land, and Maryland-certified nutrient management consultants, who will be required to develop nutrient management plans based on both soil nitrogen and phosphorus.

In May 1999, an expanded 34-member Nutrient Management Advisory Committee — composed of agricultural, government, and environmental interests — completed the first draft of the regulations. Six regional public information meetings were held in May and June to explain the regulations, answer questions, and receive comments from the public. Approximately 450 people attended the meetings, and their comments, as well as additional comments submitted in writing, were considered during the development of the final regulations.

For more information or copies of the regulations, those interested may also contact MDA at 410-841-5959.

Guest Editorial:

Politicians Getting Nostalgic Over The Family Farm

By C. David Kelly
AFBF assistant director of news services

The scenes are as much a part of the American election process as snow falling in New Hampshire and candidates cozying up to voters in the local coffee shop. For the past several months in Iowa, presidential candidates have stood on a bale of hay trying to portray themselves as champions of the family farmer.

Candidates are playing upon the emotions of voters by tapping into the nostalgia of yesteryear when the family farm defined Iowa. Just 40 percent of Iowans live in rural areas. Des Moines and Cedar Rapids — not Oelwein and Shenandoah — are the real targets of candidates.

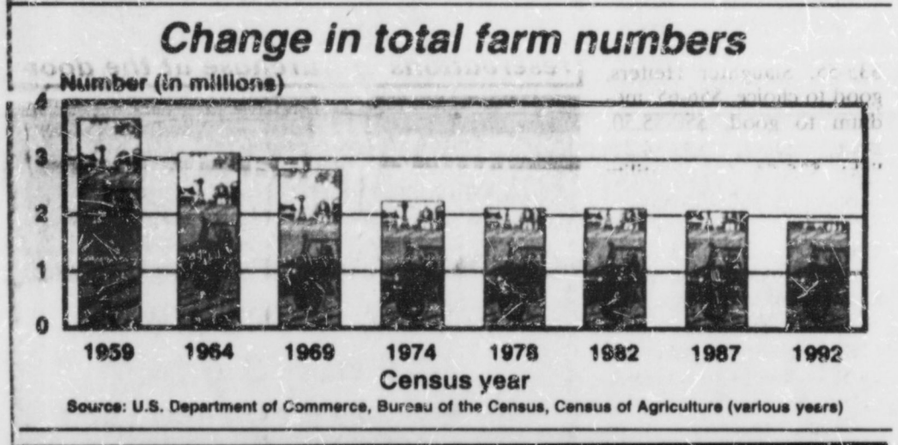
Equating the family farmer with nostalgia is a sad commentary to what's happening in rural America. Months of economic turmoil have forced many life-long farmers to consider occupations off the farm. The temptation of leaving the corn and soybean fields behind for a more secure 9-to-5 job is too good for many farmers to pass up.

Unless Congress acts to achieve a family-friendly farm policy, the family farm will become but a Norman Rockwell-like memory to American society.

American Farm Bureau Federation president Bob Stallman worries that unless Congress acts in a thoughtful, thorough way, the costly and tragic trend toward diminished family farms could continue. Stallman, a rice and cattle producer from Texas, stressed that Congress needs to deliver on promises made when the 1996 Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act became law. Easing the ever-growing burden of regulations and the opening of world markets — unfulfilled promises contained in the FAIR Act — would help alleviate many of the pressures being felt by today's producers.

Stallman said increased market access across the globe is vital to the long-term stability of the U.S. agricultural industry. He also emphasized that America's ability to feed and clothe a growing world population is diminished as we lose more farmers.

Once the family farm is gone, it's gone forever. Politicians may tap into the warm and fuzzy feelings brought on by such photo opportunities as sitting on a bale of hay and chatting with a group of reporters. Most family farmers, however, are not noticing. They are too busy trying to prevent a precious piece of Americana from dying a slow, painful death.



LAP Deadline Extended By FSA

The Livestock Assistance Program (LAP) deadline has been extended to Friday, Feb. 11. Anyone with a 40% loss on his or her pasture may be eligible.

Under the Crop Disaster Program, farmers may be eligible for payments for 1999 crop losses due to the drought for insured crops, uninsured crops, and noninsurable crops. The deadline to sign up is Friday, Feb. 25.

For these and other programs, interested persons may contact the Farm Service Agency at 301-334-6954 in Garrett County and 301-777-1536 in Allegany County.

AFBF Lists Consumer Trends

The American Farm Bureau Federation predicts that as science lends farmers more tools to assist in food production, consumer demand will lead to more products that not only taste better, but prevent diseases, use new parts of traditional commodities to make our old favorites, and fit the fast pace of our lives.

Functional Foods

Fruits and vegetables are not only a primary component of a balanced diet, but the use of new technology also places these dietary staples in the category of disease prevention. According to Dr. Clare Hasler, executive director of Functional Foods for Health, a University of Illinois program, producers are more interested in "breeding plants for higher varieties of crops that have added value of reducing risk because not only will it benefit the public but it's also marketable." Hasler pointed out current research enabling tomatoes to have higher amounts of lycopene, a cancer-risk reduction agent. In addition, companies are now marketing margarine with enhanced phytosterols, which lower cholesterol levels significantly.

Ethanol: Auto Fuel and Body Fuel

As Americans grow more interested in the benefits of a healthy environment and a healthy body, they also are learning that the nutrients left over from the milling process used to develop ethanol, a clean-burning fuel, can be made into a variety of healthy and common food products. The Ethanol Producers and Consumers group offers information on how distillers' grains, which are left over when ethanol is made from grain starch, can be used to make muffins, breads, cookies, and cakes. U.S. grain exporters also are looking into distributing processed distillers' grains products, like granola bars, in developing countries that lack the facilities necessary to prepare whole grain. For recipes, interested persons may go to www.ethanolmt.org.

Fully Cooked Beef Products — in Minutes!

The Texas Beef Council and the Beef Checkoff program have partnered in a promising effort to ensure that today's busy families can get all the nutrients and taste they expect from a fully cooked beef meal, but in much less time. In an era where 80 percent of our meals are made in 15 minutes or less, heat-and-eat beef meals are growing more popular. Companies like Sam's Club and Wal-Mart now offer precooked brisket, pot roast, shredded beef, and even fully cooked burgers in their meat cases. For more information, those interested may look up www.txbeef.org.

Wool Production Across Nation Down in 1999

Shorn wool production across the United States during 1999 was 46.5 million pounds, down 5% from 1998, according to the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS). Sheep and lambs shorn totaled 6.15 million head, a decrease of 4% from 1998. The average price paid for wool sold in 1999 was $0.38 per pound for a total value of $17.9 million dollars, down 39% from $29.4 million dollars in 1998.

Mohair production in the the same as 1998 but down slightly from 1997.

Dairy Product Price Highlights Reported By USDA

Cheddar cheese prices received for US 40-pound blocks averaged $1.14 per pound for the week ending Jan. 22, as reported by the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS), Agricultural Statistics Board, U.S. Department of Agriculture. The price per pound decreased 2 cents from the previous week. The price for US 500-pound barrels adjusted to 39% moisture averaged $1.12 per pound, down 2.5 cents from the previous week.

Butter prices received for 25-kilogram and 68-pound boxes, meeting USDA Grade AA standards, averaged 90.1 cents per pound for the week ending Jan. 22. The U.S. price per pound decreased 0.4 cents from the previous week.

Nonfat dry milk prices received for bag, tote, and tanker sales meeting USDA Extra Grade or USPH Grade A standards averaged $1.01 per pound for the week ending Jan. 22. The U.S. price per pound increased 0.1 cent from the previous week.

Dry whey prices received for bag, tote and tanker sales meeting USDA Extra Grade standards averaged 18 cents per pound for the week ending Jan. 22. The U.S. price per pound decreased 0.6 cent from the previous week.

Sarbanes Renews Efforts To Help Maryland's Family Farmers

Senator Paul S. Sarbanes has renewed his efforts to help Maryland's family farmers who were hit last year by a "double whammy" of drought and low commodity prices, by calling for a new examination of America's farm pricing system and farm disaster assistance programs.

In testimony at a hearing held to discuss the "Consequences of Failed Farm Policy," Sarbanes told a gathering of Midwest farm state senators and farm representatives that "farming in the state of Maryland has been hit very badly in recent years. We are seeing a sharp decline in the number of family farms, in part as a result of the terrible impact from the drought and low commodity prices — what I call the double whammy hurting our family farmers."

Sarbanes spoke to the assembled group just a day after the Maryland Department of Agriculture released information showing that Maryland farmers lost nearly $92 million in 1999 because of the drought and declining crop prices.

"The problems facing our farmers across the country need to be addressed quickly and in a comprehensive way. We need to have a new examination of our farm programs. We need a better disaster program and a better commodity price program. Unless we do it, we are going to continue to see the erosion of the farm community and particularly the family farm," Sarbanes said.

Sarbanes added, following the hearing, that "in this time of economic prosperity, it is truly unfortunate that our farmers are not sharing in this bounty. Clearly something must be done."

In a related development, Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman revealed details of the Clinton administration's two-year farm plan, which was formally announced as part of the FY 2001 budget. According to reports, the $11.5 billion farm plan will include income assistance to producers of crops that generate revenue less than their national five-year averages; new conservation benefits; crop insurance; and new "economic opportunity" programs. Sarbanes said that he would have to "wait and see" the details of this proposal before commenting.

Small Farmers,

Cultivating For The Future

by Bernice Kepple, farm editor

I guess it's because of all the cold weather lately, but I've been thinking about Grandma's coal and wood cookstove, which was the center of the kitchen and the heart of the whole house. The smell of baking bread or pies wafted throughout the house and welcomed anyone who opened the door to come inside out of the cold. In addition to cooking the food, it dried clothing, heated such things as sad irons and curling irons, and warmed the kitchen and surrounding rooms. My own experience of cooking on a wood or coal stove can't compare, as it was only making mountain pies in the Franklin fireplace, or cooking something on top of the heating stove which warmed part of our house whenever the electricity was out.

These beautiful old cookstoves feed the nostalgia movement today, and many country women have these antique stoves in their kitchens for decoration only, but what a thrill it would be to actually use one for cooking. Today we'd have an advantage over women in Grandma's era because we could use it when we wanted, and use a gas or electric stove or even a microwave oven when it was inconvenient or the weather was too hot to use the antique stove.

The heat in these old stoves doesn't appear instantly each morning, though. Countryside and Small Stock Journal writer Deborah Moore explains that she starts her evening meal around 4 p.m., then lets the fire go out, and the coals are ready to be knocked down into the ash pan by 9. Then since she doesn't want to mess with laying a fire in the morning when it's cold, she does that at night, clears the stove top, fills the coffee pot and is ready for a new day. The first thing she does in the morning is light the stove. While the kindling is catching, she feeds her cat, then adds three or four pieces of wood. She checks the temperature outside just for her general knowledge, and adds larger logs to the fire. She says next she puts the coffee pot over the fire box. It takes about 20 minutes for the water to boil and another 20 minutes to perk, and by that time the coffee is ready and the room is warm.

Antique stoves are becoming more and more difficult to find, especially those in working condition. I found a web site which offers some beautifully restored and ornamented old wood and coal ranges. The site, at www.antiquestoves.com/Y2K-cookstove/, also offers a pamphlet about repairing wood cookstoves and an antique appliance classified section. New, old-fashioned-looking reproduction cookstoves are also available, like Moore's Enterprise King from Lehman's. Her new stove has a warming oven overhead, a tip-down butter warmer, a washable porcelain finish with thermostat, and an optional water jacket. The firebox has a side lifter lid and easily takes a 20-inch log. And, she says, it looks good.

These antique stoves have already lasted for generations, and with proper care both these old stoves and brand new ones will last for many generations more since there is so little that can go wrong with them. Learning to cook on one involves regulating the draft and using the right kind of wood to get the necessary amount of heat. The temperature can't be set at 350% and forgotten. The biggest challenge is keeping the oven heat even. Unlike a gas or electric stove, when something is put into the oven to cook and the temperature drops as the food absorbs the heat, nothing kicks in to compensate. What to do? Feed the fire wood that will burn quickly and offer more heat.

As the food begins to cook and its internal temperature rises, a longer, slower-burning piece of wood will maintain the heat. The story in our family was that Grandma knew her cookstove so well, she knew just how much of what kind of wood to use to bake an angel food cake, which I guess was quite an accomplishment. Range top cooking is similar to that on a gas or electric stove, but there is more room available since the entire surface is hot, not just four little burners. No, those circles are not burners, they're lids and can be lifted so more wood can be added with a lid lifter!

Finding recipes and cooking tips for use on wood and coal burning cookstoves isn't easy. Many excellent books are out of print, but since they may be found in libraries, I'm listing the titles and authors. The list begins with Barbara's Modern Woodstove Cookbook by Barbara Leckenby, out of print; Cooking on a Woodburning Stove: 150 Down Home Recipes by Andrew Addkison, out of print; The Country Journal Woodburners' Cookbook: How to Cook & Bake and Save Energy On An Airtight Stove by Janet Chadwick, out of print; How to Heat & Eat With Wood Burning Stoves by Willah Weddan, out of print; and Rediscovering the Woodburning Cookstove by Robert George Bobrowski, out of print.

Still in print and available is Woodstove Cookery, At Home on the Range by Jane Cooper. Her book is a practical guide to the selection, proper use, and maintenance of wood cookstoves, and is filled with useful tips and hundreds of recipes to make woodstove cooking a joy. It is available from www.countrysidemag.com or the Ruth Enlow Library of Garrett County.

In the past, the life of the entire family revolved around the cookstove, not the television, so if you're lucky enough to own one of these great antiques, give cooking a try. You might find your family hanging around just to see what comes out of the oven instead of watching their favorite show on TV.

Consolidations Of Ag Industry Before Congress

Farm-state senators, university professors, administration officials, and farmers gathered in Washington, D.C., last week to discuss one of the most contentious agricultural issues this year: industry consolidation.

The "accelerated pace of (agriculture) consolidations, mergers, and acquisitions is one of the most hotly debated issues in farm groups across the country," Illinois Farm Bureau president Ron Warfield told the Senate Agriculture Committee. According to Warfield, consolidation and concentration within the U.S. agricultural sector is having adverse economic impacts on U.S. family farmers and "Congress should review existing statutes, develop legislation where necessary, and strengthen enforcement" activities.

"Producers need assurance that markets are free and open, and competitive, and transparent," he said.

The hearing was the third in a series of Senate hearings examining the impact of agribusiness concentration on both producers and consumers. Last week's hearing examined the structure and functions of the Grain Inspection, Packers and Stockyards Administration (GIPSA), which was formed to secure a productive and competitive marketplace for U.S. agricultural products.

Committee Chairman Dick Lugar (R-Ind.) said that existing antitrust laws should be "vigilantly enforced." But the senator acknowledged that consolidation has provided fewer marketing opportunities to farmers and conceded that the industry trend is likely to continue.

"Large structural changes are occurring not only in the ownership of farms and their size, but also in the potential buyers," Lugar said. "Pack and vertical integration has been enormous. As a result, marketing chances for farmers have diminished severely."

Warfield, an Illinois corn and soybean farmer and American Farm Bureau Federation board member, said Congress should ensure that competition remains in the agriculture sector. Congress should explore legislation to expand the Agriculture Department's role, in consultation with the Justice Department, regarding the approval of agriculture mergers and acquisitions, he said.

A recent study by a group of Purdue University economists recommended that farmers join in marketing cooperatives to gain better bargaining power with packers.

Professors Kenneth Foster and Philip Paarlberg, two of the study's authors, also testified at the hearing. They offered two suggestions to give farmers an equal voice on prices. The first would be the creation of an alliance of farmers producing 300,000 to 500,000 head a year — enough to influence prices. The second would be the creation of "marketing orders" to set prices in a certain region.

While acknowledging the increasing pace of industry consolidation, Kansas senator Pat Roberts (R) warned that quick action might impede the progress of farmer-owned businesses that would compete head-to-head with larger processors.

AFBF's Mary Kay Thatcher, deputy director of the Washington, D.C., office, said Farm Bureau is working with a bipartisan group of Senate Agriculture Committee members to create comprehensive legislation to address the concentration issue. Farm Bureau hopes to have a bipartisan bill introduced in the next two weeks that would call for:

- USDA to evaluate all mergers and acquisitions in the agribusiness sector and to recommend approval or disapproval;
- resources to expand GIPSA's monitoring and investigation of the competitive implications of structural changes in the meat packing industry;
- an assistant attorney general with responsibility for oversight and coordination of antitrust agricultural matters;
- an increase in the Justice Department's staff in the transportation, energy, and agriculture sectors;
- removal of the confidentiality clause in livestock production contracts and grain production contracts — except to protect legitimate trade secrets;
- producer reparations for predatory or unfair practices of packers;
- detailed information on corporate structure, strategic alliances, joint ventures, etc., for all agribusiness entities with annual sales in excess of $100 million annually;
- similar protections for contract poultry growers as livestock producers;
- loan guarantees to farmer-owned projects that add value and are situated in urban or urbanizing areas; and
- a statutory trust for the protection of cash sellers to livestock dealers.

"The continued weakness of the U.S. farm economy warrants timely congressional review," Warfield said. "Our goal is to make antitrust statutes more relevant for today's agriculture."

Estate Planning: Financial/Organizational Structure of the Farm

I would like to extend an invitation to you for participation in a very important two-series seminar. The two seminars will be held on Thursday, March 2 & 9, 2000, from 10:00 a.m. to noon at the Garrett Community College, Continuing Education Building, Room 305. Criss Kepple Sweitzer, attorney, Eiswert, Janes, & Sweitzer, will be the instructor. Estate planning seems to be one area of our business management that we know is important, but will keep putting it on the "back burner" of things to do. Also, we tend to think that only older people should be concerned, which is definitely a mistaken belief. Over the years I have seen tragedies happen and the family says, "How I wish we had a legal estate plan."

The first session will cover the advantages and disadvantages of the following entities: Sole Ownership, Limited Partnership, General Partnership, Limited Liability Partnership, Limited Liability Company, Sub Chapter S Corporation, and Corporation. The second session will be directed toward individual farm decision making on which entity best suits your business situation and the steps necessary to complete the legal plan.

Reservations are due by February 25, 2000. The room at the college is limited to 50 people, so make your reservations now by calling the Extension Office at 301-334-6960.

Most Profitable Dairy Herds in Pennsylvania

The most profitable herds in Pennsylvania during 1998 were those with between 20,000 and 22,000 pounds of milk per cow. Those 229 farms in the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's Farm Management Service Program averaged 86 cows per farm and had net accrual income of $2.15 per hundredweight of milk, compared to net income of $1.95 per hundredweight for 314 herds with 17,000 to 19,000 pounds of milk, and net income of $1.69 per hundredweight for 112 herds with more than 23,000 pounds of milk per cow. The higher producing herds tended to show higher investment per cow, $10,438, compared to $8,656 for 20,000 to 22,000-pound herds and $7,975 for the 17,000- to 19,000-pound herds.

Grain Seeded In Maryland & U.S. Unchanged Or Down

Winter wheat acres in Maryland planted for harvest in 2000 is forecast at 215,000 acres, unchanged from acres planted in 1999, but down 10,000 acres from 1998.

Across the United States, winter wheat seeded for harvest in 2000 is expected to total 42.9 million acres, down 1% from 1999. This is the smallest area planted since 1972. Class breakdowns approximate: hard red winter wheat, 30.3 million; soft red winter wheat, 9.2 million; and white winter wheat, 3.4 million.

Seeding started last August in the Pacific Northwest, some mountain states, and Minnesota. Progress moved steadily forward through the fall, only slowing in some locations as farmers waited for rain. Seeding should finish sometime in February in California. About 98% of the U.S. acreage was seeded by Dec. 1. Most remaining intended area is in the Southeast, California, and Texas.

Domestic Poultry Ready-to-Cook Weight Up 1 %

The National Agricultural Statistics Service reports that poultry certified wholesome during December (ready-to-cook weight) totaled 2.92 billion pounds, up 1 percent from the amount certified in December 1998. Updated totals for November 1999 show that 2.94 billion pounds were certified.

The preliminary total live weight of poultry inspected during December 1999 was 3.95 billion pounds, up fractionally from a year ago.

Inspections included 3.31 billion pounds of young chickens, up slightly; 75.3 million pounds of mature chickens, down 1%; 549 million pounds of turkeys, unchanged; and 14.6 million pounds of ducks, up 7% from December 1998.

Young chickens slaughtered during December 1999 averaged 5.04 pounds per bird, up 1% from 4.98 pounds per bird in December 1998. The average live weight of mature chickens was 5.14 pounds per bird, up 2% from a year ago.

Kitzmiller Store, Beachy Photo Collection Named Md. Treasures

Designations Could Aid Regional Revitalization Efforts

Two of Garrett County's many historic resources, the Kitzmiller Company Store and the Leo Beachy Photography Collection, have been named Maryland Treasures by the Maryland Commission for Celebration 2000. Over 400 historic buildings, sites, objects, and documents around the state were nominated for the designation, including a dozen located in Garrett County.

The store and photo collection were among 182 nominees selected as Maryland Treasures, and both are now eligible to compete for non-matching historic preservation grants through the commission's Save Maryland Treasures program. These grants will be awarded to selected Treasures on April 29 at a statewide historic preservation conference in Frederick.

"Save Maryland's Treasures is an official project of the national Save America's Treasures program of the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the White House Millennium Council," said Louise Hayman, executive director of the Maryland Commission for Celebration 2000. The program is designed to raise awareness for the historic buildings, sites, objects, and documents that are unique to Maryland and considered endangered and in need of preservation."

The state's Commission for Celebration is a private/public partnership, Hayman added, with the state supplying the commission's operating expenses while private sponsorships and donations provide funding to sponsor the majority of the many programs and grants the commission is making available.

As well as bringing attention to preserving the Kitzmiller Company Store and the Leo Beachy Photography Collection, the Maryland Treasures designations could play an important part in countywide revitalization efforts, according to Glenn Tolbert, Oakland's Main Street Program manager. Tolbert nominated the store and the photo collection for the Maryland Treasures designation, along with several other local historic resources. "We're looking to develop an interest and funding resources to promote heritage tourism for the entire county as a regional tourism destination," he said.

NAMED MARYLAND TREASURES - The Kitzmiller Company Store and the Leo Beachy Photography Collection have been designated Maryland Treasures through the Save Maryland Treasures program of the Maryland Commission for Celebration 2000. The Kitzmiller Company Store, shown above as it stands vacant today, began operating around 1900. Known as the Vindex Supply Company at one point, the store served Kitzmiller residents for over 50 years as an integral part of the community's once-thriving coal industry, which residents and officials envision as a potential tourism drawing card for the region. The Beachy collection is based in Grantsville and is maintained by Maxine Broadwater, Beachy's niece. A lifelong county resident until his premature death at the age of 51 in 1924, Beachy recorded scenes of life on the mountaintop at the turn of the century. His story will be featured in Images 2000, a Maryland Public Television documentary slated to air in March. Shown above right is "Bubbles," a Beachy photograph which shows the artist's whimsical side.

tion," he said.

"Visitors want to know that they can come here on vacation for a week and have the opportunity to get into their car and find a variety of experiences close to where they're staying. We want to promote a bigger picture of the whole area; if we can capitalize on initial drawing points, such as Kitzmiller and its historic Company Store, we could spread attract more tourist dollars to the county while at the same time spreading the increased spending around so everyone benefits.

"My primary interest is Oakland, of course," Tolbert continued, "but to focus strictly on one town could slight other areas of interest that may draw visitors who might then choose to visit Oakland as well. It's a regional tourism concept that has worked well in other places, and has a great deal of potential for Garrett County."

Kitzmiller Store

"I can't tell you how excited we are about the selection of the Kitzmiller Company Store as a Maryland Treasure," said Nancy Brady, the town's mayor. "It's going to be a great boost to our efforts to revitalize our community without transforming its essential character," she stated, because the town's revitalization efforts are geared around preserving and enhancing existing historic and natural resources. "We're putting out feelers to tap into the large variety of grant monies that are out there that can help us, and the Maryland Treasures designation is a big first step toward success.

"The Kitzmiller Planning Group has helped us begin a community effort to revitalize the town and surrounding area in several different but complementary ways," Brady said. "One of these is the idea of presenting the town as a coal mining history center. We're looking at restoring the Company Store and perhaps operating it as a museum, as well as expanding the concept to promote the town as a heritage coal mining tourism destination."

Kitzmiller was once home to a thriving coal industry, as well as a linen factory. In addition to the Company Store, operated by a mining company as well as several local families over its lifetime, the town had a hotel, theater, bank, several stores, and many homes. Coal played an important part in everyday life, and the Kitzmiller Mine Rescue Team won a national championship when it competed in the rescue trials of 1951. In addition, during its earlier days the town was the site of a thriving sawmill, and a woolen mill which is still standing.

Brady and Mikal McCartney of the Garrett County Community Action Economic Development office undertook an effort last year to assist the town's planning group in formulating a heritage tourism development plan. Their concept includes that of a restored Company Store serving as a centerpiece of an educational tour that could include a coal mining site, a company house, an oral history center, and related sites of interest. It's conceivable that an associated influx of tourist dollars could lead to the establishment of successful support services, such as bed and breakfast accommodations, a small restaurant or several cafés, and craft and gift shops.

Kitzmiller's coal mining heritage tourism concept, which could be paired with the town's lumbering and sawmill heritage, is one of several avenues the Planning Group is pursuing to help revitalize the area. Also under consideration is the promotion of eco-tourism, which would emphasize the town and its location along the banks of the Potomac River as a destination with opportunities for flyfishing, camping, hiking, biking, canoeing, river floats, guided tours, day excursions, and youth camps. A third area of revitalization efforts is an envisioned technology resource center in the town, perhaps housed in a former church building.

"We're hoping the Maryland Treasures selection gives us a boost toward Kitzmiller being designated a Neighborhood Revitalization Area. Oakland already has that designation, which enables towns to apply for additional funding and assistance through the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development," said McCartney.

"Our overall objective is to help the community of Kitzmiller, and the surrounding region, realize its potential utilizing the natural, historic, and most importantly, people resources that are already there waiting to be tapped into," added Brady.

Leo Beachy Collection

"I'm happy people are interested in the past," commented Leo Beachy's niece, Maxine Broadwater, a Grantsville resident who has amassed and preserved a collection of over 2,000 glass plate negatives of the estimated 10,000 photographs taken by her uncle. "It's quite an honor for my uncle's legacy. With Matt Novak's help and encouragement, four books have been published that show approximately 450 prints of those negatives, and if we are lucky enough to get a grant we'd like to print the rest in some format."

Tolbert agreed, and added that he "hopes there is money available to help preserve and publicize the collection, which is a true historic treasure, not only of Garrett County, but also of the state of Maryland and of rural Appalachia as well. Perhaps someday it will be possible to publish a large coffee table book of the photos, and put more mechanisms in place to sell prints by hanging framed

Hurd Teaches Tibetan Refugee Youth To Express Emotions Through Poetry

By Liz Douglas Medcalf
FSU News Service

I saw my mother in my dreams,
but she disappeared as I hugged her.
Miss my parents so much,
like flowers miss sunlight.

--From "Loneliness," by Tenzin Kunphen, Class 12, Tibetan Home Foundation School.

Many of the children who attend the Tibetan Homes Foundation School in northern India have already seen enough horrors for a lifetime. After they met Dr. Barbara Hurd, a Frostburg State University English professor and a Garrett County resident, they had a new way of expressing the emotions they carried with them. Hurd spent five weeks at the school last fall teaching poetry to 8th through 12th graders and came back with a new appreciation for the Tibetan people.

The students, who speak and write mostly English in class, range from orphans of those who died struggling for Tibet's freedom to the children, born in India, of refugees who fled years ago. They live at the school apart from their parents, most of whom are still in Tibet, deceased, or living elsewhere in India or Nepal. The school is part of the effort to keep Tibet's culture and identity alive outside China.

SHARING THE POWER OF WORDS — FSU professor Barbara Hurd is pictured at left as she works with Lhamo Tsering, a young Tibetan refugee, on a poem. For five weeks last fall, Hurd explored the power of expression through words with several refugee youth now residing in northern India. The children and teenagers have experienced shocking violence and terror in their short lives, and Hurd helped them work through some of those ordeals by putting their emotions and feelings into poetry.

Hurd's link with the Mussoorie, India, school of about 1,800 students began when she came across the book The Art of Exile, edited by Sarah Lukas, which shows a collection of paintings by Tibetan refugee children. The art they created inspired her to do the same thing with poetry.

Hurd wrote to Lukas, who put her in touch with some people who could help. A year of letter-writing later, Hurd had approval, a grant, and a sabbatical. The Sprenger-Lang Foundation, a private arts education organization, provided $5,300 to support the Tibetan Children's Poetry Project. Officials from the school readily agreed to let her come and teach creative writing to its older students.

When Hurd arrived in late September, still adjusting to the high altitude of the Himalayan foothills, she was thrown into the classroom immediately. During what she thought would be a preparatory meeting, the headmaster informed her that one of the teachers was busy and she could teach his classes all day. Fortunately, she was carrying materials she intended to use in the meeting.

She started by sharing letters, poems, and pictures she collected from middle and high school students she had taught the previous summer at the Mountain Lake Writers' Festival at Deep Creek Lake. She had asked those students, most from Garrett County, to write about their daily lives, the kind of music they listened to, their schools, and their friends. Her Tibetan students were thrilled, and Hurd brought back letters in answer, starting up pen pal relationships and poetry exchanges between her groups of students.

For several days she taught classes, then spent the balance of her time in after-school poetry clubs. In the students' early poetry addressing their exile and the situation in Tibet, Hurd noticed much of the same kind of language used to express their anger against the Chinese.

"Some of them have seen their families or friends shot, monasteries destroyed. For all of them, violent persecution and gratitude for the safety of communities in exile are part of their cultural stories," Hurd said.

Many of the students made the dangerous journey from Tibet on foot across the Himalayan Mountains. Even the students who were born in India had the stories of their country's struggle instilled in them by constant retelling. Hurd found herself working to get past the cultural stories — and the collective rage many of these children feel against the Chinese — to coax her students to express their individual feelings. Working one-on-one helped new emotion to emerge in the poetry. What was uncovered was more sorrow than rage. Many of the poems spoke of children missing their mothers, while others confronted some horrible moments they had lived through.

When I Was Seven

When I was seven
I left my motherland.
For a month
we walked by many mountains.

My mother was with me
She had taken all our packs

Our oldest leader was about seventy.
The Chinese had used electric shock, whipped her with a belt.

She fell behind us and when we turned back to help, we found she had fallen.

We asked her to get up.
She asked that we leave her alone.

And then we left her.

By Tenzing Sangmo, Class 9A

For children who have experienced so much in their young lives, poetry became a way to express feelings they hadn't acknowledged before.

"You can say things in poems that sometimes you can't say any other way," one student said.

"I'm very thankful to you as you gave me the opportunity to describe my feelings through poetry," wrote another student. Hurd said many of her students expressed the same sentiments, and she even had students from other classes — and one from another school — give her poetry, sometimes passing her sheets of paper between classes.

"They're not given much of an opportunity to express their emotions freely," the professor said.

Hurd plans to collect her students' poetry into a book, along with photos of her students and pictures taken by two professional photographers who accompanied her. She said she hopes the book will increase awareness of the Tibetan plight, the tenacity of the human spirit, and the continued need to advocate for human rights. She also hopes it will assist schools such as these which help children deal with being uprooted from their homelands.

Anyone interested in learning more about the project, sponsoring a Tibetan child, or starting a pen pal or poetry exchange with Tibetan young people may call Dr. Hurd at the FSU Department of English at 301-687-4238.

"I feel hugely grateful to all the people who made this happen," Hurd said. "Especially the kids, who were willing to tell their stories."

IT WASN'T ALL SADNESS that Tibetan children expressed in their poetry during their studies with Professor Barbara Hurd last fall. The educator, a resident of Garrett County, also enjoyed pleasant times with the young writers, as evidenced here. Hurd said she is "hugely grateful" to all the people who helped make possible her trip to India, as well as to the children who were willing to tell their stories.

copies in libraries, visitor centers, and other high-profile locations."

Tolbert has been working for the past several months on the upcoming Maryland Public Television documentary Images 2000, tentatively slated to air in March. The program will examine the history of the state through the collections of Beachy and other renowned Maryland photographers. "Images 2000 will open with Beachy's story, which will feature a number of local sites and personalities," he explained. "A web site is being created that will operate in conjunction with the documentary, and perhaps it could serve as a venue for selling prints from the collection over the Internet."

"I just can't say how thrilled I am over this designation," Broadwater added. "So far I've been doing the preservation and printing mostly on my own, which I'm not complaining about. Even if we don't get grant money from this, I'm very happy and proud. I didn't know Leo Beachy, who died when I was 2 years old, but his writing and photos make me feel like he's working beside me today."

Other Local Nominations

Other Garrett County sites nominated as Maryland Treasures, but not selected, were the Fort Pendleton archeological site near Gorman, the Bloomington Viaduct, Stanton's Mill and the Casselman Bridge in Grantsville, the Bicentennial Tree in Garrett State Forest, the Oakland Train Station, the Garrett County Courthouse, and the towns of Kitzmiller, Mountain Lake Park, and Oakland.

The Save Maryland Treasures Program is made possible with funding from Preservation Maryland, the Maryland Historical Trust, and the Commission for Celebration 2000. Sponsors of the program are Columbia Gas of Maryland, the Mercantile-Safe Deposit and Trust Company, and the Baltimore County Commission on Arts and Sciences.

TRAILBLAZERS
by Emily Cosner
Reporter

The January meeting of the Trailblazers 4-H Club took place at Yough Glades Elementary School. Members were reminded about the Achievement Night program, which will take place on Saturday, April 8, at Southern High School. Emily Green and Sarah Cosner volunteered to lead pledges for the program.

The club members signed a card for fellow Trailblazer Cody Ferguson, who underwent surgery at Johns Hopkins Hospital recently. Members will also be putting together a gift package for him.

Ski forms for the Friday, Feb. 4, 4-H Ski Day at the Wisp, were handed out. The yearly calendar was planned out, which includes our camping trip for July at Swallow Falls.

Record books were collected and project records were handed out. Club members will go bowling in March, and Ryan Sines and Erin Rush volunteered to check on prices for bowling. Following the meeting, Emily, Sarah, and Jennifer Cosner served refreshments.

The next meeting of the Trailblazers 4-H Club is set for 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 17, at Yough Glades Elementary School. Members will be giving speeches, either prepared, extemporaneous, or radio spot.

When Tomorrow Starts Without Me

When tomorrow starts without me, and I am not there to see,
If the sun should rise and find your eyes all filled with tears for me;
I wish so much you wouldn't cry the way you did today,
While thinking of the many things, we didn't get to say.

I know how much you love me, as much as I love you.
And each time that you think of me, I know you'll miss me too.
But when tomorrow starts without me, please try to understand,
That an Angel came and called my name and took me by the hand
and said my place was ready in Heaven far above,
And that I'd have to leave behind all those I dearly love.

But as I turned to walk away a tear fell from my eye.
For all life, I'd always thought I didn't want to die.
I had so much to live for, so much yet to do,
It seemed almost impossible that I was leaving you.

So when tomorrow starts without me, don't think we're far apart,
For every time you think of me, I'm right here in your heart.

Urinary Control Problems: Common in Many Women

More than 13 million Americans experience urinary control problems, with 85% being women between ages 30 and 59. Problems range from minor, inconvenient urine leakage from the bladder to sudden urges to urinate. Medical terms for these problems include irritable bladder, urinary incontinence, stress incontinence, and urge incontinence. The exact cause of bladder control difficulties cannot always be determined. A recent report suggests that nighttime bed wetting during childhood is a strong predictor of "urge incontinence" in middle-aged women. Urinary tract infections and conditions such as prolapse of the uterus can be contributing factors.

Urinary control problems often can be treated and/or eliminated. Bladder training, pelvic muscle exercises, and relaxation techniques may be helpful. Two prescription medicines are approved to inhibit bladder contractions and delay the desire to urinate. Both are taken by mouth. For persons who do not respond to medications, a relatively new procedure called sacral nerve stimulation may be helpful.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Dwaine and Lisa Platter, Smithsburg, entertained Sunday in celebration of the 10th birthday of their son Adam. Present for the luncheon and party were Sheli and Ashlin Gray, Hanover; Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa.; Julius and Karmen Carey, Frostburg; Jim, Donna, and Tim Glotfelty; and Adam's sister, Amanda.

Jim Glotfelty underwent successful procedures to remedy atrial fibrillation at Monongalia General Hospital in Morgantown last week.

Ida Reckner has been confined to her home with the flu the past two weeks, and is now much improved.

The Sussman household was treated by a weekend long visit from Kelsey Morrison and her little sister Paige, who is 3 years old, while her parents, Kyle and Val, spent the weekend with a friend from Canaan Valley. Paige was excited about her first sleep-over. My girls were excited about having to babysit her, especially to help her use the toilet like a big girl. They did a great job with her and had a ball with Kelsey. But everything good must come to an end, and on Sunday after a short visit with Kyle and Val, they loaded the van and departed. Oh yes, we also had their big black Lab, Murphy, with us for the weekend. They headed back to their new home in Delaware.

Caitlin attended a birthday party for her best pal, Jamie Haydel. The party featured a trip to the ice rink in Cumberland. Jamie's mother Sue got a little too fancy on her skates and ended up breaking her wrist.

The highlight of our weekend was Claire's eighth grade basketball game against Westmar, even though the girls lost by only one point. It was quite a thrilling game. Claire scored her first basket. In fact, she looked like a real player. She lost the look she had, which was that of a scared deer. She also picked up three rebounds and had two assists. I was so proud of her. She just needed a bit of confidence.

It was a full day at Northern gym, as after Claire's game, Matthew Bass played for the seventh grade team. Following Matthew's game, another cousin, Robbie Glotfelty, played for the eighth grade boys' team.

It now certainly seems like some real winter weather. The last week we got some snow and more winter, so Lloyd was kept busy blowing our lane and Rodney's lane out so we were able to finally get out. It is just like the good old days. There were more cars and trucks stuck in the snow all week. Those drifts can be vicious.

Rodney and Marci got out for a quick trip to College Park to catch the Maryland-North Carolina State basketball game. It was a real thriller, with the Terps pulling out a win in the final minutes of the game. Marci and Rodney also visited the National Gallery of Art in Washington. Blakely spent the weekend with her grandmother Ruth, and the boys spent the weekend with the Bass family.

Well, this week again I received no calls with any local news to report. I must say I get pretty discouraged, and if I don't soon get some cooperation I will have to call it quits.

UNDER THE AUSPICES of its Partners in Education program, the Maryland National Guard signed a 50 percent tuition waiver agreement with Frostburg State University at a recent ceremony there. Maryland National Guard representatives Lt. Col. Milton P. Davis and Col. Carole A. Briscoe, and Frostburg State University representatives Dr. Catherine R. Gira, president, and Roger Bruszewski, vice president of finance and administration, signed the agreement. The university will provide active Maryland National Guard members who are Maryland residents a 50 percent tuition waiver for up to six credits per semester. Maryland National Guard members who are not Maryland residents will be charged tuition at standard non-resident rates; however, they will be eligible to receive a discount equivalent to 50 percent of the Maryland resident tuition rate. For more information on how to "Get Your Degree Tuition-Free," persons may call 1-800-GO-GUARD or visit their local Maryland National Guard armory. Pictured from left above are: Davis, Bruszewski, Briscoe, and Gira.

Anthony Stewart Head

Q: Please tell me what Anthony Stewart Head of those Taster's Choice commercials is doing now. –E. Eldridge, Longview, Wash.

A: Only co-starring in one of the coolest shows on TV. Since 1997, Head – who turns 46 on Feb. 20 – has played dryly hilarious librarian Rupert Giles on The WB Network's critically acclaimed Buffy the Vampire Slayer.

The British stage veteran has inspired a passionate fan following on the Internet and even a "Giles drinking game" calculated to have players begging for a stake through the heart on the morning after an intense game.

Those Taster's Choice commercials, by the way, were inspired by a series of Nescafe commercials he and colleague Sharon Mughan did earlier in England. Both performers say they are amazed by the way viewers got caught up in the romantic "drama" of those commercials.

Trivia note: Head is the brother of singer-actor Murray Head (Sunday, Bloody Sunday).

Q: Am I correct in my recollection that Hal Holbrook starred in The Secret Storm, an old soap opera? –G. Hoeper, Neenah, Wis.

A: No, but you're close. Holbrook wasn't on Storm (CBS, 1954-74), but he did create the role of Grayling Dennis on another CBS soap, The Brighter Day (1954-62). Holbrook left the show in 1959.

Q: Whatever happened to Jason Biggs, who used to play on the CBS soap As the World Turns? He was very good! –Linda Hall, Sidney, N.Y.

A: You must have missed last year's hit movie comedy American Pie – recently released on video – in which the actor, now 21, played a boy who really, um, loved his pastry.

Biggs, who played Pete Wendall on ATWT (1994-95), is in two upcoming movies, Loser and Boys and Girls.

Q: If ever they make a movie about Ella Fitzgerald's life, I'd like to nominate S. Epatha Merkerson, who plays Lt. Anita Van Buren on NBC's Law & Order, for the title role. Every time I hear Ella sing, I picture Merkerson in my mind's eye. –Noel Christian, Sausalito, Calif.

A: The popcorn's on me if this ever happens because it sounds like a natural. Meanwhile, don't miss A&E Network's Biography of the real Fitzgerald on Monday, Feb. 14 – Valentine's Day!

Called Forever Ella, the profile includes performance clips and interviews with Quincy Jones and Rosemary Clooney, among others.

Q: Where can I write to actor Sam Wanamaker? –Deon Parsons, Jackson, Miss.

A: Sadly, you can't. Wanamaker died of cancer in 1993.

The gang's all here for Homicide TV movie

By Beverly Foster Seinberg
©TVData Features Syndicate

Andre Braugher

When NBC bigwigs approached Tom Fontana with the idea of a Homicide: Life on the Street TV movie, he says he was "indifferent" at first.

"I was at that point, I think, emotionally trying to let go of the show," recalls the executive producer of the acclaimed police drama series, which was canceled abruptly last year. "And I made the – what I thought – impossible statement of 'Well, if you get all of the actors back, I'll do it.' "

Guess what. They did.

Virtually all the regular characters from the series – including a couple of dead ones – turn up in Homicide: The Movie, which airs Sunday, Feb. 13.

"We kept not committing to anything (in terms of story line) until we knew which actors were coming," Fontana says. "And when we found out they were all coming, it was such a feast that we got a lot of stuff in that we didn't think we'd get a chance to do."

Fans will enjoy the feast as much as the cast and crew did. It's part family reunion, part tier-upper of loose ends from the series and part good old-fashioned Homicide-style storytelling. While you don't have to be a fan of the series to enjoy the movie, it helps to be one, or to have one handy, to keep the huge cast of characters straight.

As it opens, former Lt. Al Giardello (Yaphet Kotto), now a candidate for mayor of Baltimore on a platform that includes legalizing drugs, is shot and critically wounded at an outdoor rally.

The news spreads like wildfire to present and former members of the homicide squad. Straight-arrow Frank Pembleton (Andre Braugher), now a teacher, is pulled aside and told in midclass. Retiree Stanley Bolander (Ned Beatty) sees it on TV.

Edgy John Munch (Richard Belzer) gets a call in New York (the character is now a regular on Law & Order: Special Victims Unit, currently occupying the old Homicide time slot). Even enigmatic Tim Bayliss (Kyle Secor), in self-imposed exile since the mysterious murder that closed out the show's last season, gets the word while fishing.

The most surprising revelation in this montage of notification involves Giardello's son, Michael (Giancarlo Esposito). Formerly the FBI liaison to the squad – a job he took to reconnect with his estranged dad – he's now a street patrolman.

Soon the old and new squad members have gathered like long-lost relatives at a wake, but not to mourn. They're itching to start, as one puts it, "looking for the Ebola what did this."

Some of the old-timers have the boss's official OK to join the investigation. Others – read: Pembleton – don't, but forge on regardless, following every lead: drug dealers opposed to Giardello's call for legalization; black nationalists who blame him for their group's destruction; white supremacists whose reasons for not wanting a black mayor are obvious.

In the end, it's the brilliant Pembleton who solves the case, but in true Homicide fashion, things are not wrapped up in a pretty package. There are still the matters of Bayliss' secret and Giardello's condition. Both are dealt with in a series of bittersweet scenes that may bring some die-hard fans to tears.

Fontana calls the movie "a remarkable closure for us and a remarkable celebration for us. Whether that comes across in the film, you can decide, but we had a blast doing it."

Saturday

Saturdays on NBC, Bill Cobbs stars in The Others, the story of a group of people with supernatural gifts.

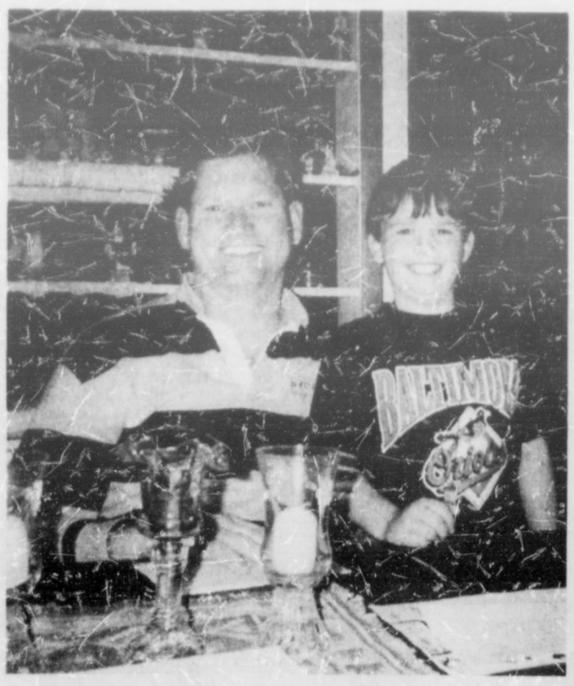
Big/Little Brother Matches First In County Since '97

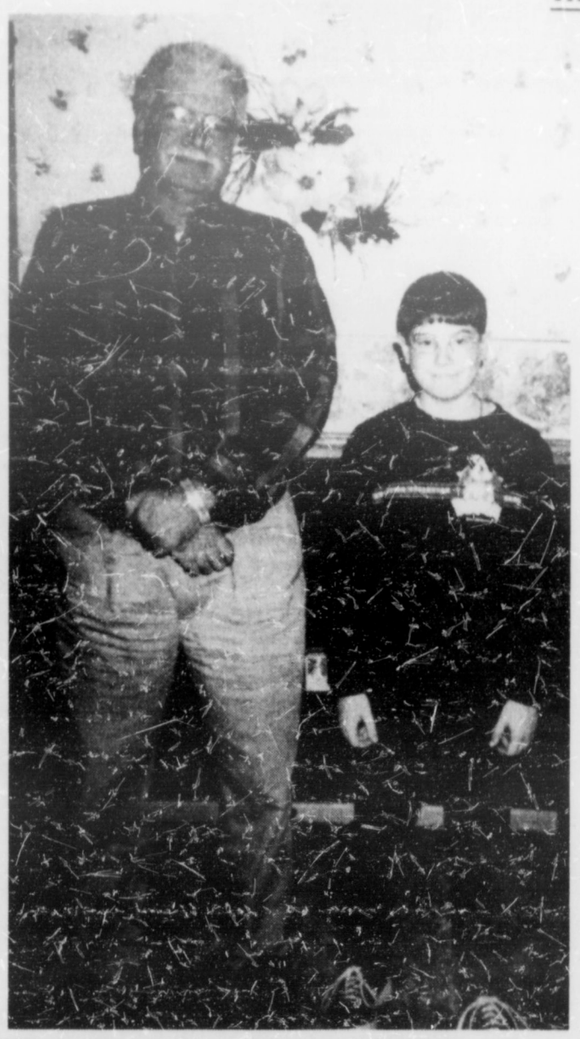
Two local men were recently named as Big Brothers in the Garrett County Big Brother/Big Sister organization. The last time Big Brothers were matched with Little Brothers in Garrett County was in May of 1997.

"We are so fortunate and so excited to welcome our first new Big Brothers in over 2½ years — two very special men, Matt Novak and Greg Shockey," said Garrett County Big Brothers Big Sisters coordinator JoAnn Fletcher.

Novak, retired from teaching at Southern High School, and Shockey, General Manager of Team One Chevrolet, are members of the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club. It was during the club's November meeting that they heard Fletcher speak about the need for Big Brothers.

"The fact that it had been so long since there had been a new Big Brother made a profound impression on both men, who felt they needed to do something about this situation by volunteering," Fletcher said.





SPENDING SPECIAL TIME TOGETHER - Big Brothers and Big Sisters set aside time in their busy schedules to get together with their Little Brothers and Little Sisters and do something special. It may just be doing homework together and going out for a walk. In the photo above, recently matched Big Brother Greg Shockey and Little Brother Travis have gone four-wheeling, skiing, and bowling, and plan to do some fishing in the summer. They also said they spend some time "just hanging out." In the photo at right are another recently matched Big and Little Brother, Matt Novak and Billy. The Big/Little matches are made based on compatibility, and these two said they have found that they have a lot in common. Billy and Big Brother Matt play chess together, work on the computer, and have attended a mock trial.

At that time, 22 boys were on the list of Little Brothers waiting to be linked to Big Brothers, who would serve as a mentors and role models. "Now, thanks to Matt and Greg, there are two less boys on that waiting list," Fletcher stated.

Novak was matched on January 2 with Little Brother Billy. "I got involved because I thought it was a good thing to do. There's certainly a need for men and women to take an interest in youngsters. Whenever you work with people, you get the reward of close and caring relationships and a feeling that you're doing something helpful, or at least useful," Novak said.

Matches between the Big and Little brothers are based primarily on compatibility, Fletcher explained. "Matt and Billy have already proven to have much in common. In the short time they've been together, Matt and Billy have enjoyed each other's company by going to a mock trial and sharing computer skills. Playing chess is also high on their list of things to do together," she said.

Shockey and Travis first met when Greg was a "Big for a Day" at a BB/BS dinner last November. Shockey said he was interested in becoming a Big Brother, but had not begun the process at that time. Being matched just for the evening gave him the chance to experience BB/BS interactions, he noted. Travis was Shockey's "Little for a Day," and Fletcher said that the two of them "hit it off." They were officially matched on January 7.

"I plan to make a friend for life by having a special relationship with a young man, helping him out, being there when he needs me. Even though I'm a busy person, I figured surely I'd be able to find the time to get involved," Shockey said.

Sometimes when Shockey and Travis get together for activities, they are joined by Shockey's wife and son, who is the same age as Travis. Matched for just a few weeks, they've gone four-wheeling, skiing, and bowling, and plan to do some fishing this summer. Weather has hampered some of their plans together, but they have kept in touch by telephone during those times.

"There are still many boys and girls on the waiting list. The majority come from the Oakland area, but Big Brothers, Big Sisters, and Big Couples are also needed in Friendsville, Grantsville, Accident, and Swanton. To learn more about becoming a "Big," to volunteer to help in other aspects of the organization, or to schedule a speaker for a church or organization, persons may call the Big Brothers/Big Sisters office at 301-334-3591 or 800-400-0735.

Internet Tally Part Of Cornell Bird Count

The Great Backyard Bird Count, a continentwide project of the Cornell Laboratory of Ornithology and the National Audubon Society, is set for Friday, Feb. 18, through Monday, Feb. 21. Local volunteers are sought for the annual event, which helps scientists document the abundance and distribution of North America's winter bird populations at the start of the first spring migration.

Participants in the Cornell count are asked to count the numbers and species of birds seen during any or all of the four count days. All sightings are entered via the Internet at the BirdSource web site (www.birdsource.org), an interactive site developed by the Cornell Lab and National Audubon Society. Count results, in the form of maps and charts, will be available at the web site and will be updated as reports arrive.

The BirdSource web site also provides educational materials for persons of all ages, including a "Let's Talk About Birds" vocabulary section, a "Bird-Brained Bibliography" of reference books, and a "How to Bird-watch" introduction to birding. Tips on feeding birds are also provided. Children will also have the opportunity to vote for their favorite bird.

The on-line nature of the count, combined with hoped-for widespread citizen participation, will assist scientists in both the short and long term. "People from subtropical Florida and Hawaii to Arctic Canada and Alaska will help us understand better the effects of changing weather and landscape on our birds' abundance and distribution patterns," said Dr. Frank Gill, senior vice president for science at National Audubon.

To participate, volunteers tally the highest number of each species seen at one time (so as not to count the same birds more than once). They then log on to the BirdSource web site and click on the Great Backyard Bird Count button, which will bring up directions on how to proceed. Participation in the count is free, and no registration is necessary. For further information, including how to enter reports if computer access is not available, persons may call the Cornell Lab toll-free at 1-800-843-BIRD.

Career Business Program Offerings Expanded At GCC

To train Garrett Community College students for the rapidly changing business world of the future, GCC has reorganized and expanded its career business offerings. Two new Associate of Applied Science degree programs and two new certificates will be available to students this coming September.

The new academic area has been named Business and Information Technology, reflecting the need for students to be trained in the latest technologies. Within this new area students will have two major program options, Business Management and Computer Applications for Business, each offering a 64-credit hour degree and a 24-hour certificate.

"The revised Business Management program will include courses in e-Commerce and Internet Marketing to keep students ahead of the technological curve," said Dr. Terry Norris, interim director of the Business and Information Technology area. Program participants will also have the experience of doing a business project in which they will develop a concept for a business, including a marketing plan, while working with a business mentor from the community. The culminating activity will be a presentation by each participant outlining his or her project.

"The revised Computer Applications for Business program will train students for careers in a variety of business environments and for secretarial careers of the 21st century," Norris added. Students seeking an A.A.S. degree will take the general education required courses in communications, mathematics, social science, and science, in addition to required courses in accounting, business, and computer applications. Students seeking a certificate will take only the courses in computer applications.

The I-Tech courses in Computer Repair (A+) and Microsoft Certified Systems Engineer currently being given under the Computer Information Technology certificate will continue and will eventually be expanded to include training in Cisco, Oracle, and Microsoft Office User Specialist, Norris said. GCC's Business Administration transfer program will continue in its present structure with the options of new computer courses as electives.

Persons interested in further information about these courses or programs may call Norris at 301-387-3043.

It's hard to believe that the first lawn mowers were designed in the 1830s in England. The mower, patented by Edwin Board Budding, had curved blades in a cutting cylinder that is still the basic idea of a mower. The earliest mowers were made of wrought iron and were either pushed with a long handle or pulled from the front by a horse. Lawn mowers that date back to the 1800s are rare today and sell for thousands of dollars if in good condition. Mowers from the first quarter of the 20th century are usually worth hundreds of dollars. Motorized mowers were first made in the 1890s, and smaller, lightweight mowers became common by the 1920s. Electric motors were first used in the 1920s. Mowers with plastic parts were made after the 1960s and have little value.

Q: My aunt gave me a 6-inch Roseville cornucopia she had received as a wedding present more than 55 years ago. I haven't been able to identify the pattern. There are large, three-pointed leaves near the top of the vase, with tiny, pink, heart-shaped flowers drooping down below the leaves. The vase's rim is sculpted into six points. The raised mark on the bottom reads, "Roseville U.S.A. 141-." Can you help?

A: The pattern of your Roseville vase is called "Bleeding Heart." The pattern is named after the flower on the vase. It was introduced by Roseville in 1940 and was made in many shapes. The "141" in the mark is the shape number, and "6" is the size. Your vase would sell for $125 to $150.

GET A JUMP ON SPRING PLANTING

There's still snow on the ground, and spring is a good while away but, believe it or not, it's time to start planning your spring gardening. Even if your yard consists of grass and a few shrubs, you can get the most out of it this year by planning ahead.

For a healthy yard or garden, fertilizer can be your best friend. However, you'll need to know what type of fertilizer is best for gardens, shrubs or trees. The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's Cooperative Extension Service provides free soil analysis to home gardeners. Find the local chapter in your phone book (usually listed in the government pages). Collect a small soil sample from each location that you'd like to plant in, put them in separate, well-labeled plastic bags, and send in the samples. Doing this in February will speed up the service's response, since demand is pretty light during the winter months.

When the results of the analysis come in, take them to a professional, who can help you interpret them.

If you don't want to do the soil test, just keep a few fertilizer basics in mind, courtesy of Jack Maguire and True Value Hardware:

"Most lawns and plants benefit from a fertilizer that provides nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium in a ratio of 3-1-2 (for example, a common package description is 21-7-14). In areas where the soil already contains enough phosphorous, choose a fertilizer without any, since the excess will run off and pollute lakes and streams."

RECYCLING ASHES

Here's another tip that you can follow during winter: Save the ashes from your wood-burning fireplace. This spring and summer, once the flowers have bloomed and vegetables have moved past flowering stage, sprinkle a thin layer of ashes over the soil, taking care not to let them touch the plant stems. Minerals in the ashes provide excellent nutrients, and slugs (or other pests) hate to move across them.

Pet Care
by Peter Edwards

When you visit the veterinarian with a sick or injured pet, come prepared with a list of questions that will help in your pet's recovery.

For example, if medication is involved, ask to be shown the best way to get it into your pet's system. Can you put it in food? (This is usually easier done with dogs who will more likely "wolf" down a meal if the smell of food is stronger than the smell of the medicine. Less so with cats whose reputation for finickiness is well deserved. One sniff of medication and the entire meal goes untouched.) If the medication is in pill form, ask to be shown the best way to get your dog or cat to swallow it without causing stress for your pet or bites and scratches for you.

Furthermore, ask about the side effects of the medication. Will it cause more frequent urination or changes in bowel movements? Is it contraindicated that it be given with other medications your pet is already on? If the bandages are especially complicated, can you be instructed on how to change them? Is the illness contagious to humans and other animals? If so, how can new infections be prevented? What about exercise and diet restrictions?

Finally, ask when your pet is likely to make a full recovery. Can the illness recur? If so, can it be prevented? If the illness or injury is severe enough to be possibly terminal, discuss the treatment options available and what your options are to provide the best care for your friend in these circumstances.

By using these simple guidelines, you should be able to get the most out of your vet visits for both you and your pets. Now about getting those cats into their carriers...

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Maryland Mining Program will submit an application to the US Department of the Interior, Office of Surface Mining, for the funding of abandoned coal mine reclamation projects. The funding will be in accordance with Title IV, Section 405 of Public Law 95-87, Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977.

Qualification for Federal Funding under Title IV is contingent on an approved State Surface Coal Mining Regulatory Program and a State Abandoned Mine Lands Reclamation Plan. Maryland has received Office of Surface Mining approval of both programs. Project funding will originate from the Abandoned Mine Reclamation Fund, administered by the Office of Surface Mining.

It is the goal of the Maryland Abandoned Mine Reclamation Program to promote the reclamation of abandoned coal mine areas in Maryland that have been left in an inadequately reclaimed condition and endanger the safety of the public, degrade the quality of the environment, and/or diminish the beneficial use of land and water resources.

Comments are being solicited on the relative priority of the projects listed below and/or any other abandoned mine problems in the Maryland Coal Region. The Bureau of Mines requests information from the public concerning abandoned mine problems that pose a potential threat to the public health and safety or severely degrades the environment.

Thursday, February 24, 2000
7:00 P.M.
Maryland Bureau of Mines
160 South Water Street,
Room 107
Frostburg, MD 21532

Further information concerning the proposed projects can be obtained by contacting Mr. Joe Mills, Planning, Research and Development, Maryland Bureau of Mines, 160 South Water St., Frostburg, MD 21532, 301-689-6764, x 301. Written comments concerning these projects and the Maryland Abandoned Mine Reclamation Program will be received at the public hearing and until Wednesday, March 1, 2000. Address all comments to the Maryland Bureau of Mines, Attention: Mr. Joe Mills.

The following is a general description of the proposed reclamation projects, including the location, County, nearest town or physical feature, and nature of the problem:

1. EVERHART ACID MINE DRAINAGE REMEDIATION PROJECT

Location: Approximately 2 mile east of McHenry, Garrett County, approximately ¼ mile east of Rock Lodge Road.

2. NEFF RUN ACID MINE DRAINAGE REMEDIATION PROJECT

Location: Approximately 1 mile north of Midland, Allegany County, along the east side of MD State Rt. 36.

Problem: Acid Mine Drainage discharging from an abandoned surface mine is impacting the water quality of Matthew Run, Neff Run and Georges Creek.

3. ELKLICK II ALKALINE PRODUCING SYSTEM PROJECT

Location: Approximately 3 miles east of Swanton, Garrett County, along the east side of Mount Zion Road, adjacent to Elklick Run.

Paula Munson and Lois Elliot represented Eta Chapter in Allegany County.

The convention's theme was "Today's Actions: Tomorrow's Rewards." The weekend's activities consisted of a cabaret on Friday evening, "women in the arts" display, entertainment from the Heart of Maryland Singers of Albert Einstein High School, and line dancing. Saturday's events were: general business meeting; birthday luncheon; Alice Carrier, speaker and international representative; tribute to founders; recognition of scholarship recipients; three workshops; banquet; and keynote speaker. Closing the convention was the "Celebration of Life" in memory of deceased members. Presiding was outgoing president Doris Anderson, formerly of Lonaconing and summer Deep Creek Lake resident.

Harman took office as second vice president of Alpha Beta State. Irmgard Koscielniak led a workshop designed for personal and professional growth in the brain development of a child.

Delta Kappa Gamma Society International is an organization of women educators with the purpose of uniting women educators of the world in a genuine spiritual fellowship and to honor women who have given or who evidence a potential for distinctive service in any field of education.

Women's Group Sets Dove Center Benefit Challenge

The Garrett County Women's Presidents Council launched the "100 Women Challenge" this week, a fund-raiser for the Dove Center, Garrett County's Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Resource Center. The challenge is designed to support the Dove Center during its four-month grant cycle shortfall.

"We are looking to garner the support of 100 women to pledge $50 a month for four months," said Susan Athey-Oxford, president of the League of Women Voters of Garrett County. The community has worked too hard to ensure that a safe place exists for victims of violence to have its operations jeopardized, she added.

"The 100 Women Challenge picked up nearly a dozen pledges in its first few hours. We encourage women, men on behalf of women, local organizations, recovering batterers, and everyone with an interest to make a pledge," said Oxford.

"The Dove Center, our local shelter, has done a tremendous job in making sure services are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week," remarked Joanne Harsh of the Business and Professional Women club. "We are very optimistic about the future of the center and we have been able to work well with Linda Spassil."

The Women's Presidents Council will coordinate the challenge. Pledge and donation checks made out to "100 Women Challenge — The Dove Center" may be mailed to the 100 Women Challenge, P.O. Box 115,

GBI Breaks Felony Theft Ring With Help From Hot Spot Tip

A multi-state felony theft ring has been broken by an investigation spawned by a tip received through the Grantsville Hot Spot Program, according to the Garrett Bureau of Investigation. Numerous theft, burglary, and drug charges have been filed in the case, which has resulted in the arrests of three Grantsville residents and one Frostburg resident in connection with crimes committed in Maryland and Pennsylvania.

The investigation began last week when GBI detectives acting on the Hot Spot information began interviewing Samantha Mae Fike, 19, and Garrett Barkley, 18, both of Grantsville, and Michael Lee Shipley, 25, Frostburg, who was being detained in the Allegany County Jail. The trio had been arrested previously for an attempted Allegany County burglary by a Maryland State Police trooper based at the LaVale barrack.

The interviews began when GBI detectives responded to Fike's residence at 336 Meyersdale Road, where the woman confessed to being involved in a January 29 burglary of the Wildwater Inn, located near Grantsville. Fike implicated Shipley in that burglary, and also identified 18-year-old Ronald Wilt Jr., Grantsville, as Shipley's accomplice in other burglaries.

A small plastic box containing approximately $36 in change believed to have been stolen from Wildwater Inn was confiscated from Fike's residence. While at Fike's residence investigators observed a 1998 Polaris four wheel drive four-wheeler. A computer check on the vehicle's identification number revealed the four-wheeler had been stolen from the Uniontown, Pa., area. Fike stated that Shipley had brought the four-wheeler to her residence and claimed it was his.

The investigation then moved to the Wilt residence at 1512 Durst Road where another four-wheeler was discovered. A check on the vehicle identification number of this 1999 Honda four-wheeler also revealed it had been stolen from the Uniontown area. A consent search of the residence resulted in the recovery of stolen property from Wildwater Inn and G&W Lumber Company, both of Accident, Yoder's Meat Market and Folk's Paint and Glass, both of Grantsville, and property stolen during two burglaries in Somerset, Pa. and two additional thefts that occurred in Allegany County.

During the search at the Wilt home a small quantity of marijuana and the prescription animal tranquilizer Ketamine was also discovered, along with drug paraphernalia. As reported in last week's issue of The Republican, Wilt was arrested and charged with three counts of felony theft, two counts of misdemeanor theft, and possession of Ketamine, marijuana, and drug paraphernalia. He was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after a $20,000 bond regarding that initial arrest.

GBI detectives then traveled to the Allegany County Jail to interview Shipley, who confessed to being involved in the burglaries of the Wildwater Inn and G&W Lumber. He further implicated Wilt as his accomplice in the lumber company burglary and also reportedly stated that Christopher Wilt, 18, 1512 Durst Road, Grantsville, set up a deal to sell the stolen property in Pennsylvania.

Garrett Concert Band Forming; Practices Set

Garrett County residents (full or part-time) who play instruments and who would like to be a part of a community band will have the opportunity this spring to join such a group. The Garrett Concert Band, founded by Fred Stemple and conducted by Gerald McGee, both McHenry area residents, will begin rehearsals in April.

"In the after-glow of Oktoberfest every year, we have often talked about starting a local concert band," Stemple said. "This year, the Oktoberfest Oom-Pah Band was particularly good, and we just didn't want to let it go. So after a few brain-storming sessions with people like Gerry and band members Don Sincell and Gino Mauricci, and then a talk with Garrett Community College president Steve Herman, we have decided to give it a try."

The members of the annual Oktoberfest band will receive letters soon

Power Outage Affects Wide Area Tuesday

A power outage left businesses and homes across a wide swath of southern Garrett County without electricity for approximately 30 minutes Tuesday morning. Oakland, Mtn. Lake Park, Swanton, and Kitzmiller were among the communities affected, according to Garrett County Emergency Management.

The power failure was reportedly caused by a malfunctioning switch in an electrical substation located near Albright, W.Va. The outage affected traffic lights along Garrett and Maryland highways, although no traffic accidents were attributed to the situation.

Several intrusion alarms and one fire alarm were tripped as power surged, according to Emergency Management's Brad Frantz. The Garrett County Courthouse was evacuated for a short period because of a report of smoke in the building, although no damage ensued, and some incidents of damage to computers and appliances reportedly occurred at various locations.

The major property damage resulting from the outage took place at the Courthouse, where a motor located on the roof burned out. Part of an air exchange unit designed to circulate air throughout the Courthouse, the motor is being replaced, according to Gary Mullich of the county's General Services Office. The 40-horsepower motor, valued at $1,000, is approximately 30 years old. While a replacement will be procured for the air exchange unit, the old motor will be rebuilt and kept on hand as a spare, Mullich said.

Three Injured When Vehicle Strikes Pole

Rescue units along with personnel from the Allegheny Power Company responded to the scene of an accident on Swamp Road last Friday evening, where a car had collided with a telephone pole, injuring three people.

According to the Maryland State Police at the McHenry barrack, the one-vehicle accident occurred around 8:15 p.m. off Westernport Road. Tfc. B.L. Bittinger reported that a 1987 Dodge Aries driven by Michael A. McDonald, 20, Barton, struck a telephone pole after drifting off the road when the driver attempted to dispose of a cigarette ash.

Three passengers in the vehicle, Aron Winter, 19, and two juveniles, were transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital. Winter was admitted for treatment and released the following

County Building Codes Procedures Come Under Fire; Reforms Sought

A multi-page report with photographs of questionable construction methods was handed to the Garrett County commissioners this week by Robert Leuba, a local construction consultant and a registered house inspector. The report followed complaints made last week by resident Robert Whitson, who accused John Nelson, director of the county's planning and zoning office, of not enforcing the building codes of the county. (The building codes office is part of the planning and zoning department.) Whitson called for Nelson's firing, referring to him and his office as "a huge liability and a large law suit waiting to happen."

Defense for Nelson came fast and furious Tuesday, as the commissioners, the county administrator, area developers, and others refuted Whitson's claims about the planning office director. Leuba's report, however, has caused concern among the officials, and a reform effort is under way with the building codes enforcement procedures.

While a number of accusations were levied at Nelson and his office, the chief complaint of Leuba, Whitson, and some builders at the public meeting Tuesday appeared to be the apparent lack of proper follow-up to correction notices left by building inspectors. In answer to last week's complaints, Nelson spoke this week, explaining the procedure.

Nelson said each house under construction in the county is subject to five inspections by the building codes office. These inspections determine the soundness and safety of such things as the foundation of the house, the plumbing, wiring, and other aspects of construction. If the inspector sees code violations, he writes a "correction notice," informing the builder of the problems and instructing him to fix them.

Leuba's report consists mostly of copies of these correction notices, which he said were rarely, if ever, followed up with further inspection. Leuba contends the building codes office officials (namely Scott Winters and Jim Torrington) sign off on these inspections even if the needed corrections have not been fixed.

"You need to be a hammer in this business — a big hammer," Leuba said to the commissioners. "I've been looking at things at our building permit office for the past two years. Every time I pulled a permit out, I saw some inconsistency and I'd say 'hey, there's something wrong here,' but I think the problems are constantly overlooked. You can't be friends with everyone who comes in to get permits."

While Nelson conceded that problems exist with the 2½-year-old building codes permitting process, he disagreed that the majority of correction notices are left open-ended.

"When our inspector goes to a site to conduct a specific inspection, he does check to see if previous corrections have been made," Nelson said in an interview this morning. He also stated this morning that he and his staff have reviewed much of Leuba's report, and he maintains that many of the correction notices and other problems cited in it have indeed been fixed and/or addressed in some fashion. Keith Sines, the office's main inspector, said he felt about 95% of the issued corrections are properly followed up and addressed.

In his statement Tuesday, Nelson said the permitting office is still in a "learning curve," as the local building codes and the enforcement procedures have been in effect for just 2½ years. "We agreed at the outset that we would become more stringent with the codes over time, to give the builders a chance to adjust and to learn about it ourselves," Nelson said. "In fact, the codes may very well change this year."

Leuba contended that the builders were well aware of building codes before the institution of the county's regulations.

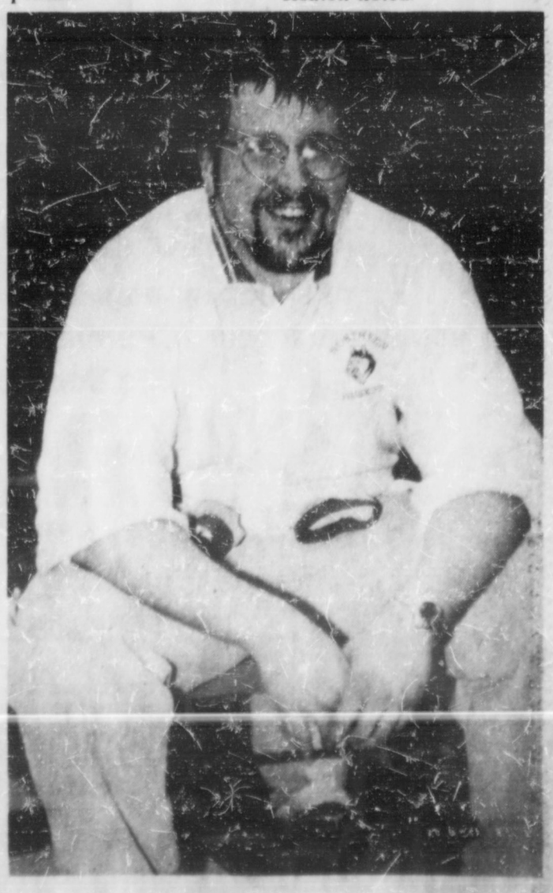
Grantsville Seeks Designation For Revitalization

The mayor and council in Grantsville are currently working with the county circuit rider, Wendell Keaton, to earn recognition as a revitalization area from the state office of Housing and Human Development. Achieving this status would increase the municipality's eligibility for grant funding for various town projects.

"It would be very good for Grantsville to have this status because of the grant opportunities that would open for the town. For instance, there is one grant program that would pay 100 percent of the cost for installation of sidewalks along state highways. We would be able to build sidewalks along Route 495 so residents could walk to the new town park," said Grantsville mayor Gerry Beachy.

Keaton explained that to meet the criteria for this revitalization area status, a neighborhood business development plan must be written covering 13 prescribed points. "This business development plan is only part of an overall revitalization plan for Grantsville, which will be multi-faceted," Keaton noted.



PLENTY TO SMILE ABOUT - The Northern High School wrestling team made school and county history Saturday at Waldorf by winning the Maryland State Dual Meet championship. It was the first-ever boys' state title in any sport for the school, as the Huskies edged Kent County in the finals, 27-26. Seven individual members of the Northern team captured championships in their respective weight classes. Above left, Northern head coach Scott Stough proudly displays his team's trophy. OTT Production Will Help Save Oakland Station

Edward Mallory, guest director for the May production at Our Town Theatre, Oakland, is planning a show consisting of a one-act play, Thornton Wilder's Pullman Car Hiawatha, and his own film for the History Channel, Presidential Trains.

"The railroad theme of the show is a natural fit for Oakland's efforts to Save Oakland Station, and Jane Avery, artistic director of OTT, suggested that proceeds from the show should benefit that effort," Mallory said.

Pullman Car Hiawatha looks into the lives and thoughts of assorted passengers as they spend a night on a train, somewhere in Maryland, as it travels to Chicago during the 1930s. Nancy Learey, director of the Garrett County Choral Society, is planning a small chorus to accompany the play, providing many sound effects and voicing the parts of the world outside as the train speeds through the night.

Following an intermission, the film Presidential Trains will be shown. Originally a program on the History Channel written, produced, and directed by Mallory, it covers the history of trains as presidential transportation and campaign vehicles, including Grover Cleveland's honeymoon trip to Deer Park. President Gerald Ford and Bob Withers, a railroad historian whose book, The President Travels by Train, was a source, appear in the film. A short feature on Charlie Amos, Cumberland native and noted painter specializing in trains, is a part of the film. Mallory, Amos, and Withers are planning informal question-and-answer sessions for those audience members who wish to stay after the show.

Dates for auditions will be announced soon, and the play includes several small parts. "This is a perfect opportunity for anyone considering trying out for a play," said Mallory. "Small roles and a one-act are a great way to get started in theatre."

Dates for the show are Friday and Saturday, May 12 and 13, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, May 14, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $5 each, and reservations may be made by calling Our Town Theatre at 301-334-5640, leaving name, phone number, number of tickets, and performance date. Patrons will receive a confirmation call.

PLAY TO BENEFIT SOS - A one-act play titled Pullman Car Hiawatha and written by Thornton Wilder will be presented at Our Town Theatre in Oakland, and all proceeds from the production will benefit the Save Oakland (Railroad) Station effort. The director of the play will be television writer, director, producer, and retired actor Edward Mallory, now a resident of Garrett County, who is pictured above with Nancy Learey, director of the Garrett Choral Society, which will provide special music as part of the production. Dates for auditions will be announced soon. See story for more information.

Three Candidates Vying For Council Seats In Accident

Three residents are on the ballot as candidates for two council seats that will be filled in the municipal election in Accident scheduled for March 7. Ed Golden, Bert Massengale, and David Hook are all seeking election to the town council for the first time.

Golden, employed for more than 26 years as a wildlife biologist with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, has been a Garrett County resident since 1973 and a resident of Accident since 1995. Before moving to Accident, he and his family had a small farm on which they raised cattle and Christmas trees.

Having earned his bachelor's degree at the University of Wyoming, Golden has worked part-time as an adjunct instructor at Garrett Community College for 10 years. His family includes his wife Sonya; three daughters who all graduated from Northern High School; and three grandchildren. "I enjoy living in Accident because it is similar to the town in central Pennsylvania where I grew up," Golden said.

Hook, a 1992 graduate of Northern High School, has served the community in several volunteer capacities. He has been a member of the Accident Volunteer Fire Department for seven years and a member of Northern Rescue Squad for six years.

Hook works at Phenix Technologies, where he has been employed for more than five years. "I really enjoy serving my community through the fire and rescue services, and I feel that by serving on the town council I would be helping the town of Accident in a more direct way and higher level," he said.

Massengale has been a member of the Accident community since his 1995 transfer to Alliant Techsystems in Rocket Center, W.Va., as a program manager. He has a bachelor's degree in chemistry and will earn his master of business administration degree from Frostburg State University in May.

While living in Accident, Massengale has served on the town zoning commission for two years. He also volunteers with the youth and men's activities at Deep Creek Baptist Church, which he attends.

Massengale, his wife René, and 2-year-old son Kyle live along Main Street in Accident. He said that he believes his previous work in the community along with his educational training would help him to serve well as a town council member for Accident.

Jr., who reside at the same Durst Road residence, are apparently no relation to one another according to the GBI.

Based upon these interviews GBI detectives identified four locations in Pennsylvania where stolen property from Maryland had been sold. This information was relayed to the Pennsylvania State Police in Uniontown. In the early morning hours of Saturday, Feb. 12, investigators from the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force and the GBI's Criminal Investigation Division assisted the Pennsylvania State Police in executing search and seizure warrants at those four locations.

Approximately $3,000 of property stolen from Maryland was recovered in addition to over a pound of marijuana and $2,500 in cash. Several Uniontown residents were arrested as a result of the search and charged with receiving stolen property and possession with intent to distribute marijuana.

The GBI summarized the new charges filed by its agency this week as follows:

Shipley, who remains incarcerated in Allegany County, faces charges of second degree burglary, felony theft, and malicious destruction of property in connection with the Wildwater Inn burglary; three counts each of second degree burglary and felony theft in connection with burglaries of Folk's Paint and Glass, Ridgeview Power Center (Grantsville), and the G&W Lumber Company; second degree burglary, malicious destruction of property, and misdemeanor theft from Yoder's Meats (Grantsville); and felony theft of the Polaris four-wheeler, and one count each of misdemeanor theft stemming from the theft of a wallet and a West Virginia dealer tag.

Fike, who has been released on her own recognizance, faces charges of second degree burglary, felony theft, and malicious destruction of property, all in connection with the Wildwater Inn Burglary.

Christopher Wilt, who has been released on his own recognizance, faces a felony theft charge in connection with the G&W Lumber burglary.

Ron Wilt Jr., who faces a second degree burglary charge in the Wildwater Inn burglary in addition to his previous charges, has been released on a $5,000 unsecured bond.

CONSORTIUM INTERNS ON THE JOB — Students in the most recent introduction to Business Technology class offered by the Western Maryland Consortium have been able to take advantage of on-the-job training through the consortium's new internship program. The participants gained practical experience in computers and clerical skills at their respective worksites every Monday through Thursday for four weeks, and gathered in the classroom each Friday to discuss their work week and continue reinforcing work skills. Several of the interns are pictured here on the job: at the upper left, Shaffer Tours and Charters intern Tracey Baier, seated, is shown with Sheila Shaffer; Barbara Falkner is shown at the upper right working at the office of attorney Bob Watson; at the below left, the Vision Center's Sheila Strawser, left, is pictured with intern Shirley Simmons; and at the bottom right Chris Snyder is shown at the Chamber of Commerce's Visitor Center. "Not only is this program a great help to employers [at no cost]," commented instructor Kathi Refosco, "but also the actual on-the-job experiences are invaluable to the students."

It's been a year since you left us and our days are still filled with tears, emptiness and memories. God is our comfort and we realize now that

He Only Takes The Best

God saw she was getting tired and a cure was not to be.
So He put His arms around her and whispered, "Come with me."

With tear-filled eyes we watched her fade away.
Although we loved her deeply,
we could not make her stay.

A golden heart stopped beating, hard working hands put to rest.
God broke our hearts to prove to us

Lawmakers Sound Death Knell For Cousins' Wedding Bells

by John W. Croft
Capital News Service

Close-knit kin planning to tie the knot will have to wed elsewhere if two Montgomery County legislators in the Maryland General Assembly get their way. Delegates Henry B. Heller, D-Montgomery, and Kumar Barve, D-Montgomery, want to make it illegal for first cousins to get married in Maryland. If they are successful, cupid-struck cousins could be fined $1,500, or worse yet, they could be banished from the state.

"We don't need to play Russian roulette with genetics," said Heller, a retired special education administrator. He said he put the bill in not as a joke, but more as an education initiative — he's worried that children born to these parents could have learning disabilities.

"I assumed forever that it was against the law," Heller said.

The law already forbids Maryland citizens from marrying their grandparents, parents, uncles, aunts, siblings, nieces, nephews, grandchildren, and various other permutations of relations. The new law simply adds "first cousins" to that list.

How often do kissing cousins tie the knot in the Free State?

"We maybe do cousins one time a year," said David K. Martin, clerk of Garrett County Circuit Court, in an interview with Capital News Service last year. And it's likely that those cousins came from neighboring West Virginia or Pennsylvania, where the practice is outlawed. Capital News Service found nearly 70 percent of the marriage licenses issued in Garrett County went to non-Maryland residents last year.

In Annapolis, it's apparently taboo as well.

"It's very, very rare," said Jessica Rorer, a license clerk in the Anne Arundel County Circuit Court, who by law has to ask marriage license applicants if they are "in any way related."

Researchers writing in the journal Nature Genetics found in 1993 that children born from first-cousin marriages were 4 percent more likely to die from genetic problems like Tay-Sachs disease, which kills children by age 5, and sickle cell anemia.

The problem, according to the experts, is that first cousins share one-eighth of their genes, putting their children at risk for inheriting any damaged genes shared by the parents.

Today's high-tech medicine does offer some solace for loving cousins. Dear Abby, in a column last August, offered this advice to a would-be cousin bride: Get genetic testing. With the testing, Abby said, the couple could "rule out the risk of defects" in their children.

Even with advances in genetic testing and medicine, Heller is unconvinced that these children won't be learning-impaired, so after reading about the West Virginia couples coming to Maryland to get married last year, he decided to draft his bill.

If the measure passes, on Oct. 1 Maryland will become the 29th state to ban first cousin marriages, Heller said, adding that previously married couples won't be bound by the new law.

Heller said that while the bill won't prevent cousins from driving across state borders to marry, it might make them think about genetic risks for their children.

PLANNING WORKSHOP - The members of the Garrett County Health Department's teen health theater, Pandora's Box, are planning their second annual theater workshop at the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center on Saturday, Feb. 26. Check-in will be at 9:30 a.m., with the program scheduled from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. There is no charge to attend the workshop, which is sponsored by the health department and funded by the Garrett County Arts Council. Lunch will be included. The speaker for the event will be writer, director, playwright, and independent film director Penny Knobel-Besa of Cumberland. All members of the community age 14 and over are invited to attend. There will be limited seating available at the workshop, so those interested in attending are encouraged to register by February 23 by calling the health department at 301-334-8122. Pandora's Box members in the photo above, from left to right in back are director Lisa Wilt, Kenny Bazemore, Jessica Upole, Tim McDaniels, Amanda Nazelrod, Andy Fike, and Cheera Rinker. Building Codes

"It doesn't matter if you have a county code or not. You have to have a standard," Leuba said. "These guys know what they're doing. And because the ones who take shortcuts can bid lower on projects, they are the ones who are getting all the jobs around here. The good builders are tired of it."

Whitson contended last week that a "large percentage" of the $50 million in construction permits are being issued to "unscrupulous, unskilled, and incompetent builders" who are "ripping off the general public in Garrett County." Leuba said the percentage of corrupt builders in the county is very small, but that they are the ones who obtain the best jobs.

Nelson refuted the assertions, defending the majority of the builders as individuals who are "doing a fine job."

Nelson suggested that the commissioners authorize the reconvening of the former code committee, the group of builders and other individuals who developed the county's code before the initiation of the local process in August 1997.

"These people met regularly for over a year to figure out our specific needs and requirements," said Nelson. "I think it would be wise to get them together again to discuss the enforcement issue."

Bob Watson, a local attorney, was also present at the meeting and stated that he has dealt with homeowner/contractor problems in the area for years.

"Good builders are fed up with the unscrupulous builders who cut corners and ignore the correction notices. The good guys simply can't compete," he said.

Pete Brosnihan, a former member of the committee and a builder in the county, said the correction notices should be sent not only to the contractor, but also to the homeowner. While the commissioners stated during the discussion that much of the responsibility lies on the shoulders of the homeowners, Brosnihan said they have little recourse.

"If a homeowner doesn't even know there's a problem with the foundation, or that a wall is too high, or whatever else might be wrong, how can he take responsibility when the problems start?" Brosnihan said. "But if he gets a correction notice in the mail about his house under construction, he's going to call that contractor and say, 'What's this about?' And then that problem is going to get fixed."

Nelson said the idea of sending the dual correction notices is a good one, and affirmed this morning that the permit office has already instituted the practice and will immediately begin sending the notices to the homeowners.

"I do feel that our office is steadfast, and that our staff is doing a good job," Nelson said. "But this report is certainly enough evidence to me that we need to buckle down."

Leuba said he had nothing against Nelson personally, but that the issue has consumed him for years.

"I have had threats against my life, against my family. This hasn't been something I've done just for fun," Leuba said.

Some barbs were traded between Whitson and the commissioners, with the elected officials criticizing his aggressive approach to the issues as "totally inappropriate," as stated by Chairman Wendell Beitzel, and Whitson accusing the three men of "shutting their eyes" to the issue and "aiding and abetting a very dirty little business."

"Do you think if we throw all of these guys out and get new people that things will be a whole lot better?" Beitzel asked Whitson. "You can pass all the laws in the world and you're still going to have unscrupulous people."

Commissioner Fred Holliday defended Nelson as "one of the best people [he] has ever worked with," and Commissioner Ernest Gregg concurred with that sentiment, as did Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator.

"None of us is perfect," Gregg said. "And while we don't exactly like your approach, we will look into it. We can improve the situation somewhat. It will take longer to do the job, and there will probably be more cost to people, but we will address these problems."

Upcoming Brown Bag Seminar Topic Changed

The topic of the next "brown bag lunch" seminar, slated for Wednesday, March 8, has been changed. The session will now consist of a presentation titled "Bad Checks and Consumer Fraud," which will be presented by Lt. Larry Gnegy of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. The noon seminar will take place at the Garrett County Visitor Center.

The seminar series is sponsored by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. All chamber members may attend for free, while a fee is charged for non-members.

Thanks, Mr. Schulz...

The cartoon at right brings a tear to one's eye, as Snoopy literally rides off into the sunset for the final time. His creator, Charles Schulz, did so as well early Sunday morning, peacefully moving from this life to the next at the very moment that printing presses around the nation were producing his last Peanuts comic strip. He literally died with his work.

The humble Schulz claimed that he knew nothing about philosophy and next to nothing about psychology. He said he was just a cartoonist who worked hard and got lucky. Of course, in our opinion, the man was a creative genius, whose work has touched the lives of practically every human being in this country, and in many others, for nearly five decades. One would be hard-pressed to find a single soul who has never heard of the Peanuts characters.

Schulz's characters and the situations they faced were those with which nearly every one of us could identify, which is the primary reason for the enormous success of his work. Occasionally his characters would not utter a word in an entire strip, but he could create with just a few tiny, simple lines, unmistakable expressions that clearly conveyed the point of that particular strip. His strips were loaded with humor, wisdom, reality, and morality, all of which are basic human needs and/or cravings.

With the end of the Peanuts comics there is sadness, but also admiration for its creator. When Walt Disney died, for example, the Disney characters just kept right on living, but obviously the task of their creation was handed over to others. While the cartoons have remained successful, there is no question that when Walt died at least a part of his characters died with him. The Disney characters today are imperfect clones of the originals. But Schulz decided that he, and he only, would be the creator of Peanuts, and when he could no longer do his work, no one else would be legally permitted to take it over. There is a beginning and an end to all things on this earth, except time, and Schulz is to be admired for allowing his creative work to gracefully come to an end.

Fortunately, though, his work is timeless, and even though there will be no new adventures for Snoopy, Charlie Brown, Lucy, Linus, and the rest of the Peanuts gang, we will always have the many books of their "lives" to read and re-read, and to share with every generation to come. For every child who has just learned to read, the long Peanuts series has just begun.

Thank you, Charles Schulz, for enriching the lives of every one of us.

Re: Rising Oil Prices

The greedy oil producing countries have steadily decreased oil exports, fueling a steep rise in prices at the pump and in the oil-fired furnaces across the nation. Saudi Arabia deepened its cuts in recent days. How soon they forget! I hope we don't. When the call for help comes the next time, the White House operator should answer the phone and say, "I'm sorry, that number is no longer in service."

To the Editor:

I miss the Keystone Kops, Dennis the Menace, and the Three Stooges. They just didn't know what to get into next. Their bumbling antics were so outrageously absurd that one had to laugh. To them "common sense" was a foreign phrase, another language, if you will. They were so "out of the box" that they just kept me in stitches.

But then again, I am not complaining because Garrett County has the commissioners. Their most recent episode (one in a seemingly never-ending series) has all of the elements necessary for low humor or perhaps high, depending on your outlook. The $4,000 "investigation" that they initiated is right up there with the best of the humorous scenarios depicted by some of the comic characters of days gone by, especially when one considers the nasty comments made by the commissioners to the people at the Dove Center not so very long ago that there just wasn't any money available from the county to help tide them over.

What will they get into next?

George Falter Jr.

P.S. This would be funny if it weren't so serious.

To the Editor:

The events of the past few weeks have reminded me of how thankful I am for the staff at Bloomington School. I had at least one child enrolled at Bloomington School from 1984 through 1999. I have often praised the teachers for their efforts, always going above and beyond what is expected of them. The tragedy that occurred in Bloomington was no exception. When news of the search efforts for Eddie Rogers reached them, several teachers forfeited their Super Bowl plans and spent the day at the Bloomington fire hall comforting their students, past and present. Over the next few days, Eddie's and Brandy's friends were congregated at my house, comforting and supporting each other. When the teachers heard this, several of them stopped in after school to check up on "their kids." Becky Shook, a teacher at Bloomington, presented a very touching eulogy at Eddie's funeral.

I was going to wait until "Teachers Appreciation Week" to write this. I decided, however, that there is never a wrong time to let someone know that you appreciate them...and I do! Thank you. I hope the school board in Garrett County realizes what an exceptional staff they have at Bloomington School.

To the Editor:

My name is Brian Crabtree and I am 14 years old. I am a freshman at Southern High School and a Life Scout in Boy Scout Troop 22. Currently I am working on my Eagle Scout project. For this project, I have chosen to plant 150 trees for Oakland's 150th anniversary.

The trees will be planted on public property throughout the Oakland area. The Department of Natural Resources has mapped out where new trees need to be planted, and I will follow this map.

Trees are a very important resource to our environment. I am asking for your donations to help me obtain my goal of planting the 150 trees. Each tree costs approximately $25, and people may donate that amount to have a tree planted as a memorial to someone special, or in honor of someone living.

This is a huge goal, but the outcome will be beautiful. My Boy Scout troop and I, along with the help of many others, will be planting these trees this spring. Please help me with this by donating a tree and making Oakland a more beautiful place in which to live and to visit.

If you have questions, please contact me at 301-334-8328 or Mayor Asa McCain at the Oakland Town Hall, 301-334-2691.

Sincerely,
Brian Crabtree

To the Editor:

There have been considerable column inches devoted to the $19.6 billion Maryland budget that Governor Parris Glendening has proposed during the last several weeks, but little effort to put the spending trends of the current administration into proper perspective.

Your readers should be made aware that since Governor Glendening took office in 1995, the state's budget has increased from $13.5 billion to $19.6 billion. This is an average yearly increase of 10.2%, more than four times inflation and nearly twice the growth in personal income.

I submit that this kind of growth in spending is irresponsible and further illustrates the fact that government will always have the propensity to spend given the financial resources. Maryland continues to be the second highest taxed state in personal income on a per capita basis. It presently has a surplus approaching $1 billion, in addition to an expected windfall of some $4 billion from the tobacco settlement.

To make matters even worse in these good times, Governor Glendening's spending plan increases Maryland's debt by over $600 million while refusing to accelerate the 10% tax cut. The increase in debt includes a $150 million increase in general obligation debt in Fiscal 2001, and a $450 million increase in transportation debt over the next three years. The fact is, our state indebtedness is increasing dramatically while Maryland enjoys a period of unheralded surpluses! Maryland already has the highest debt load of any of the region's six states and the 11th highest in the nation. The state has some $4 billion in debt, half of which has been incurred on the Glendening/Townsend watch. Didn't Glendening do this when he was county executive of Prince George's County? It is truly amazing that Marylanders can be so complacent.

Less government, fiscal restraint, accountability and trustworthiness should be the order of the day. Hopefully, Marylanders will rebel in 2002 and bring some sense of fiscal sanity, good judgment and sound leadership back to Maryland.

Sincerely yours,
Richard E. Hug

To the Editor:

Did you know that juvenile arthritis is more common than juvenile diabetes and cerebral palsy? As someone touched by juvenile arthritis, I can tell you that the burden of this disease and the diminished quality of life these children face over their lifetime justifies more than the federal investment of $3.76 million in Fiscal Year 1998.

Although I am encouraged by the advances being made in treating the various forms of juvenile arthritis, we are still far short of the goal of prevention and cure of juvenile arthritis. The unique nature of the many forms of the disease and their effect on children requires a far deeper biomedical understanding that can only be met by expanded research.

Juvenile arthritis can start as early as infancy and last a lifetime. These conditions can cause severe pain and disability for our children, sometimes affecting growth and rendering them unable to walk, or can even lead to blindness. With more than a quarter of a million children with some form of juvenile arthritis, something needs to be done now.

The American Juvenile Arthritis Organization, a council of the Arthritis Foundation, has identified several issues that pose a serious threat to the well-being of children with arthritis. Among the concerns are the limited number of pediatric rheumatologists, the low number of trainees and applicants for new pediatric rheumatology fellowships, and the resulting negative impact on families and children with arthritis. Unless steps are taken to address these problems, the American health care system risks losing a subspecialty critical to the proper diagnosis and treatment of young and vulnerable children living with a chronic, painful, and disabling disease.

During Juvenile Arthritis Awareness Week, March 6-12, I encourage anyone touched by juvenile arthritis to contact his or her congressman and voice support of federal legislation to improve children's health. By enhancing research to find a cure for juvenile arthritis, improving communication on new breakthrough treatments and discoveries, and strengthening the national training infrastructure for pediatric rheumatology, the societal impact of this disease would be greatly reduced.

Sincerely,
Jack Whisler
President
Maryland Chapter
Arthritis Foundation

To the Editor:

Last week I had sent a letter to you, and this letter was published in the January 27 edition of the paper. I thought that I would wait to see if anyone would reply before writing again. Then as I was leafing through the paper, I saw a picture of the B&O station in Oakland that has begun a $1,000,000 renovation process. There were funds allocated from several different sources, and there was a request for donations, along with the opportunity to buy a brick and have it inscribed.

As I sat there looking at that picture, along with the cost involvement, I started laughing. Why, you may ask? The answer is relatively simple. Here the county goes again, using funding from various state, county, and local governments to fund another "tourist attraction."

I will agree that a lot of the county's revenues come from the tourism of Garrett County and Deep Creek Lake. I am sure that, while in Garrett County, the tourists want to see the "sights." Yet once again it looks as if the year-round residents get the short end again. The powers that govern the county really seem to step it up in the face of tourism, but really fall short on deciding what should happen for the year-round residents. I wonder how great a youth center could be built for the children of the county with a million dollars?

It amazes me that more people don't come forward and voice their respective displeasures about how their tax dollars that they continue to pay always seem to fall back into the laps of the tourists. Full-time residents of the county pay the inflated prices every day of their lives. If the government would use more of these dollars to benefit the residents and their lifestyles, maybe they would look better in the people's eyes.

I have to hope that, as election time draws near, the people will unite and, through voting, oust the current politicians, and cast their vote for people within their community who will strive to make a difference for them, instead of the tourists. Then maybe your children will have somewhere to go and gather. Then maybe you will be protected from the hypocrisy of the tourist and the current government.

This must start at the top, with the governor of the state. He seems to love handing out state funding for tourist development in Garrett County, yet seems to forget that the county is more than a tourist attraction. Since I seriously doubt that the situation will improve, because the political powers are more worried about the revenues generated from tourist attractions than the welfare of you, the residents of this county, I hope that you will take control. I hope that you, the residents, will not open your bank account to help fund this ludicrous renovation, but instead lobby for the things that will benefit you, your children, and your grandchildren instead.

Leslie Beckman
Bristol, Ohio

P.S. I remember as a child that the courthouse was a county landmark; look at it now.

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to the Garrett County Commissioners requested that it be published in this column.

Dear Sirs:

It was gratifying to read in the newspaper that you are supporting the requests of Garrett County Health Department's health officer, Rodney Glotfelty, for the need for continuation of the Health Department's Home Health and Mental Health programs.

At a recent Home Health Advisory Council meeting, we learned that the Home Health Agency's home visits continue to decline because of the restrictions and penalties imposed by the passing of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997. (In fiscal year 1996, 27,241 home visits were made, compared to 10,439 in fiscal year 1999.) The Garrett County Health Department Home Health Agency has always strived to meet the needs of the elderly and ill Garrett County citizens, but now because of low reimbursement rates and Medicare visit limitations imposed by HCFA (Health Care Financing Administration), it faces many problems.

The Home Health Program is a service directed by the patient's own private physician. It offers not only nursing and aide services, but also physical therapy, occupational therapy, and medical social worker services to homebound individuals when the service is ordered by the patient's own doctor. Payment to the agency can be made by Medicare, Medical Assistance, private insurance, or private pay. No patient is denied service because of inability to pay.

Perhaps many Garrett County residents do not realize that services in the home are part of the Medicare Law enacted in 1965 and has enabled many people to remain in their own homes while they recuperate from an illness or injury. The elderly are particularly hard hit, living on a limited budget and many without adequate insurance. (The average cost across Maryland for nursing home care is approximately $46,000 a year, while in Garrett County it is about $36,000 per year. I doubt if many residents could afford this cost privately.) Last October, the Garrett County Health Department Home Health Agency underwent a Maryland Licensing and Certification survey by state officials. The department learned it had passed all the stringent Medicare and state reviews without any deficiencies. We compliment the entire staff for their excellent outcome under these difficult times.

The Advisory Council appreciates your continued support to keep the Garrett Co. Health Department Home Health Agency viable. Services need to grow and not decline.

We also urge Garrett Countians to write or call elected officials — local, state and U.S. Congress representatives — to not only support local programs, but to also add prescription payment to the current Medicare program.

Respectfully,
Norma B. Bolding, R.N.
Chairperson
Garrett County Home
Health Advisory Council

To the Editor:

Last week, with the call for the removal of John Nelson from his job as planning and zoning director, there was also a slap toward Garrett County's builders and remodelers. The term I believe was "unscrupulous."

I would assume the citizen mentioned above meant there were no more unscrupulous builders than, say, unscrupulous donut makers, firemen, bankers, realtors, lawyers or county commissioners. The fact remains that there are unscrupulous characters in all walks of life, every day. Another fact is that part of our life experience involves our being able to spot and deal (or not deal) with these people.

I fear most for the out-of-towners who come to our county to build a new home or to have retro work done. Unless they're willing to spend the time to research a potential builder, the opportunities for problems are real. By interviewing a builder's past clients and not depending on a single referral, the customer will get a broad range of remarks that may prove helpful in his selection of a builder. Ask for a complete customer list and not just the favorites. Local people have the benefit of the county grapevine. It's hard to hide too much in a small town. Still, things can happen and it's always unfortunate when they do. There are, however, ways to handle these things. The court system is such a way, though it be costly. As always, it is best to avoid the problem with a careful choice. This is true whether you're buying a house or a car, or choosing your family doctor.

The job done by our local building inspection department meets or exceeds those I've experienced for 15 years in the Carroll and Baltimore county area. I don't feel at all that the people of Garrett County suffer for their local building inspection department. Their job concerns the safety issues involved with the building process as it applies to areas within the home. Egress windows, hand railing, minimum clearances, and stair design are just some of their concerns. Whether a house is plumb, level, or square is out of their realm of responsibility and falls directly

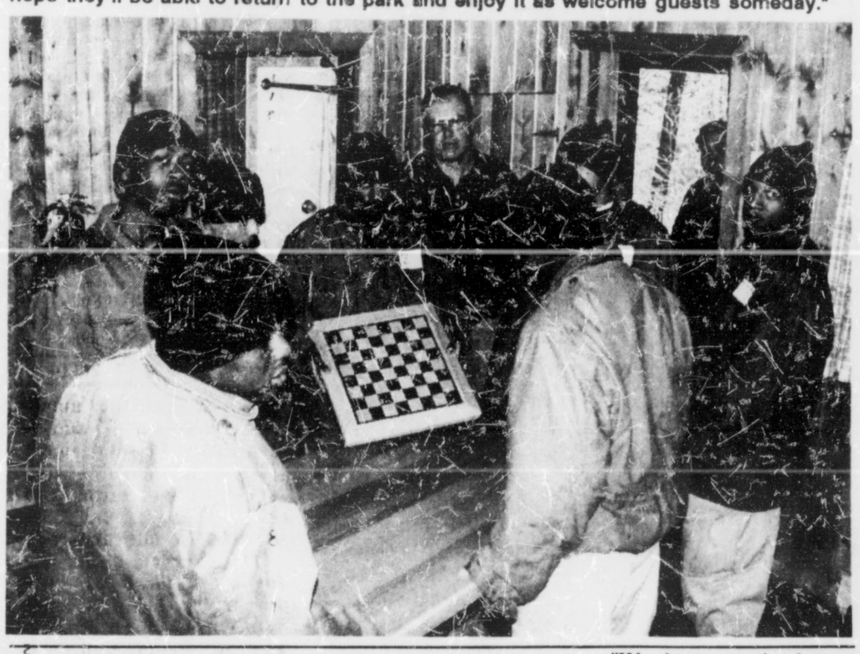
DJJ CAMP YOUTH DELIVER THEIR OWN HANDIWORK - This week a group of participants in the Department of Juvenile Justice Backbone Mountain Leadership Challenge Camp made the first delivery of furniture they built themselves for the cabins at New Germany State Park. Shown above with the work clothes-clad youth (who remain unidentified per DJJ policy) are DNR's Mike Gregory, left, New Germany park manager; assistant park manager Joe Stevens, center background; Gary Riggleman, assistant instructor at the Backbone camp; and, at the far right, John Martin, camp counselor and technical instructor. The group is shown below bringing one of their tables and a chess board they made into a cabin, with Martin among them and Riggleman looking on from the doorway. "The young men were very polite and obviously very proud of their work," Gregory said. "Not only did they have a number of questions about the park, many of them would tell us, 'I helped make this table' or 'I made this bench.' We hope they'll be able to return to the park and enjoy it as welcome guests someday."



Youth Given Skills, Chance To Give Through DJJ/DNR Program

by David Foster

Garrett County provides a welcome respite for thousands of visitors each year seeking refuge from their busy lives. A different kind of refuge is provided here for at-risk youth, many hailing from the streets of Baltimore, in the Leadership Challenge camps that have been operated by the Department of Juvenile Justice for the past several years. A new cooperative venture between DJJ and the Department of Natural Resources provides participants with a way to use their hands to create, rather than destroy, and to give, rather than take, by giving them the chance to develop untapped talents here in Garrett County.

Lately the subject of much controversy, the DJJ camp system is regrouping and refocusing on its primary mission — to provide young convicts with a path on which they can choose to walk away from a life that could end in tragedy for themselves and others. One of the ways this path is being cleared is by providing DJJ camp participants with a sense of self-worth borne from within — the pride of a job well-done — through a furniture-building program for New Germany State Park.

DNR ranger Mike Gregory, manager of New Germany State Park, and Peggy Stewart, DNR coordinator for Youth at Risk, learned of the talents of these young men last summer when they attended the graduation ceremony at the Backbone Mountain Leadership Challenge Camp. Bob McElvie, camp director, showed the DNR staffers that the youth had been honing newly learned skills under the guidance of technical instructor and counselor John Martin.

"We could see that some excellent woodworking and carpentry skills were being learned at the camp," said Gregory. "We also knew that the furniture in New Germany's cabins was showing the effects of decades of use, and we saw an opportunity to put those skills to work." Gregory, Stewart, and McElvie worked out an arrangement in which kiln-dried rough-cut lumber, cut from the Savage River State Forest, would be manufactured into tables, chairs, benches, and dressers for the cabins.

Ranger Joe Stevens, assistant manager of the Savage River Complex, and park maintenance chief Terry Garlitz met with Martin to go over the cabins and size of furniture needed. This effort was incorporated into the existing Transitioning, Attitude, Skills, and Knowledge (TASK) program, which was formulated by DNR last spring in conjunction with DJJ, to provide opportunities for young men to develop skills that would enable them to return to their homes with new attitudes and job skills.

This past fall the lumber was delivered to the camp, where Martin and his assistant instructor, Gary Riggleman, taught the students, using proper techniques of furniture construction. The boards were measured, cut, planed, joined, and sanded in a painstaking process not unlike the building of a successful life. Slowly and steadily the rough lumber became useful and sturdy furniture.

Four dining room tables and several benches were delivered to the park this week to replace old, worn-out furnishings. These items represent a substantial cost savings to the park, which would have otherwise had to purchase the items out of its operating budget. This first delivery represents a $3,000 enhancement to the park that could not have occurred without this joint effort.

"Times are still lean when it comes to operational and maintenance dollars in our state forest and park system," Gregory said. "This type of cooperative venture teaches the youth various skills and gives something back to the public at large. We plan to continue and expand the program in the future."

The cabins at New Germany were constructed during the Great Depression by members of the Civilian Conservation Corps, a program designed to give young men "a leg up" in difficult times. The Leadership Challenge youth, forced to grow up in difficult circumstances in a world as alien to most Garrett Countians as another planet, are also being given a chance to show what they can do in creative, productive ways.

Perhaps these young men, some of whom could have been destined for a long prison term or even a premature death from the violence plaguing their neighborhoods, will one day bring their own wives and children to visit Garrett County, or even make their home here. If so, they may stay in the New Germany cabins, point to the furniture, and tell their children, "This is how your dad started becoming a man."

Band Forming

informing them of the new band and inviting them to attend the first rehearsal, which is slated for April 4, 7:30-9:30 p.m., in the auditorium at Garrett Community College. All area musicians interested in joining the group are encouraged to attend the first practice, which will also be an organizational meeting.

"We want to be a fairly high-quality group," McGee said, although the initial format will be what the men described as "Americana," or "light concert band."

"The music might be somewhat challenging and the members will have to practice," McGee said. "But there is so much talent around here — I know there are many, many people who are certainly capable and who will really enjoy being part of the band."

The men hope to hold rehearsals approximately twice per month.

"And we already have our first gig," Stemple said. The Garrett Concert Band is slated to perform patriotic selections on July 4 at GCC, preceding the fireworks from atop Marsh Mountain. "We got our first donation, too," Stemple said. "Concert band music for 'The Star Spangled Banner,' donated by the Department of Defense."

The rehearsal schedule before that night includes the opening practice on April 4, followed by rehearsals on April 18, May 2 and 16, and June 6, 20, and 27.

"What happens after that will be decided by the members," Stemple said. He and McGee envision the possibility of three to four concerts per year by the group.

In the mailing being sent to some area musicians, the men have included a survey to be filled out by each receiver. They are also asking for contacted musicians to "tell their friends."

"We really want to get the word out now, so people can think about it for a little while and plan to attend the rehearsals," Stemple said.

"We have received very positive feedback about the band. People are excited," Stemple said. "I think we could have a fine group."

Persons who would like more information about the Garrett Concert Band may contact Stemple at 301-387-4383, McGee at 301-387-6315, or the arts council at 301-387-3121.

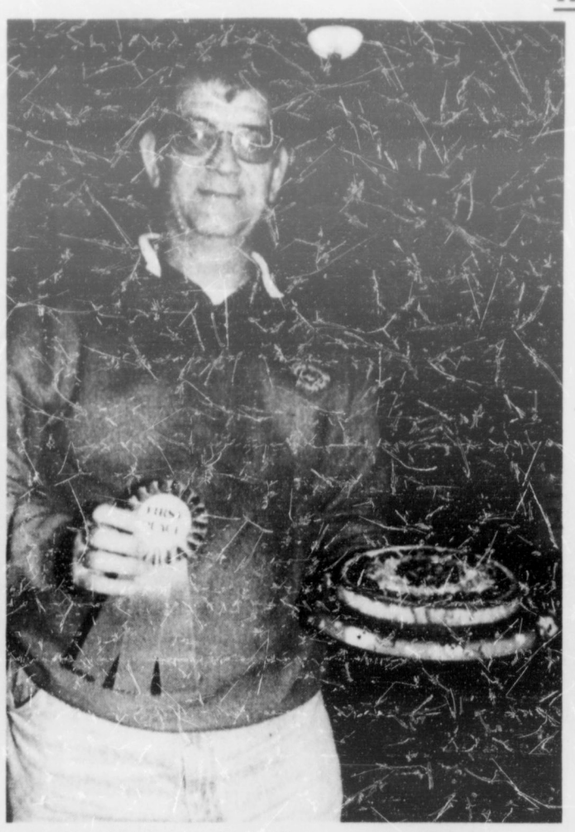
Forum Focuses On Civil Protective, Ex Parte Orders

Maryland State Police recently hosted a strategy and training seminar for supervisors involved in the process of obtaining, completing, filing, entering, and serving civil protective orders, as part of an ongoing commitment by a working group of criminal justice agencies to ensure the orders are handled properly.

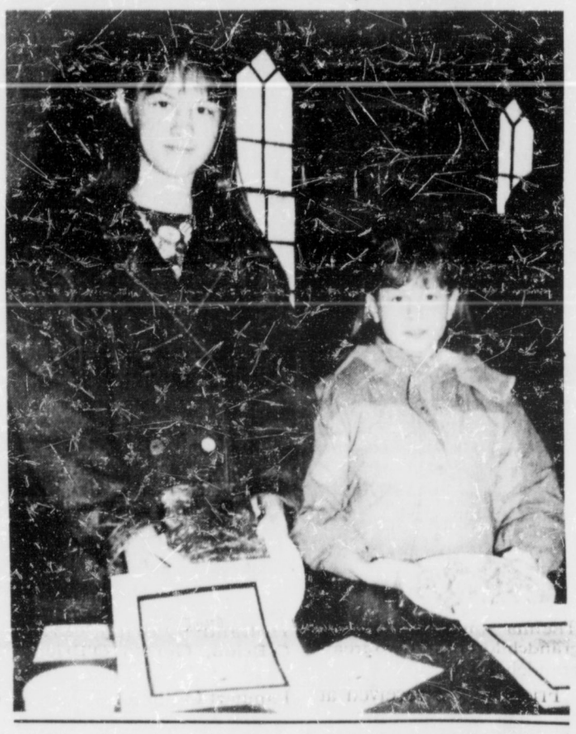
Representatives attending were from all 24 sheriff's offices, the court systems, seven local police departments, the U.S. Attorney's Office, the state police, and others. The first part of the session involved a panel that explained how each step of the ex parte and civil protective order process works and explored ways to improve it.

The second phase involved "breakout" groups by geographic regions to bring persons from each part of the criminal justice system involved in civil protective orders together to identify problems and corrections. A separate session was held for data entry supervisors to discuss problems, identify solutions, and discuss training that will be presented to data entry operators in the coming months.

A working group convened by state police superintendent Col. David B. Mitchell has been meeting since early November 1999 and has already implemented some of the short- and long-range plans it has developed. The group includes members of the Family Violence Council, the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention, Maryland courts, Maryland Sheriffs' Association, U.S. Attorney's Office, Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services, and the Maryland Network Against Domestic Violence.



A DIRTY JOB, BUT SOMEONE HAD TO DO IT - It took dedication and stamina for five local volunteers to judge the 13 entries in the dessert contest, sponsored by Spruce Forest Artisan Village last weekend. The "tasteful" event was part of "Cherries and Chili," a winter festival to celebrate the birthdays of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. All entries in the dessert contest were required to have cherries in the recipe. In the photo above left, four of the judges ponder over their scoring sheets as they consider the entries in the cake category. From left they are Debbie Yommer, assistant kitchen supervisor at Penn Alps Restaurant; Ken Wishnick, president of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce; Fred Holliday, Garrett County commissioner; and Richard Carlson, mayor of Accident. After tasting samples of cakes, pies, cookies, jams, breads, and candies, the judges faced the difficult task of selecting winning entries. The overall grand prize was earned by Larry Roby's chocolate cherry amaretto cheesecake, pictured above right. In the photo below are two other first place winners from sisters Katherine Lins — cherry cheese bread, and Chloe Lins — chocolate cherry surprise candy. First place winning entries in all categories were auctioned to raise funds for Spruce Forest.



"The purpose of ex parte and civil protective orders is to protect those threatened by domestic violence, and we must make sure they are protected," said Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, co-chair of the Family Violence Council along with Attorney General J. Joseph Curran.

Kennedy-Townsend also stated that each agency that is part of this process must be certain everything possible is done to properly handle these orders. "Significant improvements are being made, and we will continue to address any flaws in the system with our full attention. We know all too well that lives are in the balance if we do not act," she said.

This criminal justice system-wide training is the first of multiple training sessions to be held throughout the state in the coming months. A total of five additional "hands-on" training sessions for data entry persons are scheduled.

The Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention made overtime funds available for local jurisdictions to address any backlogs of protective orders not entered in the Maryland Interagency Law Enforcement System (MILES).

Several jurisdictions used the extra funds, and as of November 30, 1999, local authorities reported that backlogs had been cleared.

The prohibition against respondents of civil protective orders purchasing regulated firearms is one which is taken very seriously. The workgroup recommended, and the MSP has already put into place, a system that attempts to prevent the sale of regulated firearms to respondents with protective orders against them as a secondary check to the MILES system.

The state police licensing division now checks the District Court's Judicial Information System for the existence of ex parte and civil protective orders when they process requests for regulated firearm purchases. Regardless of whether an ex parte or protective order issued by the District Court is entered into MILES or the FBI National Crime Information Center (NCIC), this system of a secondary check should prevent a regulated firearm sale. The District Court system in Maryland issues the vast majority of these orders. Efforts are under way to determine how secondary checks can be made with the Circuit Court system.

In addition, the MSP licensing division notifies the local police department where a civil protective order is on file when the respondent attempts to purchase a regulated firearm. This is done so that petitioners may be notified and further safety precautions taken.

In 1999, the MSP licensing division prohibited 23 persons from buying regulated firearms because they were the respondents in civil protective orders. The licensing division also initiates a criminal investigation for each application disapproved because the person is found to be a prohibited person.

Mitchell has ordered that MSP audits of all 31 police agencies that enter ex parte and civil protective orders be conducted quarterly. This significantly increases quality control standards.

Previously, audits were conducted biannually, according to FBI NCIC requirements. As a result of the new standard, 124 reviews will be conducted by MSP quality control auditors throughout 2000. The MSP communications services division has hired two additional persons to work in the civil protective order audit process. Both persons will work in quality control. Another employee formerly working in the quality control section has been moved to the audit unit to assist with the increase in audits.

Additional training is also scheduled for MSP audit personnel. On February 28, staff from the FBI NCIC will conduct more training for MSP auditors.

Miss Wolfe Becomes Bride Of Mr. Metz In September Event

Alicia Marie Wolfe and Mark William Metz were united in marriage September 11, 1999. The double-ring ceremony took place at Bethel United Methodist Church in Mtn. Lake Park, with Rev. Mark Hickman officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Pamela S. Smith, Deer Park, and Laurance Bradford Wolfe, Oakland. The bridegroom is the son of Charlotte Metz, Accident, and James Metz, Friendsville.

Serving as maid of honor was Patricia McGee, childhood friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Kelly Avona, friend of the bride, and Jennifer Wolfe, cousin of the bride.

Serving as best man was Jeremy Groves, friend of the groom. Groomsmen were Dan Miller and Adam Cowgill, friends of the groom. Ushers were Robert Hensley, brother-in-law of the groom, and Brian Wolfe, brother of the bride.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Her gown featured a sweetheart neckline with drop shoulders, from which were suspended satin streamers accented with satin roses. The bodice was of imported lace which was embellished with satin flowers and small pearl beading. The fitted waistline held a full skirt of tulle overlay. She wore a finger-tip veil, and a string of pearls belonging to her maternal grandmother.

The pianist for the wedding was Mrs. Sam Moore. During the ceremony the couple lit a unity candle symbolizing their "life as one." After lighting the candle, the couple presented each of their mothers a long-stemmed yellow rose.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of gardenias, white roses, mini-carnations, stephanotis, and ivy.

The bridesmaids wore teal green gowns with a long contrasting scarf at the neck. They carried smaller versions of the bride's bouquet.

The groom was attired in full dress tails with a satin gold paisley print vest and black bow tie. His boutonniere was a white rose with three stephanotis. The father of the bride, the groomsmen, and ushers wore black tuxedos, black satin cummerbunds accented with teal green print, white shirts, and black ties with white carnation boutonnieres.

The church candelabras were arranged with variegated ivy, white mini-carnations, and stephonatis, complete with baby's breath and gold bows. The church pew bows were of white satin with silk ivy and white carnations. An arrangement of flowers was placed on the altar in memory of the bride's grandfather, William M. Goldsborough.

Following the wedding, an outdoor reception was held. Music was provided by J.R Losh, disc jockey, cousin of the groom.

The three-tier wedding cake, made and decorated by the bride's mother, featured a flowing fountain with a staircase on each side, with a square cake at each side of the base. Figurines representing the bridal party were placed on the steps leading up to the top of the cake from both sides to the figurine of the bride and groom atop the cake. The cake was complemented by tree fern and ivy. It was served by the bride's mother; her aunt, Barbara Tichnell; and Bonnie Smith.

The bride is a 1996 graduate of Southern High School and is attending Garrett Community College.

The bridegroom is a 1992 graduate of Southern High School and is employed by Heilig's Plumbing & Heating as a plumber/electrician.

The couple honeymooned in Niagara Falls, Canada. They reside in Mtn. Lake Park.

The bride was given a bachelorette party at the home of Burnice Crosco, assisted by Patricia McGee, prior to the wedding. A pre-nuptial shower was also given by her mother and aunt, Barbara Tichnell, at the home of the latter.

The bride is the granddaughter of Doris Goldsborough, Mtn. Lake Park, and the late William Goldsborough, and Laurance and Ellen Wolfe, also of Mtn. Lake Park.

Pro-Corridor H Group Meets In Hardy County

The Corridor H Action Committee (CHAC), a pro-Corridor H group, met at the Hardy County Senior Center in Moorefield recently. Over 120 citizens attended to "show their support for the completion of the four-lane Corridor H highway" according to Jim Kingsbury, CHAC president.

After years of legal action by Corridor H opponents seeking to block the highway's construction, a settlement agreement was recently announced. The agreement deals with concerns of both highway supporters and opponents, and allows for more rapid construction, Kingsbury said. "We, the supporters of Corridor H, should view the settlement agreement as one more step toward Corridor H completion. It is my view that we are moving in the right direction. I believe we are getting closer to the outcome that we all desire."

The meeting's keynote speaker, former West Virginia state Senator Joe Manchin, said, "Corridor H is our highway to the future, and I would like to see Corridor H completed within the next 10 years. In terms of development, we must have an adequate infrastructure system throughout the state, and, in this beautiful Potomac Highlands area, Corridor H will be the mechanism that creates more economic vitality."

Also lending their support to the highway construction project were Dennis Jarvis II, executive director of the Grant County Development Authority, Hardy County Commissioner Roger Champ, Curt Wilkerson, who represented West Virginia's Secretary of State Ken Heckler, and Bill DuVall of the Cumberland-based Carpenters Local Union 1024.

Mental Health Services Offered By Finan Center

The Mountain Top Mental Health Associates, Garrett County's public mental health system management agency, issued the following information on the mental health services offered to the residents of western Maryland by the Thomas B. Finan Center in Cumberland.

A 119-bed multi-purpose psychiatric facility, the Thomas B. Finan Center serves as the primary inpatient component in the network of mental health services of western Maryland. The center provides evaluation and treatment to adult, adolescent, and geriatric residents of Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties, in addition to serving adolescent residents of Carroll, Howard, and Montgomery counties. Sacred Heart Hospital, also located in Cumberland, lends support to the Finan Center through its 29-bed acute care psychiatric unit.

The center is composed of a series of 24-bed patient cottages, connected by enclosed hallways. A sitting room adjoins each cluster of four bedrooms. The bedrooms each accommodate one or two people. A gymnasium is available on the grounds for use by patients and community members.

The treatment plans at the center combine clinical pharmacy programs and occupational, art, music, and recreational therapies, plus training and volunteer programs. "The center endeavors to normalize the patient environment and facilitate the patient's return to the community," said a spokesman for the center.

Admission to the Finan Center may result from self-referral or referral from community-based providers, after approval is obtained from Maryland Health Partners, a state contracted agency for pre-admission screening. Such screening is required in order to seek the most appropriate treatment facility and avoid inappropriate inpatient admissions, the spokesman explained.

"Treatment programs and center personnel rely heavily on the personal resources of the individual, the involvement of his or her family, and on the resources of the community in which the person lives," the spokesman noted. These combined forces help set in motion a therapeutic process which leads to separation from the center and return to the support systems of home and community, he said.

For more information on the Thomas B. Finan Center, persons may call 301-777-2200 or e-mail: awallace@dhmh.state.md.us.

Health Dept. Still Offers Free Cancer Testing Program

Free screenings for cervical and breast cancer are available to eligible women through the Garrett County Health Department. Funded by the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, the screening program provides mammograms and Pap tests for women who meet the guidelines.

To qualify for participation, a woman must be a Garrett County resident age 40 or older with no health insurance or a deductible that has not been met. Financial eligibility for the program is determined by the number of family members. Annual income may be $20,600 for one; $27,650 for two; $34,700 for three; and $41,750 for four.

The program covers the cost of a Pap test and pelvic exam, a clinical breast exam, a mammogram, information on breast care, and information on breast and cervical cancer detection.

"These tests can be done by any of the participating physicians in Garrett and Allegany counties and in West Virginia. Most doctors in this area do participate in the program," explained Becky Parks, coordinator of the cancer screening program.

Program participants can go to any one of several area hospitals for the mammogram, including Garrett Memorial Hospital, Sacred Heart, Cumberland Memorial, and Meyersdale, Pa.

"Screenings for breast and cervical cancer are gifts that every woman should give to herself, because early detection really is the best prevention," Parks concluded.

Bill Introduced To Require College Student Meningitis Inoculations

by Debra Hoffman
Capital News Service

The illness of a University of Maryland student last year has prompted lawmakers to consider requiring meningitis vaccinations for college students. The bill, sponsored by Delegate Mary Rosso, D-Anne Arundel, and other members of the General Assembly, requires on-campus students to be vaccinated against the rare, but sometimes fatal, disease.

A Frostburg State University student, Jesse Gardiner, died last February only one day after being diagnosed with the illness. In September, a University of Maryland student tested positive for bacterial meningitis. Brad Wilson, a junior and resident of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity house, was treated at Doctors Community Hospital and released two weeks later. More than 1,000 students were vaccinated by the University Health Center in the wake of the incident.

Dorm residents have a higher incidence of meningitis than the total population, the Journal of American Medical Association reported in May. The rate of infection for on-campus residents was 3.2 out of 100,000 students, compared to 1.4 per 100,000 in the nation. The closeness of the living space can increase the chances of spreading the airborne infection. While the disease is uncommon — about 3,000 cases each year — the number of outbreaks has been rising among college students, according to the American College Health Association.

"Students don't really think about (meningitis) unless they are exposed," and are often unmotivated to vaccinate, Rosso said. An option in the proposed law is available for students who do not want the vaccine, allowing unwilling students to sign a waiver.

Rosso is optimistic about passing the bill, but the expense of statewide vaccinations concerned one physician. Dr. James Turner, spokesman for the American College Health Association, said it is more expensive to vaccinate all college freshmen than to deal with the health effects of the disease.

"As a physician, I can understand the spirit behind getting as many students vaccinated as possible," Turner said. But instead of legislation, the doctor said schools should follow the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices' recommendation and provide information to students about the disease and the benefits of vaccination.

Maryland's University Health Center officials agree with that recommendation and feel students should choose for themselves whether or not to get vaccinated, a spokesperson said. "Our policy is to make sure people are educated," said Dr. Judith Perry. "Students need to be aware of the limitations of the vaccine. While it covers four strains of the virus, it does not cover all and is only good for three to five years. Having the vaccine does not mean you are never going to get the disease."

Meningitis is a bacterial infection that causes the membranes around the brain and spinal cord to swell. The disease can lead to permanent hearing loss, brain damage, or death. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said 10 percent of all cases are fatal.

A public hearing for the bill will be held by the House Environmental Matters Committee on Feb. 23.

Vaccination For Chickenpox To Be Pre-K Requisite

By Sandy Alexander
Capital News Service

As chairwoman of the Maryland PTA's Safety and Environmental Committee, Lisa Breece supports the association's position that mandatory chickenpox vaccines for children will help create a healthy school environment.

But as a mother of two, Breece is glad her children developed immunity "the old-fashioned way," by putting up with a few days of itching rather than receiving more shots. "It makes sense to me to let them catch it," she said. "It's just chickenpox."

It's not "just chickenpox" to Maryland health officials. Beginning September 1, the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene will require that children be vaccinated for chickenpox and Hepatitis B in order to enroll in pre-kindergarten school programs.

The requirement will be expanded each year to include another grade level, starting with kindergartners

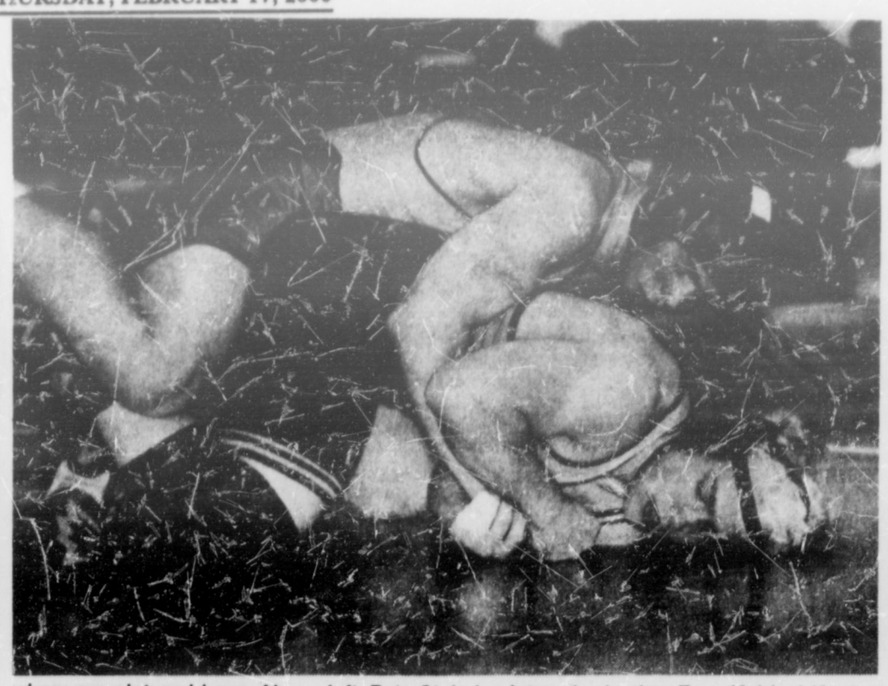
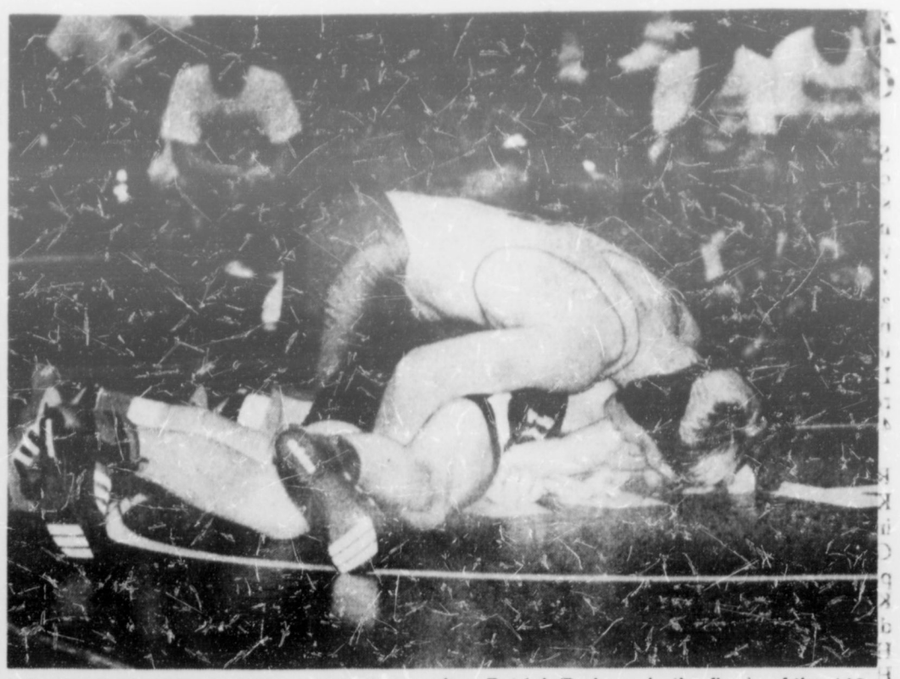
Huskies Win State Dual Meet Title





HUSKIES ARE CHAMPIONS - The first-ever boys' state championship in any sport for Northern High School was captured Saturday by the Northern wrestling team, which edged Kent County, 27-26, in the finals of the Maryland State Dual Wrestling Tournament. The Huskies had seven individual champions and several runners-up, most of whom are pictured here. Above left, Pete Stein is pictured (right) in his 103-pound title match with Artie Kaehler of Kent, whom he defeated by decision, 11-4. Above center is Northern Adam Brenneman in control of Adam Beyton of Owings Mills High School in the semifinals of the 152-pound division. Brenneman went on to win the title by defeating Trey Kohl of Kent, 6-1, in the finals. Above right, David Wampler is pictured just prior to pinning Reed McLaughlin to win the 171-pound class title. Below left, Northern's Mark Wolf pins T.C. Jacobs of Kent in the finals of the 160-pound class after pinning Ben Himowits of Owings Mills in the semifinals. Below center, Blake Huber (left) competes against Patrick Redman in the finals of the 112-pound class, which Huber won by an 8-5 decision. Huber pinned John Ramsel of Owings Mills in the semifinals. Below right, Keith Artice of Northern works to decision Kevin Garmzabaw of Owings Mills, 8-6, in the 145-pound semifinal. Artice was edged in the finals, 10-8, by Kent's Ben Stella. THE 130-POUND STATE CHAMPION in the Maryland Dual Meet is Northern's Paul Beitzel, who is pictured above with his proud parents, John and Arlene. Beitzel rolled to a 14-2 decision in the semifinals against Neil Saval of Owings Mills, and then recorded a hard-earned 4-3 point victory over Jacob Kirwan of Kent County to win the trophy. Pictured at right receiving his champion trophy in the 140-pound class is Husky Brandon Kamp, who pinned Owings Mills' Adam Metzger in the semifinals and won a 5-2 decision over Dan Evans of Kent County in the title clash.

Saturday was a history-making day for Northern High School, as well as for Garrett County, as the Northern wrestling team battled its way to capturing the school's and the county's first-ever state wrestling championship. The Huskies held on to edge Kent County, 27-26, in the finals of the Maryland State Dual Meet Tournament.

The outcome of the event came down to the final match of the day, the 275-pound clash between Northern's Ryan Savage and Kent's Willie Leonard. The only way Kent could win the team title was if Leonard pinned Savage and, while Leonard dominated the match, Savage did not allow himself to get pinned.

Northern won seven of the 13 bouts in the finals after dominating Owings Mills in the semifinals, 56-3. Against Owings Mills, the Huskies recorded five pins, one technical fall, and six decisions. Blake Huber (112), Brandon Kamp (140), Mark Wolf (160), Ryan Brenneman (189), and Ryan Savage (275) all earned pins, while Brandon Stein (135) earned a technical fall, and Pete Stein (103), Matt McNees (119), Jeremiah Guard (125), Paul Beitzel (130), Keith Artice (145), and Adam Brenneman (152) all won on decisions.

The only victory by Owings Mills was a decision by Jason Summerlin in the 171-pound division.

In the finals against Kent County, Wolf and David Wampler (171) won on pins for the Huskies, and Pete Stein, Huber, Beitzel, Kamp, and Adam Brenneman won on points.

Getting pin victories for Kent County were Brian Fox (119) and Donny Yerkie (125). Northern's Matt McNees had a 6-0 lead over Fox before suddenly getting caught.

Ryan Savage was a team hero in another way for the Huskies, despite losing the 275-pound final by a convincing 15-2 margin. His opponent, Leonard, was called for an illegal slam during the match, which injured Savage. Savage was given two minutes to decide whether or not he could continue. If he said that he could not continue, the match would have automatically been awarded to the Huskies. However, not wanting to cause any controversy in the deciding bout, Savage decided to continue, even though he was out-weighed by Leonard by 40 pounds (255-215).

"This was just as a state championship final should be," stated Northern coach Scott Stough, "right down to the last match.

"This has been a great season for us, with the highlights being our championship in the Bedford tournament the previous weekend and now this, our first state team title," Stough said.

The Huskies, who finished their regular dual meet season with a 16-1 record, will host the Bi-County Tournament this Saturday. They will also be the favorites to win the regional and regular state high school 1A/2A team championships. The regional tourney is set for Feb. 25-26, and the state tournament will be March 3-4.

Smiley's, 219 Motors, Midas Win In Playoffs

The first round of the Mountain Top Basketball League playoffs saw 219 Motors, Smiley's, and Midas all advance to the semi-final round, as 219 tolled over 84 Lumber, 72-50, Smiley's whipped Beckman's Variety, 72-57, and Midas topped the Welding Rod, 86-74.

Brian Reams and Craig Haines paced the scoring for 219 Motors with 17 and 16 points, respectively, while Joe Spiker, Rich DeWitt, and Rory Bernard each netted 14 to lead 84 Lumber.

Mike Harvey and Scott Shahan were the big guns for Smiley's, as they poured in 27 and 25 points, respectively, and Jared Beckman led Beckman's with 25.

Also finishing with a 27-point performance for the evening was Jason Brenneman of Midas, while Jason Shank of the Welding Rod was close behind with 25 points. Doug Copeland and Jason Shreve each added 20 points.

The league playoffs will continue this Sunday afternoon with Smiley's facing 219 Motors in the 2 p.m. game, and Midas vs. top-seeded Condoerr in the 3 p.m. clash.

Win WMIL Title

Rams Cage Lions, Whip Sentinels, Mash Wildcats

A lackluster four-point victory by the Southern High varsity boys over visiting Tucker County on Saturday, 50-46, was followed by a huge win on Tuesday, as the Rams and their coach Tom Bosley topped Fort Hill, 52-35, in a key Western Maryland Interscholastic League contest, also played in Oakland. The Fort Hill win was the 600th victory in the history of the school.

Then the Rams secured at least a share of the WMIL title last night for the third season in a row by defeating host Westmar, 50-35, in a make-up game. They finished with an 11-1 mark in league play and have a 33-3 WMIL record over the past three seasons.

The results improved the Rams' overall record to 16-4, with the win over Fort Hill avenging their only WMIL defeat. Southern lost to the Sentinels last month in Cumberland (56-50). The Rams are the top-seeded team going into next week's Class 1A West Region playoffs.

Senior guard Nathaniel Panther and his cousin, Bryan Panther, paced the Rams to their narrow win over the Tucker County Mountain Lions, as they scored 14 and 12 points, respectively. Bryan, who scored eight of his points in the first quarter, also grabbed a team-high six rebounds.

The first half was played almost evenly, with the Rams holding a 15-14 edge at the end of the first quarter and the score knotted at 27-27 at halftime. The Rams regrouped at intermission and out-scored the Lions in the third stanza by a 13-6 margin to take a 40-33 lead into the fourth period, and then held on for the four-point win.

An inside shot by Nathaniel Panther with about two minutes remaining gave the Rams a 47-41 lead and forced the visitors to foul. Southern connected on three of four opportunities at the line in the final minute, with Jason Finch scoring two and Justin Liller, one.

Nathaniel Panther and Liller accounted for 11 of the Rams' 12 points in the second quarter. Liller netted eight points and had five assists, while Justin Stephens scored nine points.

Dave Lambert was the only Tucker County player to reach double figures in scoring, as he netted a game-high 19 points.

The Southern junior varsity also won in the preliminary game, 42-25, with D.R. Parsons leading the Rams in scoring with 12 points. Shane Whitehair scored six to pace the jayvee Lions. The win upped Southern's record to 13-3.

Liller was considered by Coach Bosley as the MVP of the game against Fort Hill, as he led the team in scoring with 14 points and also powered the defensive effort by holding Fort Hill's 6-5 center Jeremy Snyder to a sub-par performance.

In fact, the Sentinels came into the contest averaging 68 points, but were held by the Ram defense to just over half of that (35) and to just two more points than what Snyder himself scored against Southern in the first game this season. As a team, Fort Hill connected on only 12 of 55 shots from the floor for a 22 percent effort.

The Rams led the entire game, with the exception of a brief 3-3 tie in the opening moments. They held a 16-8 advantage at the end of the first quarter, a 25-18 lead at halftime, and a 34-27 margin after three periods.

Snyder, who did finish with a double-double (18 points and 12 rebounds), pulled Fort Hill to within four points twice in the final quarter, but the rallies were short-lived. A three-point play by Snyder with 6:26 to play made it 36-32, but Jason Finch responded with a free throw and Stephens hit a basket to put the Rams back up by seven, 39-32.

A three-point shot by Snyder with 2:33 remaining cut the Ram lead to 39-35, but Bryan Panther answered with six straight points for Southern to all but put the game out of reach for Fort Hill at 45-35 with 1:10 left.

The Rams scored 15 of the final 18 points of the game, as they used their spread offense effectively throughout the final five minutes.

Nathaniel Panther scored 12 points and pulled six rebounds, Stephens had 10 rebounds and eight points, and Bryan Panther finished with eight points and six rebounds for the Rams. Snyder was the only Sentinel to reach double figures, but teammate Eric Dudley recorded nine points and six rebounds.

"We did not contain Jeremy Snyder at all and were hammered on the boards when we played down there (in Cumberland)" stated Bosley. "But going in this time we knew we had to do three things: rebound a lot better, contain Snyder, and stop their penetration game. We did all three very well."

The Rams finished with a 29-28 edge in rebounds, and allowed only two offensive rebounds by the Sentinels in the entire second half.

"Justin Liller did a great job against Snyder," Bosley added.

The loss halted a 13-game win streak for the Sentinels, who dropped to 15-3 overall and 8-1 in the WMIL. They have three league games left and so will share the WMIL title with the Rams if they win all three. They are scheduled to play at Beall tonight.

The Southern junior varsity also avenged an earlier loss to the Fort Hill jayvees in the first game, as Chad Panther paced the Rams to a 53-41 victory. Panther, younger brother of Nathaniel, scored 19 points, while teammates Ricky Reams and D.R. Parsons also reached double figures with 12 and 11, respectively. Nick Mazzone scored 12 and Nathan Dilion hit 10 for the Sentinels.

A HUGE WIN was recorded by the Southern High School boys' varsity Tuesday evening, as the Rams topped Fort Hill, 52-35, to halt the Sentinels' win streak at 13 games. The Rams upped their Maryland Interscholastic League record to 10-1 with the victory and avenged their only WMIL loss of the season, which was to the Sentinels last month in Cumberland. Another victory last night at Westmar assured the Rams of at least a share of the WMIL title for the third straight season. In the photo above, Southern's Justin Stephens passes off to a teammate in Tuesday's game with Fort Hill. Below, Josh Bosley looks to fire the ball to a fellow Ram in the paint, with Coach Tom Bosley, at right, watching his progress. The Rams, now 16-4 overall, will play again this Friday at Keyser and will wrap up their regular season at home next Tuesday against Preston. Photos by Angie Sincell.

Southern Frosh Downed By Alco, Fort Hill Rally

The boys' freshmen basketball team of Southern High School fell twice this week, dropping a 67-60 contest at Allegany last Wednesday and a 37-36 heartbreaker to Fort Hill in Oakland the following night that contained a big second-half Sentinel rally.

Neil Alexander scored 15 points to lead the Rams against the Campers, but Alco's Garrett Snyder tallied 16 points and Chris Johnston added 14. The victory was the first win for the Campers this season.

Southern ran out to a 25-14 lead at the half over Fort Hill, but the guests battled back to outscore the Rams in the second stanza 23-11. Dennis Tressler notched a game-high 19 points, while Patrick Grove scored 10 points for the Sentinels.

Fourth-Ranked Rams Upset By Tucker; Down Frankfort, Beall

The Southern High School girls' varsity basketball team retained its fourth-place ranking this week despite opening with a 47-38 upset loss at the hands of Tucker County. The Rams rebounded to defeat Frankfort 51-46, and last night downed Beall by a 60-40 margin. Southern has a 13-6 overall record and an 8-3 WMIL mark heading into its final week of regular season play, beginning with a homecourt match-up with Preston tonight at 7:30 p.m., followed by a Monday visit to Mt. Savage. The regional tournament opens Friday, Feb. 25.

Thursday in Oakland the Rams were upset by a balanced Tucker squad that ran up a quick lead and never backed off from its aggressive stance. The Mountain Lions took a 14-4 lead after one quarter, a 27-13 halftime advantage, and were up by a 37-21 margin after three quarters of play.

Susan Beall led the guests with 15 points, Rachel Knotts tallied 13 points, and Rachel Campbell scored 12 points. SHS's Becca Gangler paced the Rams with 14 points while Jennifer Bosley added nine points and Ashley Liller six. Charlena Reeves grabbed nine rebounds and Liller dished out eight assists, both team highs.

Tucker's 43-25 junior varsity win made for a clean sweep by the visiting program. Autumn Uphold's 12 points for the Rams were not enough to topple the Mountain Lions' Melanie Cosanic, who poured in 22.

Southern rebounded Monday night to snatch a come-from-behind win over Frankfort. The home-court victory was a hard-earned affair, as the Rams, who were up 15-14 at the start of the second quarter and 32-23 at the intermission, faltered in the second half. Frankfort battled back from a 39-35 third-quarter deficit to take a 45-44 lead with 1:02 remaining in the contest.
